Kopel Freed, Waiter Found Guilty in Gaming Case

By Benjamin Bradlee
Post Reporter

Harry G. Kopel, co-owner of Hammel's Restaurant, was acquitted in District Court yesterday of two charges of gambling.

The same jury found Walter C. Plummer, a waiter at Hammel's, guilty of setting up a gaming table and accepting a horse bet in the restaurant. He was continued under $1500 bond, pending investigation by the Probation Office.

The jury of six men and six women deliberated 6 hours and 20 minutes until 5:10 p. m., when its foreman, John L. Bishop, 59, Navy Department administrative assistant of 1512 Lawrence st. ne., announced the verdict to Judge Richmond B. Keech.

Kopel was charged with knowingly permitting betting at Hammel's, and possessing a numbers slip when he was arrested March 25. Both offenses are misdemeanors.

Plummer faces possible imprisonment up to five years for setting up a gaming table. Accepting a bet is a misdemeanor.

Before the case went to the jury at 10:45 a. m. yesterday, the third day of the trial, Judge Keech eliminated three charges against Kopel and one against Plummer.

5-Count Indictment

Kopel was originally indicted on five counts: Setting up a gaming table, setting up a gaming place, permitting gambling, accepting a bet and possession of numbers slips. Plummer was originally indicted for setting up a gaming table, setting up a gaming place and accepting a bet.

Both were arrested in Hammel's on March 25, when marshals raided the restaurant in one of eight raids made that day under the direction of United States Attorney George Morris Fay. The case against Henry Fish, Hammel's errand boy arrested at the same time and place, has been dismissed for lack of evidence.

The trial was the second involving any of the 36 men arrested as a result of Fay's anti-gambling raids.

The first, involving William (Snags) Lewis and 13 others charged with operating a 14-million-dollar-a-year gambling syndicate, ended in a hung jury Saturday after four days of deliberation. These defendants will be tried again January 9.

Eight more trials as a result of the March 25 raids are still pending.

In his 36-minute charge to the jury yesterday morning, Judge Keech explained the possible ver-

5 Million Italian Workers Called On General Strike

Rome, Nov. 30 (AP).—Italian labor unions divided today over a call by Communist leaders for a 24-hour general strike to protest the death of two peasants in a clash with police.

The Communist-dominated General Confederation of Labor issued the call for the walkout, to start at 6 a. m. Thursday. How many of the five million members claimed by the CGIL will respond is not certain.

The Free Confederation of Labor, headed by Christian Democrat Giulio Pastore, ordered its nearly two million workers to stay on the job. The independent Federation of Italian Laborers, which has about 500,000 members, also said it would not join the strike.

The two peasants were killed by a burst of sub-machinegun fire during rioting that broke out at a peasant union meeting yesterday at Torre Maggiore, in southern Italy. A government communique said the firing was done involuntarily.

Tygoon Adonis Bankrolls Nation's Big-Time Gamblers

(Fifth Article of a Series)

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

New York.—Joe Adonis runs gambling houses, in Florida and other places.

He won't talk about their exact location. On the general subject of his "business," however, he is anything but reticent. He says it is big business, and that there really is no mystery about it.

Adonis, usually referred to in the gambling world as Joe A., asks you to think of Wall Street and what they do down there in furnishing capital for legitimate enterprises. Well, he says that's what he does for gambling casinos; he bankrolls them.

The motive in either case, he wants it thoroughly understood, is the same: profit.

"It's not what we win, it's what we earn," he says frankly.

He doesn't want anybody to think that he is a "public benefactor." The percentages are all in favor of the house. Occasionally, a client gets hot and makes a killing. That's all right with Joe; in fact, he welcomes it because word gets around and it helps business. But in the long run, he emphasizes, the house usually has its "earnings."

Adonis' parents were born in Italy, and his real name is Joseph Doto. Because of his good looks as a young man, his friends in Brooklyn likened him to the "beautiful youth" of Greek mythology, beloved of Aphrodite, and Adonis he became.

Joe is now a short, stocky man of 48, with black hair streaked with gray, and a round face that is anything but menacing. He is not, as has sometimes been reported, a cousin of Frank Costello. The two are close friends, however, and occasionally play golf together at such places as the Pomonok Country Club, where they 'kick around" ideas about making money.

Like Costello and Frank Erickson, Adonis wears expensive clothes that would seem shockingly conservative to the gangster of old, with his cap and turtle-neck sweater.

The only instance where Adonis has gone in for ostentation was when his mother died. She

Beet Raisers Ask Boost in Sugar Price

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The United States Beet Sugar Association yesterday asked Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan to help boost the price of sugar to American consumers.

The appeal was made by Robert H. Shields, who quit as chief of the sugar branch of the Agriculture Department three years ago to become the $40,000-a-year general counsel of the sugar group.

Shields made his appeal while another Government agency—a Senate Agriculture Subcommittee, headed by Senate Guy M. Gillette (D., Iowa)—was trying to find out why food prices don't go down.

Gillette has announced he wants to know what is making coffee prices go up, although the supply is sufficient. He also has called witnesses for Friday to find out why there is such a spread between what the farmer gets for milk and what the housewife pays.

Appeal Made Under 1948 Act

Shields' appeal was made under the Sugar Act of 1948—a strange legal contraption thought up by Congress to assure domestic sugar beet and cane growers Government price protection similar to that given other crops.

Under this law Brannan must each year determine how much sugar is needed to meet the Nation's requirements for the next year. The objective is to hold the supply at a level where is will:

1. Provide sufficient sugar to keep prices at a level "not excessive to consumers," and

2. "Fairly and equitably maintain and protect the welfare of the domestic sugar industry."

The amount of sugar that may be imported into the United States is based on Brannan's ruling. If the figure is low, the amount of imports from Cuba and other sugar areas is reduced proportionately. If the figure is high, the imports are greater.

Quota Raised Last Year

The price that American sugar producers get is higher when imports are low, and lower when imports are high.

A year ago Brannan fixed the quota at 7,250,000 tons. Later, when sugar prices started up too fast and sugar users began complaining, he raised the figure to 7,500,000 tons. Preliminary figures indicate about 7,648,000 tons were distributed.

Yesterday Shields asked that the quota for next year be fixed at 7,200,000 tons. But sugar consumers, candy makers, bakers, ice cream manufacturers, soft drink bottlers, and cocoa and chocolate makers, asked that it be fixed at 8,098,000 tons.

Shields said that last year so much sugar was permitted to come into the country that the domestic beet sugar industry was unable to produce or market the 1,800,000 tons the law permits it to raise. Instead, he said, this year's crop will be only about 1,550,000 tons.

"The $8.05 price (per 100 pounds) of sugar today is extremely favorable from the consumers' point of view," Shields argued at a crowded hearing at the Agriculture Auditorium.

"The formula in the Sugar Act for determining when the price of sugar is excessive to consumers—

Throwing himself on the mercy of the court, Representative J. Parnell Thomas yesterday brought to a sudden and dramatic end his trial on charges of conspiracy and fraud against the Government by waiving his defense.

The 54-year-old New Jersey Republican withdrew a previous plea of "not guilty" and entered instead the technical plea of "nolo contendere." Roughly translated as "I do not contend," the plea is tantamount to a plea of 'guilty,

U. S. District Attorney George Morris Fay told reporters.

Federal Judge Alexander Holtzoff accepted the new plea, which admits of no appeal. Judge Holtzoff released Thomas on bond after setting December 9 as the date to impose sentence on the four-count indictment involving Congressional payroll padding and kickbacks.

Maximum penalty on all four counts could bring a sentence of 32 years in prison and fines totaling $40,000 for the former chair-

Lewis Lets Truce End; Rail Men Face Layoffs

Truman Reported Keeping in Touch With Developments; Workers Gloomy

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Most of the Nation's 400,000 soft coal miners went on strike again early today.

They resumed their walkout promptly last midnight upon expiration of a 3-weeks' truce declared by John L. Lewis, boss of the United Mine Workers union.

All day yesterday the country had waited for Lewis to give the word that he would extend the truce and keep the mines in operation. But Lewis remained grimly silent.

A UMW official at New York said the new strike "undoubtedly will last for some time."

It was the fourth time the miners had walked out this year under Lewis' guidance.

They had been on strike for "contract improvements" for 52 days on November 9 when Lewis and the union policy committee ordered a 3-weeks' resumption of mining.

Miners Reported Restive

There had been a considerable clamor by public officials and others for resumption of mining to meet growing coal shortages in various areas with the advent of winter. There also were reports that many of the miners and their families were becoming restive under the continued payless idleness.

Lewis, announcing the truce, issued this statement:

"As an act of good faith designed to contribute to the public convenience, the United Mine Workers will again make another contribution of major magnitude to enchance the remote possibility of agreement being reached.

"The members of the United Mine Workers in all bituminous coal districts are instructed to resume immediately the mining and production of coal to continue until midnight, Wednesday, November 30."

Lewis had hoped to sign a new contract with the coal industry during the three-week truce. But all peace moves failed.

Reports from the mining areas last night were that, however reluctant they were to face a meager Christmas with their families, the miners would remain loyal to Lewis. In some sections they started leaving their work some hours in advance of the deadline.

Press services quoted many of them as deploring the need for going out again shortly before the holidays.

Lewis Postpones Meeting

John L. was in New York, ostensibly to meet with his 200-man policy committee, but yesterday for the third day in a row he postponed the meeting without explanation. The policy makers—who actually do little more than okay Lewis' decisions—now plan to meet with him at 10 a. m. today.

President Truman, vacationing at Key West, Fla., was reported to be keeping in touch with strike developments. Presidential aides were

U. S. Will Keep Hands Off in China Blockade

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

Secretary Acheson announced yesterday that the United States would continue a hands-off policy toward the Chinese Nationalist blockade of Communist-held ports.

He said the blockade was clearly illegal and the shelling of the freighter Sir John Franklin on Monday was a serious matter. Still, he told his press conference, the United States does not intend to use its Navy to protect American ships that run the blockade.

Instead, he indicated, American ships ought to keep away from Shanghai, and he praised the "prudence, wisdom and perceptiveness" of American shipping companies which, with only one exception, have omitted Shanghai from their ports of call "during this troubled period."

Reply From Company

This was a clear rebuke to the Isbrandtsen Line, which has had two of its ships attacked in recent weeks. Hans J. Isbrandtsen, president of the company, retorted in New York that he had had his fill of "double talk and hocus pocus," and said it was Acheson's "duty to protect American ships on the high seas against unlawful attacks."

Acheson was thus caught in a cross-fire of demands to use the Navy in the Chinese civil war. On one side was Isbrandtsen, who has been bombarding the department for weeks with appeals for naval escorts against the Nationalists.

On the other side were Representative Walter H. Judd (R., Minn.) and four other Republicans on the House Foreign Affairs Committee, who last week-end called for an American naval blockade

Defense Plan Worked Out

Paris, Nov. 30 (NYHT)—The Defense Ministers of the United States, Canada, and 10 European countries will meet here Thursday to put into final shape a broad strategic plan for the defense of the West.

The plan, whose details are a military secret, is essentially an American one. Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson and Gen. Omar Bradley, Joint Staff Chief, who are here for the Atlantic Pact talks, are responsible for a good deal of the thinking behind it.

It was modified, but not essentially changed, at yesterday's meeting of the military committee, composed of the staff chiefs of the member countries.

The impression here today was that there are no serious obstacles in the way of ratification of the plan. Its subsequent formal indorsement by Johnson, by Secretary of State Dean Acheson, and by President Truman will permit the release of 900 million dollars in American military aid to Europe.

The fulcrum of the strategic plan is France. As in the past, the French army must meet the initial shock of any attack coming from the East. Although the exact division of the first instalment of American aid is a military secret, it is better than a guess to say that France will receive a larger share than any other country.

The only other potential continental army that might halt a Soviet attack is a German one, but this solution is ruled out for political reasons. The way things stand now, German divisions will not be armed unless the French themselves suggest it. That possibility is remote.

Soviet aggression in the near future is not regarded as probable by responsible defense leaders. Yet the possibility of war, perhaps resulting from a Soviet miscalculation, is not ruled out.

Although there are no illusions about the ability of Russian ground forces to make initial advances, in the event they should attack, there is more confidence in the West's ability to defend itself than there was even a year ago.

One no longer hears arguments based on the assumption the Red Army could overrun western Europe at will.

Reds Reported Building Ships In Germany

Berlin, Nov. 30 (U.P.).—The official American newspaper Neue Zeitung, reported today that the Russians were producing warships in former German navy yards and converting East German Baltic seaports into Soviet naval bases.

The Neue Zeitung, German-language newspaper published by the United States High Commission, said, "Since Soviet shipyards cannot meet the increased demand for construction of war and merchant ships, the Soviet Admiralty ordered the reconstruction with greatest speed of all German Baltic Sea shipyards under Soviet jurisdiction."

The newspaper said the shipyards are producing destroyers of the Narvik class (1050-ton), submarines and torpedo boats for the Red fleet.

The Russians also have planned a series of naval airfields along the entire Mecklenburg coast, it said.

Neue Zeitung said the shipyards at Wismar and Warnemuende were making destroyers, torpedo boats and submarines, while the Neptune shipyards in Rostock are overhauling and modernizing Russian warships in drydock.

The harbors at Rostock, Warnemuende, Wismar and Stralsund are being enlarged so they can anchor ships of more than 20,000 tons," the newspaper said.

The West Berlin newspaper Der Tag reported at the same time that the East German state was preparing to draft men from 18 to 24 for service in the "peoples police" of the Soviet zone.

New Zealand Votes Labor Out of Power

Auckland, New Zealand (Thursday) Dec. 1 (AP).—After 14 years of Socialist rule, New Zealanders have ousted their Labor government in favor of free enterprise Nationalists pledged to cut taxes and reduce state controls.

The upset, surprising many, came in a parliamentary election of this British Commonwealth nation.

The National Party won 46 of the 80 seats in the House of Representatives. The Labor Party—which held a 42-38 edge in the old House—captured only 34. The Laborite winners include the four Maori (native) candidates elected in separate voting by the Maoris Tuesday.

Prime Minister Peter Fraser's cabinet had come to the end of the road. Two of Fraser's ministers were defeated and others were returned to Parliament by reduced majorities.

Sidney George Holland, 56, a former businessman, who has led the opposition in Parliament since the Laborites took office in a landslide in 1935, will become Prime Minister.

The Labor government of Australia faces a similar test at the polls December 10.

Robert Gordon Menzies, leader of Australia's opposition Liberals, commented in Melbourne: "The Socialists were brought to power in New Zealand, Australia and Great Britain in that order. This dramatic (New Zealand) result seems a happy omen that they will go out in the same order."

Chairman Lord Woolton of Britain's Conservative Party declared in London Britons "will not lag behind their kinsmen in showing the world the right road to follow" when the British Labor govern-

900 Celebrate Trade Board's 60th Milestone

The American people are being "propagandized away from the American way of life," Herman W. Steinkraus, president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, declared here last night.

And he made it unmistakably clear that the propagandists are not all Communists. "So-called intellectuals and politicians can be just as harmful," he asserted in a blistering attack on the Administration and "certain left-wing labor leaders."

The chamber president was the principal speaker at the Washington Board of Trade's sixtieth anniversary dinner which honored 138 member-firms that have been on the local business scene 60 years or more.

The filet mignon dinner in the main ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel was attended by more than 900 District business leaders, community civic leaders and top city officials.

Honor Certificates

In a brief address Frederick P. H. Siddons, board president, saluted the "sixty-year young" Washington business firms for their "unwavering support" to the city, and then presented them with embossed certificates.

Andrew Parker, president of Woodward & Lothrop's department store, responded for the honor firms. He is a direct descendant of S. W. Woodward, founder of the store and the first vice president of the Board of Trade in 1889, the year it was organized.

Steinkraus' theme was that the American people are not getting "the right understanding" of the free enterprise system and it's high time that businessmen—who have largely been the "architects of our destiny"—explain their contribu-

The service was instituted in response to a growing feminine demand for part-time work. Five thousand letters have now been received from women offering their service as monitors.

Symington Hinted Disbanding Of D. C. Guard, Walsh Says

Maj. Gen. E. A. Walsh, president of the National Guard Association, charged yesterday the Air Force would "just as soon eliminate" the Air National Guard if it cannot control it.

He revealed that Air Secretary W. Stuart Symington recently "took me to task sharply" in connection with his assertions the Air Force is trying to "take over" the Air National Guard.

The Air Force insists that it is interested only in being represented on State headquarters staffs of the Guard.

Walsh's accusation was included in a 10,000-word "bill of particulars" outlined to a Guard policy committee made up of Guard and regular Air Force officers. Instead of trying to help the Air Guard, he said, the Air Force seems bent on hampering its development.

"As a result, there is a feeling that the Department of the Air Force does not want the Air National Guard and would just as soon eliminate it if it cannot obtain control of it," he said.

Walsh said his "dressing down" by Symington occurred at a recent conference "involving the Secretary of the Air Force and myself, among others."

"He took me to task sharply for some of my utterances and criticisms of the Department of the Air Force and challenged me to show wherein the Department of the Air Force was attempting to gain control of or federalize the Air National Guard," he related.

The officer then told his audience that the answer to Symington's question could be found in Air Force testimony before Congress during hearings on unification of the armed forces.

Walsh accused the Air Force of failing to follow through on what he termed so simple a matter as asking Congress to make it possible for the Air Guard to be mobilized immediately in an emergency. As things now stand, he said, Congress would have to authorize such action.

"The Department of the Air Force," he said, "has made no effort whatsoever to date in connection with a matter that is of primary importance, namely, to make the Air National Guard available for the immediate defense of the Nation, but, instead, has thwarted the efforts of the States and the Guard to do so."

In addition, he said, "the Air National Guard unit commander has only the vaguest idea as to what his specific mission would be in event of armed attack on the United States."

The Guard officer said the Air Force should act immediately to set up standard procedures for the Guard in case of enemy attack.

The lack of such plans, he said, "is indeed an amazing state of affairs."

U. N. Is Asked to Set Up Arab Refugee Relief Agency

Lake Success, Nov. 30 (NYHT).—Four powers, including the United States, asked the United Nations today to create a "Near East Relief and Works Agency," authorized to spend $54,900,000 during an 18-month campaign beginning January 1, to transfer 652,000 Arab refugees from an international dole to useful employment.

The program originally was outlined by the Economic Survey Mission, a subordinate organ of the U. N. Palestine Conciliation Commission. As the survey group was headed by TVA Chairman Gordon R. Clapp, its recommendations became known as "the Clapp Report."

Besides the United States, Britain, France and Turkey signed the joint resolution.

John C. Ross, United States delegate, informed the Special Political Committee that if the General Assembly approves the resolution, President Truman will ask Congress for "our fair share" of the necessary funds.

On the basis of past American contributions, it was believed Mr. Truman might ask Congress to pay half the bill—$27,450,000.

Work projects would include water and soil conservation, terracing, reforestation, road-building, housing and airport and seaport construction.

10-Year Record of Child Cancer Here Shows High Mortality

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

A dark picture of the extent and hopelessnes of cancer in children was unfolded yesterday with release of a 10-year record of such cases at Children's Hospital.

The statistics showed that in the past 10 years 164 children with malignancies were treated by every means known to medical science—and only 10 are still living.

Moreover, the figures showed, these living 10 are all recent cases and nine are expected to die shortly, the majority within the next six months.

Sole "hopeful" survivor, hospital cancer specialists said, is a child recently operated on for a kidney tumor. If the patient lives, they said, it will be due to early diagnosis and surgery performed in time to prevent the fatal spread of cancer.

The hospital cancer record was reviewed at the weekly meeting of the tumor board of Children's Hospital, organized 13 months ago to attack childhood cancers on all fronts. It was made public largely to emphasize that cancer incidence is more frequent and fatal than commonly supposed, though still rare, in children.

Sole bright spot was reports of ability to stave off death in some "blood cancers" (leukemias) for as much as six months with the drug aminopterin, and recent reports from other cancer centers

Russia this year raised almost 80 percent more bread grain—wheat and rye—than the United States, according to the Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations.

In fact, the OFAR figures, released this week, show that in the 1948-1949 crop year Russia produced more bread grain than all the other four biggest grain countries combined.

The total wheat and rye production for the United States, Canada, Australia and Argentina was about 1950 million bushels. Russia, OFAR estimates, raised 2025 million.

Rye Crop Boosts Total

Russia's lead is due to her tremendous rye crop.

This year the United States raised slightly more wheat than the USSR. The figures OFAR announced are:

WHEAT: Russia, 1100 million bushels; United States, 1126 million.

RYE: Russia, 925 million bushels; United States, 19 million.

TOTAL: Russia, 2025 million bushels; United States, 1145 million.

Russia's wheat production was 75 million bushels above a year ago. United States' wheat production was 162 million bushels less than in the 1947-1948 crop year.

The OFAR report says:

"World bread grain production in 1949, now estimated at about 233 million short tons, is slightly smaller than the 238 million tons produced in 1948. (A ton is about 33 1/3 bushels of wheat and 35.7 bushels of rye.) It is a little above the 1935-39 average of 229 million tons.

"The present estimate of 6185 million bushels for the current wheat crop is 100 million bushels larger than the previous estimate.

Moscow Radio Claims 120-Bushel Wheat Yield

London, Nov. 30 (AP).—"Amazing wheat" that yields over 120 bushels an acre has been grown in the Soviet Union, the Moscow radio said today.

The broadcast, heard in London, said the winter wheat bearing five heads on each stalk was developed at the Karaganda agricultural experimental center at Kazakh, near the Iranian border.

Collective farmer Dusembai Jumanov found the first specimens, the broadcast said, and plant breeders developed it by cross-breeding.

The biggest yield ever recorded per acre in the United States was 74½ bushels on a 25-acre farm near Clinton, Ill., last year.

It came from Pawnee, a hard red winter wheat.

Larger yields have been made on small plots under controlled irrigation.

Yields above 50 or 60 bushels an acre are considered phenomenal and the United States Government average for all wheat is 17.9 bushels an acre.

Evelyn

The blond 4-year-old now has sturdy little legs and brown cut-out sandals she picked herself.

Evelyn was born with two misshapen stumps for legs. Her left arm ended at the elbow. The fingers of her right hand were deformed. She stayed in a hospital until she was 2.

The little girl was old enough to talk—and to walk—when she got home. But she had to crawl or sit on the floor.

Last February, Evelyn had an operation that would enable her to have a normal life. The leg stumps were amputated at the thigh. On August 15, Evelyn got her feet—a present from the Allegheny Society for Crippled Children.

"I stand and I walk now," Evelyn declares proudly.

Sometime later, doctors will outfit her with an artificial arm, almost as good as a real one.

Economic Integration Closer

Paris, Nov. 30 (AP).—Five western European countries are moving closer to economic "integration" along lines recently proposed by American Marshall Plan chiefs.

Economic experts from France, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg—countries aiming at formation of the so-called "Fritalux" Economic Union—heard a French outline last night for creating a free trade area embracing the five countries.

The French project called for making currencies freely convertible, removing nearly all quota restrictions on merchandise traded between the countries, establishment of an international investment bank to coordinate credits, setting up of committees to keep currencies stable and dovetailing of industrial production.

It was concede that Britain did not want to enter into such an arrangement at this time. But the French proposed admission of western Germany.

If the proposals are approved they will be taken to the respective governments as recommendations in the hope that ratification can be brought about.

[Secretary of State Acheson told his press conference yesterday that western European nations are making substantial progress toward economic integration but said he was not in a position to comment on it.—Editor's Note.]

Conservatives, Laborites Join In Cheers for Churchill at 75

London, Nov. 30 (AP).—Winston Churchill was wished a happy seventy-fifth birthday wherever he went today.

Prime Minister Attlee, a target of Churchill's attacks for more than four years, offered "congratulations to the leader of the opposition" on behalf of the House.

"Although these days 75 is not a venerable age and people seem to be able to continue for several decades after that," Attlee said, "75 does mark a distinct stage in one's life and we all rejoice to see him in full health and activity and wish him many more years.

Cheers came again as the wartime leader replied:

"May I most humbly express my thanks to the Prime Minister for the most kindly gesture he has made, one which brings home to me, as one of his wartime colleagues, how far more great are all those sentiments which unite us than are the still quite important matters which are so often the occasion of debate in this house and out of doors."

David Low, world famous independent political cartoonist, paid his respects.

Captioned "Stand Aside, Sir, Not Even YOU Will Stop Me From Paying My Respects," Low's cartoon shows a Briton pushing aside "Winston, Naughty Old Party Politician," to lay a wreath before a statue of "Dear Old Winston, the Nation's Pride."

2 Girls Fly Cooler And Land in Coop; Friend Accused

Norman Speirs, 22, of 3912 1st st. se., yesterday was held in $300 bond for a continued hearing December 8 on charges of harboring two 15-year-old escapees from the Industrial Home School for Girls.

According to police, Speirs put the girls up in a pigeon coop for one night. Neighbors next day became suspicious and called police.

When Attorney Harry Ahern said Speirs had a romantic interest in one of the girls, Municipal Court Judge George D. Neilson commented, "It's funny what love makes people do," then set the bond.

West to Reexamine Soviet Atom Stand

Gen. Elwood R. Quesada

Gen. John K. Gerhart

Gen. Herbert Loper

Adm. Tom B. Hill

Quesada, 45-year-old Air Force lieutenant general, will command Joint Task Force Three, charged with conducting tests of new atomic weapons at Eniwetok Atoll. His deputies will be Gerhart, Air Force brigadier; Loper, Army brigadier, and Hill, a Navy rear admiral

A high Canadian official has stated that the Western nations are going to reexamine Russia's position in the U. N. regarding international control of atomic energy.

The indication was given by Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, Canadian representative to the U. N. Atomic Energy Commission, in a speech last night to the St. Andrew's Society of Baltimore.

McNaughton's remark was cautiously phrased. He said:

"It is the intention of the majority to reexamine the Soviet proposals in the light of statements which have been made recently by their principal representatives so as to be abundantly certain that no misunderstanding of their intent should stand in the way of agreement."

Even so, this was a wider opening toward reconsideration of the East-West deadlock on atomic control than has been made so far by any U. S. official concerned with the atomic negotiations.

For the most part, the American position has been that the Russian proposals are utterly unacceptable and offer no prospect for fruitful consideration.

In his speech, McNaughton extolled the present U. N. proposals for international control and said the plan "continues to commend itself to the conscience of the world." He also declared that the Russian proposals, as they stood, did not offer adequate assurance against the accumulation and surprise use of atomic bombs by any one nation.

But, he pointed out, both Russia and the Western powers have moved from their original positions on the best method of control. He implied, therefore, that there would be some use in further discussions.

tive for the overthrow of Marshal Tito appeared to be a "war manifesto."

Later, Yugoslavia's spokesman quoted a 150-year-old reply from his country to the Kremlin: "We prefer to die sword in hand rather than surrender into shameful slavery to any power."

Sava Kosanovic, Yugoslav Ambassador to Washington, recalled an exchange dated 1803 between Czar Alexander I of Russia and Peter I of Montenegro, which now is part of Yugoslavia.

The Russian Czar wrote: "Now I hear that some strangers have infiltrated into your country who are enemies of the Slavic language and religion . . . We feel moved to send our emissary . . . with orders and instructions to convince the people of your country of our last grace and to uncover and show the danger, and, in case you should not want to obey, to show the people the way and means to your glory and your happiness."

"The reply of the leaders of Montenegro," Kosanovic said, "was clear and simple:

"'The people of Montenegro are not subjects of the Russian Empire, but are only under its moral patronage . . . but with the understanding that we do not wish to enter into subjugation like other people who live in Russia, and we shall defend to the last the freedom which our forefathers won, and we prefer to die sword in hand rather than surrender into shameful slavery to any power'."

British Minister of State Hector McNeil told the General Assembly that "Sergeant Major Vishinsky and his little platoon" of satellite followers had indulged in a "parade of monotonous propaganda" that cast doubts on the sincerity of the Soviet "peace proposal."

"What a wonderful organization is the Cominform," McNeil told the 59-nation Assembly. "By its latest communique, it associates itself unreservedly with the 'movement of the supporters of peace.' In fact, the whole communique is supposed to be read as a great international manifesto of peace.

Army Studies Use of A-Bomb With Infantry, Collins Says

By The Associated Press

Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army Chief of Staff, yesterday said that "serious study is being given to applying the atomic bomb to infantry tactics."

His comment, given in answer to a news conference question, represented a departure from earlier military thinking.

In the first years after the war, military men felt that the mass destruction characteristic of the weapon meant it would be useful only for strategic attack on cities. It would be too powerful for use against troops in the field.

Collins, replying to other questions at the conference, also said:

1. The Army is buying, out of current funds, new models of 28-ton light tanks, building a sample of a medium 35-ton tank, and is studying plans—but has no prototype model yet—for a heavy tank of more than 50 tons. It also is purchasing many new high-reaching antiaircraft guns, the "Skysweep."

2. The Joint Chiefs of Staff have agreed on a plan for defense of Alaska, which will be carried out as soon as housing for troops can be completed. It is "not a grandiose plan, just a modest plan."

Meanwhile, there is an interim plan to "take care of the situation if anything happens" before housing is completed and more troops are moved in.

3. Collins knows of no plan to rearm Japan or build up a Japanese army.

4. The individual commanders of each of the six armies in the United States now have authority to take immediate action in their own areas if an attack should occur, without waiting to ask permission from the Pentagon.

11 Bulgar Communists Face Trial for Lives in Tito Plot

Sofia, Bulgaria, Nov. 30 (U.P.)—Traicho Kostov, No. 2 Bulgarian Communist, and 10 codefandants were accused today of plotting to annex Bulgaria to Yugoslavia with the connivance of the United States.

A 20-thousand-word indictment accused the 11 defendants—some high in the Communist hierarchy—of "treason, treachery, espionage and economic sabotage."

They will go on trial for their lives.

It will be the second great Communist purge trial in recent weeks. As a result of the first, Laszlo Pajk, No. 2 Hungarian Communist, was hanged October 15.

Today's indictment alleged a vast plot involving the United States, Britain, Marshal Tito and his three chief aides.

Defendants are:

Kostov, former Vice Premier and a member of the Bulgarian Politburo.

Ivan Stefanov, former Finance Minister.

Nikola Nachev, former deputy president of the finance and economic committee.

Ivan Slavov Gevrenov, former director of the rubber industry.

Vassil Athanassov Ivanovsky, alleged Yugoslav intelligence agent.

Ilya Bayaltzaliev, also an alleged Tito agent.

Boris Christov, named as having worked for the "Fascist" police.

Foreigners mentioned included Donald Read Heath, American Minister; James Clark, former aide in the American Legation; Oscar Andersen, American intelligence agent; Stephen P. House, first secretary of the British Legation, and Col. William Bailey, chief of British intelligence in the Balkans.

Persistent Suitor Released on Bond

She didn't want to get married but Moses moved in and wouldn't leave, she told Prosecutor J. Leon Williams.

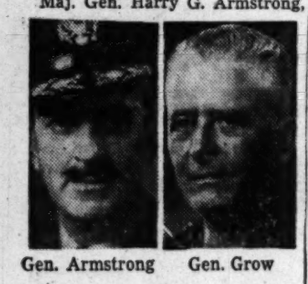
Air Surgeon General Grow Retires; Has 31 Years Service

Maj. Gen. Malcolm C. Grow retired yesterday as Air Force Surgeon General after more than 31 years of military medical service.

Maj. Gen. Harry G. Armstrong, who has been Deputy Surgeon General, succeeds him.



Gen. Armstrong Gen. Grow

Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Chief of Staff, pinned an Oak Leaf Cluster on Grow in lieu of another Distinguished Service Medal.

Grow was cited for his work in aero-medicine, a development of airborne medical equipment, and initiating plans adopted by all three military medical services for mobilizing medical personnel in case of war.

Prior to accepting a commission in the United States Army Medical Reserve Corps in 1917, General Grow had served nearly two years in the Russian Army, receiving three decorations, including the Cross of St. Stanislaus with Crossed Sabers, one of the highest decorations given under the Czar.

General Grow served as surgeon with the Forty-fifth Artillery and the Forty-second Infantry Division in France during World War I, and as surgeon of the Eighth Air Force and later the United States Strategic Air Forces in the European Theater during World War II.

General Grow and General Armstrong have been closely associated during their respective careers.

"Tragic" Danger

Eaton Seeks Bi-Partisan China Talks

Representative Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.), ranking minority member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, challenged the Administration last night to develop a "truly bipartisan" foreign policy covering the Far East.

"If I were in a position of authority," said Eaton, "I would call in leaders of both parties before Congress convenes and attempt to work out a foreign policy covering not only China but the world."

Eaton termed it "a shocking thing" that the Administration "has no fixed policy in Asia" and warned that with an election year coming up our present course invites "partisanship."

He said that as a result he feared that not only the Asiatic question but European policy as well may come in for rough sledding next session "and that would be tragic."

"It is in the Orient that Russia is winning the cold war," Eaton told newsmen. "Whatever we do or accomplish will be set to naught if Russia wins there."

"I have felt from the start that our weakness in Asiatic policy has been responsible for everything that has come to pass. We lost our chance when Japan violated the Kellogg Pact and moved into Manchuria. We should have taken a firm stand then.

"I frankly do not know what the answer is now, but certainly we cannot recognize the Communist regime. The best minds in both parties should be able to work out a policy which the whole country can support on a bipartisan basis."

Hongkong, Nov. 30 (AP).—Chungking fell today. Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek fled his recently established Nationalist capital a step ahead of an estimated 20,000 Chinese Communists.

Reliable sources in Taipeh, Formosa, Chiang's island headquarters, said Chungking was lost shortly before noon. It had been expected, but the latest Red triumph pushed the Nationalists deeper into western China.

In Hongkong, the Chinese newspaper Sing Tao Man Po reported 20,000 Communist troops under Gen. Liu Po-cheng crossed the Yangtze River from the south bank and entered the outskirts of Chungking at 1 a. m.

Taipeh informants said Chiang's personal Skymaster plane reached Chengtu, 170 miles northwest of Chungking, at 11 a. m. Government officials preceded the Nationalist commander to the indicated new refugee capital—fourth within a year.

The Reds gave the last three Chungking evacuation planes a hot sendoff.

"There was gunfire all around," said Miss Marjorie Chen, secretary to the Chinese Education Minister, on her arrival here from Chengtu. She said the three transports, including one carrying foreign correspondents, got off safely and reached Chengtu.

Authoritative quarters at Taipeh predicted Chiang would take over the Nationalist Presidency in two or three days and issue an important statement.

However, the Hongkong China Mail quoted sources close to Acting President Li Tsung-jen that he had turned down Chiang's request to step down and he intends to go ahead with his visit to the United States in his official capacity.

Acheson Will Keep Hands Off Chinese Nationalist Blockade

of the Communist-held Chinese coast.

Officials estimated yesterday that 90 percent of the shipping now entering Communist ports in China was of British, Norwegian and other foreign registry, and that an American blockade would embroil the United States with the leading maritime powers of the world.

Although Acheson did not refer directly to the Judd proposal, he made it clear that the United States was continuing peaceful diplomatic methods to get satisfaction from the Communists as well as from the Nationalists.

He expressed the hope that foreign governments would protest against the imprisonment of Consul General Angus Ward at Mukden. Ward's subsequent release, he said, did not affect the principle involved.

The State Department later disclosed that 12 of the 30 governments to whom Acheson appealed last week had either protested against Ward's arrest or had announced they would do so immediately. The 12 were Britain, France, Australia, Austria, Belgium, Egypt, India, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway, Sweden and the Philippines.

Nine other governments expressed "sympathy" but took no action; Russia and four of her satellites ignored the appeal.

Ward intends to pay off his consular staff next Saturday, according to a new message relayed by the consulate at Peiping, but there has been no news of whether the Communists have provided transportation for Ward and his staff.

On another American grievance against the Chinese Communists, Acheson issued a statement clearly intended to mobilize public opinion at home and abroad. This was the disappearance of two American servicemen, Chief Electrician William C. Smith and M/Sergt. Elmer C. Bender, near Communist-held Tsingtao more than a year ago.

Acheson complained that the Communists had not allowed the American consular staff at Tsingtao to get in touch with the men, and had ignored efforts of the Consul General at Peiping to get them released.

"The Chinese Communist authorities are apparently unaware," he said, "that the international practice of civilized countries for many years had recognized that consuls should be afforded full opportunity for the proper conduct of their duties in the protection of their nationals.

"These men have been held for over a year completely incommunicado from their consular representatives and from members of their families.

"I should like to emphasize that American public and official opinion, which has been deeply concerned about these violations of accepted international procedures, is now thoroughly indignant over the inhumane treatment which continues to be accorded these two American citizens and the hardship and suffering being experienced by their families."

This was the first time the State Department had ever charged the Communists with "inhumane" treatment of the two men; up to now it has not even been sure that the two were alive.

[Mrs. Ruby Smith, the wife of one of the two missing men, said in Long Beach, Calif., yesterday that she planned to go to Washington and "sit there until they do something," the United Press reported. Mrs. Smith said she was in danger of being evicted from her home unless her husband returns soon.

[The only message she received from Smith, she said, was through the Red Cross inquiring about the child born three months after he was captured. She said she sent word it was a son, named Patrick, as he had requested.

[The brown-haired, pretty Mrs. Smith, 32, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Martin, of Charleston, W. Va. She married Smith, son of a rancher of Columbus Falls, Mont., at Norfolk, Va., in 1940.]

Answering reporters' questions on the Nationalist blockade, Acheson said any nation had the legal right to close any port, but could not seize foreign ships outside territorial waters. He said the Sir John Franklin was outside territorial waters during part of the time it was being shelled.

The Chinese government can be held strictly accountable under international law, he declared. A previous protest against the attack on the freighter Flying Cloud was based on the endangering of American lives, but the protest in the Franklin shelling, Acheson said, goes further than the first.

Acheson Undisturbed By 'Losing Face' Talk

Secretary Acheson doesn't lose any sleep about the United States losing "face" in China.

His own face flushed when a reporter asked him at his press conference yesterday: "Mr. Secretary, do you consider the American Government has lost 'face' in China by recent developments?"

That, the Secretary shot back, is a particularly foolish Oriental conception which suddenly seems to have seized American minds. You can lose wars (he went on with mounting vehemence), you can lose honor, and lose everything—but to lose "face" seems to be terrible.

The dictionary defines this kind of "face" as "the outward appearance or semblance of dignity or prestige," and as "concern for or preservation of one's prestige." The Secretary said, however, that he regards it as just a form of Orientalism of which he isn't guilty.

Sugarloaf Picture Contest Extended Until December 31

Deadline in the photographic contest for scenes of Sugarloaf Mountain has been extended to December 31, it was announced yesterday.

A total of $250 is being offered. Sugarloaf is 33 miles from Washington off Route 240, bordering Frederick and Montgomery Counties. Reason for the extended deadline is to allow time for processing of color pictures, John C. McCormack, contest chairman, said.

Entries should be addressed to Stronghold, Inc., 4924 Van Ness st. nw., Washington 16, D. C. Prints only should be sent, but entrants must submit negatives if requested. The subject must be of Sugarloaf Mountain "or of a view on or from" the mountain.

Man Pleads Self-Defense in Rent Shooting

William R. MacIlrath, 64, went on trial yesterday in District Court on a charge of shooting his tenant during an argument over $105 back rent he claimed was due.

The shooting occurred July 2 at 460-A H st. sw., where MacIlrath sublet rooms to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Sosa, now of 6631 Calvert st., Riverdale, Md.

According to the charges, Sosa was shot in the lung and Mrs. Sosa and her sister, Sara J. Hawkins, 3901 Burns pl. se., clubbed with a pistol.

MacIlrath pleaded self-defense. He said he was attacked with part of a metal bed frame before the shooting occurred.

The jury will get the case today. Prosecuting is Harold Bacon. Attorney Charles E. Ford is defending MacIlrath.

Hearing Won by Miss Coplon On Wire-Tap; FBI Men Called

New York, Nov. 30 (AP).—Judith Coplon today won a Federal Court hearing to decide whether spy conspiracy charges against her are based on "illegal wire-tapping" evidence and, therefore, should be thrown out.

Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan called the hearing for next Monday and told the Government to bring into court all the FBI agents who investigated Miss Coplon and her accused coconspirator, Soviet Engineer Valentin A. Gubitchev.

Ryan's order directs the Government to show cause (1) why all evidence obtained by wire-tapping against the former Justice Department employe should not be suppressed, and (2) why an indictment obtained by this method should not be dismissed.

The order was obtained by Miss Coplon's lawyer, Archibald Palmer, in his continuing battle to keep his Brooklyn-born client from going on trial with Gubitchev December 27.

Palmer failed previously in an attempt to have Miss Coplon's arrest declared illegal on the ground that it was obtained without a warrant.

He also argued unsuccessfully that the Government is seeking to try her twice for the same offense. She already has been convicted and sentenced in Washington on a similar spy charge and is free in $40,000 bail pending appeal.

In his new petition to Judge Ryan, the lawyer cited Supreme Court decisions to the effect that evidence obtained through wire-tapping cannot be used in a Federal court.

Laurence Duggan Named In Hiss Trial

New York, Nov. (30) (AP).—The name of Laurence Duggan, former State Department aide, was injected into the Alger Hiss perjury trial today in connection with a mysterious note referring to prewar battleship plans.

Dugan died last December 20 in a fall from a sixteenth floor window in New York.

Another note read at the trial named Noel Field, also a former State Department aide. Field disappeared in Europe several months ago, presumably swallowed behind the iron curtain.

Field

Mention of the battleships came yesterday in a cryptic note that seemed to hint that Russia obtained plans for two superships.

Duggan's name was not listed when the note was read. He was referred to as "Z." Field was identified only by his last name.

The mystery note purportedly was jotted down by former Assistant Secretary of State Adolph A. Berle during a talk in 1939 with Whittaker Chambers, star Government witness against Hiss.

How Name Was Disclosed

The defense insisted that Duggan's identity be hidden in the original reading of the note on grounds it might reflect unnecessarily on a dead man.

However, the name came out today in sections of another report from Chambers to Raymond Murphy, State Department security officer, in 1945.

The Government read this section of Murphy's memorandum:

"In a special category was Noel Field and Laurence Duggan of the State Department. Field was described as a member at large in the ((Communist) party but neither was in the underground.

"Special liaison was Hedda Gompertz. She was married to Paul Massing. Massing is a penologist for the State of Pennsylvania. When Field went to the League of Nations he left Duggan in her special care. It is understood Field and Duggan supplied any information she wanted to know."

Mrs. Massing is a former wife of Gerhart Eisler, who has been named as one-time No. 1 Communist in America. He fled the United States last spring.

Molotov, Deputy Premier of Russia, once was Soviet Foreign Minister.

Scott Ferris was not identified further.

Field left the State Department in the 1930s to join the secretariat of the League of Nations. He served with the Office of Strategic Service during the war. He was accused in a postwar Hungarian spy trial of enlisting Hungarians to spy for the United States.

Duggan's widow announced that life insurance companies classified his death as accidental. The Justice Department said after he died that he was "a loyal employe of the United States."

Chambers talked to Berle and Murphy, he said, after he left the Soviet underground, renounced communism and tried to warn the United States against spies.

Arlington Merchant Heads Nurse Unit

J. Lawrence Manning, Arlington County gasoline dealer, has been reelected president of the Instructive Visiting Nurse Association of Arlington for the fourth consecutive year.

Other officers elected at a board meeting earlier this month include: first vice president, Mrs. J. C. Boss; second vice president, Mrs. William H. Arkin; secretary, Mrs. T. W. Gilbert, and treasurer, Miss Marian Magruder.

Norfolk Widow, 65, Slain in Home; Suspect Seized

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 3 (AP).—Thomas Allen Uupton, 44, was arrested today and charged with homicide in the robbery-slaying of Mrs. Mamie Culpepper, a 65-year-old widow.

Police said Mrs. Culpepper was shot fatally in her home last night by a man who escaped with about $5. Some time later Ocie Culpepper, of Shawboro, N. C., found his mother wounded. She was taken to a hospital where she died shortly before midnight. Patrolmen reported the wounded woman gave them the name of a man whom she said was her assailant.

Upton was arrested this afternoon in Riverdale, Norfolk County, by two Norfolk policemen.

Detective Capt. H. C. Gornto said Lupton drew a pistol as Officer R. R. Lamar approached him, but Lamar quickly knocked the gun from Lupton's hand.

Wine Seeker Guilty Of Window-Smashing

Earl N. Johnson, no fixed address, needed a drink.

He asked Krys Valanos, proprietor of the Liberty Cafe, 735 5th st. nw., for a quarter to buy wine, it was testified in Municipal Court yesterday.

When refused, Johnson heaved a brick through the cafe window and Valanos' hand was cut by flying glass.

Judge George D. Neilson sentenced Johnson to a total of $100 or 120 days on charges of destroying private property and simple assault.

Man Who Beat Numbers 'Rap' Held for Jury

Lawrence Accarino, 55, who beat a numbers charge in the Court of Appeals last November, was held for action of the grand jury yesterday on a new gaming charge.

United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence held Accarino as well as Willie James Hackett, 29, of 4809 Fitch st. ne., on charges of operating a lottery and possession of numbers slips. They were released in $1500 bond each.

Police arrested Hackett November 22 at a filling station in the 6300 block of Georgia ave. nw., then set a trap for the "pickup" man and arrested Accarino when he drove in.

Pvts. John T. Rudkin and Harold Sanford, who made the arrests, testified at yesterday's hearing they did not actually see money or numbers slips passed from Hackett to Accarino, but that marked slips and money which had been returned to Hackett were found on Accarino after the latter's arrest.

Accarino, who lives at 1310 Downing pl. ne, was arrested on numbers charges in October, 1948, after vice squad detectives battered down the door of his apartment. He was convicted in District Court but the Court of Appeals ruled the police entry illegal and reversed the conviction.

It seems to run in the family.

Brummett

Houston H. Brummett, who joined the Marines in 1942 and is now a sergeant at the Corps School, Quantico, Va.; Mike H. Brummett, who became a Marine in 1942 and is a sergeant at the Brooklyn Navy Yard Barracks; Lewis Brummett, who served in the Navy throughout the war, and a year ago enlisted in the Air Corps.

This week, the youngest of Mrs. Rosa's sons—all by a previous marriage—Arthur Raymond Brummett, celebrated his seventeenth birthday by joining the Marines.

Mrs. Rosa said yesterday that she has a daughter, Mrs. Mary Ellen Britt of Long Island, New York, "who would have become a Wac except that she married."

Rep. Miller Denounces Men's Okinawa Billets

Tokyo, Nov. 30 (U.P.)—Representative Arthur L. Miller (R., Nebr.) said today that enlisted men's billets on Okinawa were the worst he had ever seen.

He demanded that military installations be made livable or the Americans should move out.

Miller and three other members of the House Appropriations Committee inspected Army and Air Force installations on Okinawa Monday and Tuesday.

dicts and detailed what had to be proved before each defendant could be found guilty on each count.

He told the jurors "decoys may be used to ensnare criminals and to present the opportunity to one intending to commit a crime." He said that decoys "were frequently essential to law enforcement.

"If you find that the defendants had no intention to commit crime," Judge Keech charged the jury, "and that the intent originated with the Government and the defendants were induced into the commission of the crime, then you must find the defendants not guilty."

At the conclusion of the charge, one juryman asked and received the Govenrment's exhibit 9 for use during its deliberation.

This exhibit was a numbers slip, on which was written in pencil:

"272—35c combination
727—35c combination"

During the trial, two Government witnesses testified that they had made three horse race bets with Plummer in Hammel's during March. They said they had seen and heard evidence of gambling on other occasions during January.

A deputy marshal testified for the Government that when he searched Kopel on the day of the raid, he found two slips, one detailing the 35-cent "combination" numbers bets, and the other describing a three-horse "whipsaw," a triple parlay bet.

In his testimony, Kopel denied he had ever known of any gambling in his restaurant or that the two slips were found in his possession.

Plummer admitted accepting the bets from Government agents, but, he said, "just to accommodate them." His lawyer, T. Emmett McKenzie, said that Plummer had been entrapped into violating the law, and that the Government should not be permitted to prosecute.

Dallas Woman's Blast Death Ascribed to Far-Away Gambler

Dallas, Nov. 30 (AP).—Herbert Noble charged today that the operator of a big policy wheel racket there was responsible for the plot which resulted in the death of his wife.

Noble police describe as head of one gambling faction in Dallas, told a reporter: "The fellow who is behind this is 1500 miles from Dallas right now but he operates several policy wheels here and has operated them for years." (Dallas is about 1500 miles from New York).

Noble said he had been a gambler "until three years ago."

"All the prior plans to kill me have been made by the same man—a kill-crazy man," Noble said. "It's not over gambling, either. Why in the world he continues to get me is more than I can understand."

Three previous attempts had been made on his life.

Mrs. Mildred Noble, 36, was killed yesterday, when, starting her husband's car, she set off an explosion.

Adonis Bankrolls Big Gamblers was well known as "Mother Elk" in their section of Brooklyn, and appears to have been a big-hearted woman who gave baskets of food to the poor, bought them coal and advanced them small sums.

When she died in 1934, Joe A. and his grieving brothers bought her a $7000 casket. There were 175 cars in the funeral cortege. Fifty of these were needed to haul the floral pieces, which were reported to have cost $35,000.

Cases the Community

To get back to Joe's business, he will tell you this much about it:

Before he puts his money into a gambling house, he has to have the answers to a number of questions. What is the community like? What are the prospects of "action"—that is, patronage or business? What does the law say in respect to gambling?

He would prefer that the casino be located, not in a big city, but in a small community not too far from a big city. (He doesn't say so, but the chief reason is obvious: It's easier—or, at least, cheaper—to "fix" the officials of a small community.)

Once the gambling house is open for business, it is understood that local residents are to be excluded. The reason for this is rather obvious, too. Joe doesn't want any of the local people to get "hurt." And neither does he want some irate wife storming around, yelling to the police or the neighbors or writing letters to the editor, because her husband has lost his shirt.

This policy, by the way, is a familiar one among big-time gamblers, and has been for a long time. The Prince of Monaco certainly would have frowned in the old days if he saw local inhabitants in Monte Carlo. Admission to the late Col. Ed Bradley's famed "Club" in Palm Beach was by invitation only, and natives were not welcome.

Prospect Must Be Good

Adonis, naturally, must know that there is a good prospect of "action" before he puts his money into a place. A gambling casino is an expensive venture, and if it is to pay there must be plenty of money wagered on the dice games, the card games, and the roulette wheels.

As for the law, Joe does not like to operate in a locality where gambling is a felony; he would much prefer that it be a misdemeanor.

There is always the chance, even when the "fix" is in, that some zealous crusader will arise and blow things open.

Adonis will tell you that there has to be somebody like himself, and like those who join him in such ventures, behind really big-time gambling. For one thing, there is the matter of reputation. The operator of a casino, even though he is a thousand miles away, must be known as a man who pays off and who runs an honest house, being content to take his earnings from the normal percentages. Adonis prides himself on having such a reputation.

Then, it is necessary that the bankroll be a big one. Gambling houses, even though they end up in the black over the long run, sometimes get hit hard; and somebody with nerve and large resources has to stand in back of them. Joe qualifies here, too.

Has 'Credit Department'

Also, there is the matter of credit. There are men with a passion for gambling—often reputable business or professional men—who seek out gambling houses as they travel about the country. They don't as a rule carry a great deal of money on them. If they should lose $200, say, and want to write a check or an I.O.U., it raises a problem.

In really important cases, a long-distance call is sometimes put through to Joe A. himself, and the customer is put on the line.

"Who have you played with?" Joe will ask, meaning what other gamblers has the man done business with.

Joe, who knows just about all the really important gamblers in the country, will make some calls on the basis of the information he has been given. When he has finished, he will know all about the credit rating of the man in question.

(Colonel Bradley used to gross one million dollars a year from cards, dice and the wheel; but at a tax hearing in 1925, he testified that he lost money for 10 years because welshers refused to pay their debts.)

Adonis, when he has a heavy interest in a gambling house, will have men of his own on the scene—croupiers, bookkeepers, and the like. One of his headaches in this respect is the matter of "patronage." Local politicians will demand jobs for their henchmen, and Joe sometimes has to hire as many as 10 of them.

Background Is Exception

Sociologists, in checking on the background of criminals, often run across a familiar pattern—poverty, a broken home, bad companions, and a stretch in a reformatory that, instead of bringing reformation, sharpens the youngster's desire to become a big shot.

Joe A.'s career is an exception. He had no excuse, and offers none today.

His father was a small builder and a good provider. Some of the boys in the neighborhood—the Gowanus Canal section of Brooklyn—became gangsters, but others stayed straight and became successful in the business and professional world. Adonis simply chose to go with the gangsters.

Although he was once nominated for Public Enemy No. 1 by the then District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, Adonis has never been in a reformatory or a penitentiary. He has been arrested many times and for many different kinds of crime—brawling, smuggling liquor, robbery, kidnaping, extortion and assault. However, nothing much ever happened. In two cases, involving disorderly conduct and smuggling liquor, he got off with fines. In the others he was discharged.

Adonis, an astute youngster with undoubted qualities of leadership, went up fast in the underworld. He came along at a time when prohibition was opening up big opportunities, as otherwise law-abiding citizens turned to the underworld for their liquor supply.

Top-Notch Rum-Runner

Adonis became an important rum runner; not as important as Frank Costello, perhaps, but certainly one of the top-notchers along the East Coast. He had his agents buy liquor in Europe, Canada and the Bahamas, had it hauled to Rum Row in chartered ships, and then brought it ashore in his own speedboats.

Policemen, out to make some easy money, were known to have helped out in unloading the boats.

Adonis tells a story about these days. The president of a bank, in whose institution he kept his funds, took an interest in him and kept after him to "go straight." Adonis, so he says now, didn't think that what he was doing was so heinous, considering how people felt about the Volstead Act; but just to please the banker, he bought $20,000 worth of securities. Then came the depression. The bank closed its doors, and the president shot and killed himself. Joe A., with a grim smile, recalls that the value of his securities fell from $20,000 to $2000.

Adonis had, from time to time, bankrolled floating crap games; that is, games that would be staged in one place one night, and in another the next. With repeal, he went in for gambling in a big way, and became a familiar figure in Florida. He still goes down there in the season, and does not try very hard to discourage the idea that a large part of his "earnings" come from there—specifically, from Broward County, the rich area just north of Miami that includes Hollywood and Fort Lauderdale.

Doesn't Mind Kingpin Title

Dan Sullivan, former FBI agent, now director of the Crime Commission of Greater Miami, referred to Adonis last year as the "kingpin" of gambling in Broward County.

True or not, Joe A. wouldn't mind having that said of him. He thinks he has a better right to have a good conscience than those who are responsible for legalized horse-racing. Hialeah, Belmont, Pimlico—these and other tracks from which the State gets its cut, Joe says, will take a man's last $2, even when it is part of the rent money. He says that his gambling houses try to be more particular.

Adonis moved out of Brooklyn and settled in New Jersey after a long period of harrassment by the late Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia.

He and his wife, with their three children, live in a handsome brick house in Palisades, N. J., just south of the George Washington Bridge that leads to New York City. They have three servants.

Joe talks about getting out of gambling and giving full time to his legitimate interests, but somehow he never does.

(Tomorrow: Frank Erickson is Croesus of underworld.)

New Orleans Mayor Urges War on Gamblers

Cleveland, Nov. 30 (U.P.).—Mayor de Lesseps S. Morrison, the crusading head of New Orleans city government, today called for war on gamblers who attempt to control American cities.

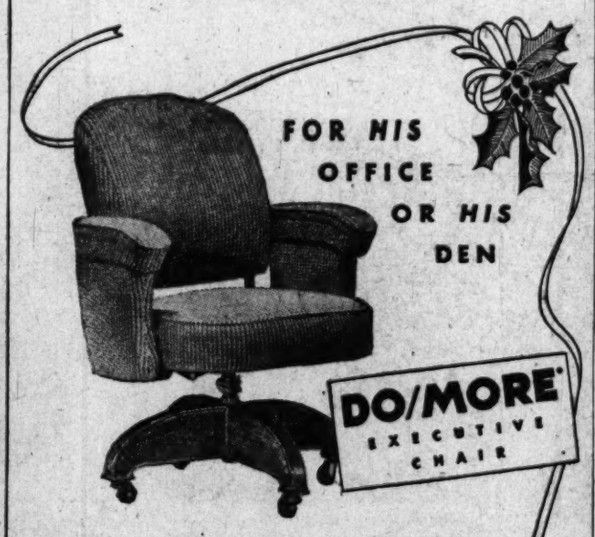
The man who drove slot machines out of his city called on more than 500 mayors, city managers and other civic officials to combat gambling and racket influences in their bailiwicks to "prove to the world that strong local government serves the people best."

Morrison, president of the American Municipal Association, formally opened the 1949 session of the group here. His plea for all-out war on gamblers was echoed by Mayor Fletcher Bowron of Los Angeles, a past president of the AMA.

Bowron suggested a "syndicate of cities to fight Nation-wide syndicates of crime." He added that individual police departments are confronted with a "difficult task" in trying to fight "powerful, far-flung crime organizations."

In an informal discussion aside from regular AMA business, Bowron proposed that cities get together through "some sort of central clearing-house for gathering and disseminating information about such syndicates."

Morrison, who has jousted with the Louisana gang which, it is alleged, is controlled by Frank Costello, so-called overlord of the underworld, told the mayors, "Gambling influence in muncipal government is an unpleasant business. We must combat it all the way."



Here is the Christmas gift any man will genuinely appreciate. In his office it will provide luxurious sitting comfort every business day throughout the year. In his den it will add extra pleasure and pride in appearance to those other possessions he can call "his own."

FTC Opens 30 Cases For Reargument

The Federal Trade Commission, with two new members and one vacancy in its five-man setup, is going to give about 30 defendants a chance to reargue their case.

All of them were heard previously by a five-man commission of which three members—a majority—are now gone.

The commission feels that because of this change it is only fair to grant the defendants a new hearing if they wish.

Several of the cases were heard two and almost three years ago. Among those heard in 1947, and in which the FTC has not yet acted, are:

Philip Morris & Co., Ltd. Inc., of New York, charged with misrepresentation in the sale of cigarettes and smoking tobacco.

Carter Products, Inc., New York, charged with dissemination of false advertising about Carter's Little Liver Pills.

Carpel Frosted Foods, Inc., Washington, charged with violation of the Robinson-Patman Act in selling its products.

Five cosmetic companies, all charged with Robinson-Patman Act violations in connection with furnishing cosmetic demonstrators to retailers: Elmo, Inc., of Philadelphia; Charles of the Ritz, Inc., New York; Primrose House, Inc., New York; Coty, Inc., New York; and Bourjois, Inc., of New York.

The three former members were Robert E. Frear, who resigned December 31, 1948; Garland S. Ferguson, who retired when not reappointed November 15, 1948, and Ewin L. Davis, who died a month ago.

The new members are John J. Carson, who took office September 28, and former Senator James M. Mead (D., N. Y.), November 16.

Japanese Move to Free Trade

Tokyo, Nov. 30 (AP).—Japan took a long step today toward restoring foreign trade to private hands.

The House of Councillors finally approved the foreign exchange and trade control law. General MacArthur said the action means Japan will put exports on a private basis starting Friday.

The law passed by the lower house Sunday, permits exporters to handle their transactions directly with authorized banks in accordance with normal commercial practice.

The government is preparing detailed plans to put imports on a private basis by January 1.

Until now exporters have had to go through dozens of occupation headquarters and Japanese government sections.

FEPC Move Fails at Parley On State Labor Legislation

The Conference on State Labor Legislation yesterday went on record in favor of a $1-an-hour minimum wage, but defeated a move for fair employment practices legislation.

The Committee of Employment Opportunities proposed in its report:

"The committee recognizes that minority workers do not now have adequate job opportunities in certain occupations and fields of work, and that increased effort needs to be concentrated in opening up job opportunities for such workers.

Sanford Bolz, of Washington, representing the American Jewish Congress, unexpectedly offered an amendment as follows:

"It is recommended that fair employment practices legislation be enacted at the municipal, state and national levels, to the extent necessary to open up and secure such job opportunities for such workers.

The amendment was defeated, 43 to 39.

Train Hits Auto

Annapolis, Md., Nov 3 (AP).—A Baltimore & Annapolis train collided with an automobile at Revell, 4 miles north of here today, but no one was injured.

The Annapolis-bound train was delayed five minutes after the accident. One side of the car, driven by Mrs. Leonard M. Bahr of Elkridge, was smashed.

Tidelands Search

Trip to Spain Kept Secret By Poage

By Robert S. Allen

One recent congressional visit to Spain was very carefully not publicized.

The junketeer was Representative W. R. Poage (D., Tex.), member of the House Agriculture Committee.

Poage's trip to Spain had nothing to do with either agriculture or getting a big United States handout for Dictator Franco, the usual motive for these sorties. It was in behalf of the interests trying to wrest control of the great Texas tideland oil resources from the Federal Government.

Poage went to Europe as a United States representative to the Inter-Parliamentary Union Conference at Stockholm. After this meeting he quietly journeyed to Seville.

There, Poage sought documents to support Texas claims that it, and not the Federal Government, owns the oil-rich tidelands off the Gulf Coast.

Poage's trip has just come to light as a result of a letter he wrote Dr. Ernest R. Bartley, assistant professor of political science at the University of Florida. He is making a study of tideland ownership. In this letter, Poage states:

"All land claims of Texas go back to the King of Spain, and come through the Republic of Mexico and the Republic of Texas. There is no way whereby anyone can possibly have acquired title to land in Texas except through one of these sources. All the land in the present State of Texas was owned either individually or by the Republic of Texas at the time Texas became a part of the United States."

U. S. Legal Officers Form Federal Bar Subcommittee

A special subcommittee of the Federal Bar Associatibn, to consist of all the chief legal officers of the Government, was formed yesterday at a luncheon meeting in the Attorney General's office.

Frank J. Delany, solicitor of the Postoffice Department, was appointed chairman of the new subcommittee, to be known as the Committee of General Counsel of the FBA.

The new group will suggest improvements in the Government's legal procedures. Membership is expected to reach 50. Forty-five persons, including Attorney General J. Howard McGrath, were present at the organization luncheon.

White House Relics May Go to Voters

Nearly a million White House souvenirs, including 500,000 bricks, may be given to members of Congress for distribution.

No decision has been reached but members and officials of the Commission on the Renovation of the Executive Mansion feel this will be the best way to dispose of souvenirs to be removed when the wrecking starts, probably next week.

Congress ruled out "commercial exploitation" of the souvenirs but said the commission could sell or otherwise distribute materials not to be replaced.

Weeks ago the commission tentatively agreed that schools, universities, museums, historic societies and other patriotic organizations should be given some of the White House souvenirs. They probably will get such items as mantles, doors, large pieces of moulding and decorations.

But about a half million bricks and the smaller bits of woodwork, metal, stone and plaster which are obviously not White House souvenirs without corroborative evidence pose a problem.

Who Said Frostbite . . .?

The Washington Post

REGATTA QUEEN CANDIDATES—Here are five of the six candidates for queen of the 1949 Frostbite Regatta, sponsored jointly by George Washington, Georgetown and Maryland Universities. They are (from left) Marie DiMaio, 19, of Strong Hall; Marty Gelly, 19, of 307 Foxhall rd. nw., both G. W. U. students; Joan Breen, 18, Immaculata Junior College freshman from Scarsdale, N. Y.; Mary Elizabeth Craig, 20, of 5209 42d ave., Hyattsville, Md., and Linda Newbaker, 17, of Easton, Md., both Maryland coeds. The Frostbite Regatta is scheduled for Saturday and Sunday. The winner will be named Saturday at 2 p. m., at Corinthian Yacht Club. The sixth candidate is Jeanette Monroy, 20, a sophomore at Georgetown Visitation Convent, from Puerto Rico

IUE Delegates Near Founding Session's End

Philadelphia, Nov. 30 (AP).—In perfect harmony, the 400 delegates to the founding convention of the CIO's International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union today began adopting a provisional constitution and pushed toward adjournment.

Absence of discord, an almost complete by-passing of social activities and a glued-to-the-seat attention to business have made it possible for the delegates to get their jobs done sooner than expected.

It seems almost certain the session will end Thursday.

Secretary of the Navy Francis P. Matthews had been scheduled to talk today. But foggy weather made it impossible for him to fly here from Washington. Still on the program were addresses by Secretary of Labor Maurice Tobin and Secretary of the Air Force W. Stuart Symington.

Tobin congratulated the IUE for its anti-Communist stand. The new union came into being early this month when the CIO expelled the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, on charges of Communist domination.

Among chief sections of the provisional constitution yet to be adopted are those dealing with the time for the first election of officers and with their salaries.

Because of legal and other hindrances that the UE has placed in the path of the IUE, the administrative committee of the new union has recommended the first selection of officers be postponed until labor board elections determine an actual membership.

At the moment, the IUE claims to represent approximately a quarter-million workers. This is hotly disputed by the UE, which contends, among other things, that many actions taken thus far by the new union are illegal.

31-Year Limit Put On Policewomen's Age

Reduction of the maximum age limit for policewomen from 33 to 31 was announced yesterday by the District Commissioners. The limit had been advanced last year when it became difficult to fill vacancies.

The Commissioners recently took the same action in regard to policemen after Supt. Robert J. Barrett reported he could fill vacancies under the old age limit.

World Labor Outfit Runs Into Trouble

London, Nov. 30, (U.P.).—A move to enroll the Christian Trade Union (Catholic) movement of three million members in the new anti-Communist free labor international organization struck a snag today.

The conference approved a recommendation by the credentials committee that the Christian movement be invited to participate with full rights—but on condition it adopt the principle of affiliation with only one international organization.

That amounted to asking it to abandon the Christian International with headquarters at The Hague. It is not believed that the Belgian or Dutch Christian unions will accept.

The credential committee's recommendation was a compromise between an American-sponsored move for their unconditional participation and opposition from European Socialist trade unionists, particularly from Holland and Belgium where the Catholic groups are their chief rivals.

Only the French Christian trade unions are represented at the conference—others were not invited because of objections from their respective national trade union centers.

Both the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations urged inclusion of all Christian movements to strengthen the anti-Communist front. The new organization is being formed as an answer to the Communist-dominated World Federation of Trade Unions.

Walter Reuther, vice president of the CIO and president of the United Auto Workers, said that if the conference had a positive and aggressive social policy, it would be more important than the United Nations debates on the East-West conflict.

Stalingrad Costly

London, Nov. 30 (U.P.).—Radio Moscow said today that Stalingrad has again become a major industrial center after more than 2,500,000,000 rubles (about $472,000,000) were spent on its reconstruction.

Harry Bridges Lawyer Gets Kind Words

San Francisco, Nov. 30 (AP).—Defense Attorney Vincent Hallinan got a personal compliment but apparently little useful testimony in cross-examining a Government witness at the Harry Bridges perjury trial today.

Hallinan scarcely mentioned previous testimony by John Schomaker—that Bridges, CIO longshoremen's leader, had been a dues-paying Communist. Instead, he wanted to know what was said at Schomaker's numerous conferences with Government agents and attorneys. At one point Hallinan asked "exactly what did you talk about?"

Schomaker replied:

"Well, one thing I'll tell you. They said this Mr. Hallinan is a pretty smart boy."

Bridges, born in Australia, is charged with perjury and conspiracy with two fellow union officers in denying he was a Communist when he applied for citizenship papers in 1945.

At the noon recess, Hallinan said he planned to keep Schomaker on the stand, "until we show what the true picture is."

Schomaker has described himself as a former Communist. He has testified for the Government that he was present in 1933 when Bridges was given an application to join the Communist Party and that the application was then given to Sam Darcy, described by the witness as Communist Party head in this area.

Hallinan wanted to know what prosecution attorneys said to Schomaker on November 18 when the defense attorney was opening his case.

"What did you talk about?" Hallinan asked. "Weren't they prompting you, telling you what to say?"

Schomaker answered, "Mr. Paisley said that man sure can talk." (William Paisley is the chief trial attorney for the Justice Department.)

Truman Hears Strike News, Swims, Walks

Key West, Fla., Nov. 30 (AP).—President Truman, aside from watching developments in the threatened coal strike, went swimming, sunbathing and walking today.

And Margaret, his daughter, walked with him on the one-mile stroll to the enlisted men's beach. She rode over yesterday, but humored her dad today, moving along beside him in slacks and blouse.

It was the second walk of the day for the President. Up at 6:30 a. m., he read the papers, then strolled around the naval submarine station for about 30 minutes. He looked in on the new chapel under construction here.

Margaret reported she had not yet received a cabled offer to sing in a London musical review. And, White House intimates said she would not accept the $1400 weekly offer when it came.

The President, watching his diet as best he can, ate a hot cereal for breakfast. He is trying to get down to 175 or below. Weighing 167 when he entered the White House, he hit 180 recently.

Freshman Missing From Md. U. Is Located in Florence, S. C.

THOMAS R. GRABILL
Went a courtin'

Mount Airy, Md., Nov. 30 (AP).—Thomas R. Grabill, 20-year-old Maryland University freshman who disappeared last Sunday after visiting his girl friend, has been located at Florence, S. C., Maryland State Police reported today.

They said he was driving his father's automobile when he was picked up and that he apparently made the trip of his own free will. Friends of the family said his father was on his way to Florence to bring him home.

Word that Grabill has been found halted a 13-State search. Police had been searching roadside ditches throughout this area on the possibility he had been robbed by a hitchhiker. The youth was said to have had about $50 when he disappeared.

Maryland police said Florence officials stopped Grabill because his father's car had been reported stolen.

The youth failed to return home Sunday after visiting a friend, Dorothy Fox, of Lutherville, Md. She told police that Grabill assured her he was going home to catch up on some studies.

Elderly Couple Robbed Of $40 at Gunpoint

Police yesterday were searching for two thugs who entered the home of an elderly couple and robbed them of $40 at gunpoint.

West Lacey, 81, and his wife, Mrs. Octavia Lacey, 64, told police the bandits forced their way into their home at 4407 Lane pl. ne. at 9:30 p. m. Tuesday.

They said the thugs, both six feet tall, herded them into a corner with a revolver, then took two $20 bills from Mrs. Lacey's pocketbook which was lying on a dresser and fled.

Hang Your Clothes . . .

Secretary Acheson's statement on the Nationalist blockade reminds us of the old admonition, "Hang your clothes on a hickory limb but don't go near the water." This Government has refused to recognize the legality of the blockade, but at the same time it has deprecated the maintenance of any American trade with the blockaded ports. What does all this amount to? American rights at sea in carrying legitimate commerce are being assailed by the molestation to which they have been subjected by Nationalist vessels. In each case American official protests have been made to the Nationalist authorities, so that the interests of the United States in the matter of claims for damage have been preserved. However, by trying to keep American shipping away from the blockaded ports, this Government in effect is helping to make the Nationalist blockade effective, for without foreign acquiescence the blockade would be more or less a paper one.

This course of conduct amounts to the maintenance of the policy of taking sides in the present internal conflict in China—now approaching a finale. It is our view that the sooner this policy is liquidated, the better. In our Civil War the British gave the Confederacy the rights of a belligerent, and ran the blockade of the Southern ports which was laid down by the Northerners. The British in every way protected their own flag when it was flying over vessels engaged in legitimate trading with the Confederacy. It seems to us that wherever ships are allowed to fly the American flag on the high seas, they should be protected. This may seem to be just a matter of "face"—the concept against which Mr. Acheson inveighed yesterday; it appears to us, on the contrary, to be an assertion of American rights under international law.

By this course of conduct the United States could disengage itself from the confusion in which it is now embroiled in China, and that is the first essential in dealing with the new China which is now emerging. To be sure, what is tantamount to American support of the Nationalist blockade, in spite of the formal refusal to recognize it, may be hurting the Communists somewhat—in the sense of slowing down their consolidation—but the price is very heavy in terms of America's Far Eastern policy. Indeed, there is no policy worthy of the word in rearguard actions the only effect of which is to back the Communists into Russian arms.

California Overrun

Governor Warren of California has called a conference to discuss plans for handling the State's unemployment problem. At present, seasonal demands for agricultural workers have reduced the numbers of unemployed to 318,000, but the State employment director forecasts a rise to 600,000 by next March, the peak unemployment month, as compared with 531,000 last March.

California's trouble is not due to an absolute shortage of jobs; it is rather the result of a war-stimulated expansion of the working population that is being constantly augmented by westward migration. Governor Warren says that during the last year or so the number of people entering the State just about equals the increase in the number of the unemployed. In other words, California has reached the limit of its capacity to create jobs for newcomers. A major purpose of the coming conference is to devise plans for the development of local industries that will create more jobs and permit the State to grow and prosper at the same time.

California's population has increased nearly 54 percent since 1940, while the increase for the country as a whole has been only 12.4 percent. The variations in the rate of growth by States and regions during the past decade are, indeed, startling. Most of the Middle Western and Southern States show limited population gains far below the national average. The New England States (with the exception of Connecticut), New York and Pennsylvania, have also had a less-than-average increase, while Mississippi, Oklahoma, Nebraska, North Dakota and Montana actually have fewer residents than in 1940. On the other hand, the population gains of Ohio, Indiana and Michigan range from more than 15 to 20 percent. If these figures were broken down, they would present an even more chaotic picture of population changes.

This uneven growth, largely due to mass migration of workers during the war years, has given rise to problems that can no longer be ignored. States in the position of California, confronted by the menace of chronic unemployment, are beginning to realize that they must either take aggressive steps to adjust their economies to the changed demands of the postwar era or else discourage inward migration of jobseekers.

Neglected Civil Defense

Perhaps the first lesson to be derived from the advent of the Russian atomic bomb is the necessity for immediate civil defense planning in this country. In no way does this mean that a war is imminent; it does mean, however, that if war came American cities would be likely to feel it. Yet, as the old saying goes about the weather, everyone talks about civil defense but no one does anything about it. The status of civil defense planning is about where it was a year ago.

This fact is the more deplorable because it has been a full year since the appearance of the Hopley report on Civil Defense for National Security. This report, prepared by the now defunct Office of Civil Defense Planning, did a good job of outlining the task as principally a community and State responsibility with Federal coordination. Sadly enough, however, the prospectus was coldly received and its author, Russell J. Hopley, has since died. By decision of the President, civil defense planning was made a function of the National Security Resources Board, which has been leaderless since last December.

The principal criticism that can be made of the Hopley report is that it neglected to provide for sufficient guidance from the military establishment on what sort of attack cities should expect. Horatio Bond, chief engineer of the National Fire Protective Association, analyzes the report in the November issue of the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists. He emphasizes the lack of information about the weapons that might be used against cities; he also cites the possibilities for waste of manpower and the necessity for a presidential statement on how far civil defense organization should go at this time. He makes clear the distinction between civil defense and internal security: civil defense is essentially a job of self-help in the event of attack in which communities can expect no assistance from the military.

Some of the Administration's dissatisfaction with the Hopley report undoubtedly stems from the recommendation that civil defense authorities report to the Secretary of Defense. That, of course, would be an anomaly; for although close liaison with the military is essential, civil defense implies nonmilitary activity. The President has recognized this by placing civil defense under the National Security Resources Board. Accordingly he ought to follow through by appointing a qualified civilian director. The first task is to get a civil defense organization in being; with vigorous direction it should be able to command necessary guidance from the military. Both the need to start civil defense rolling and the larger need to appoint a competent chairman of the NSRB ought to persuade the President that he can delay no longer without imperiling the national security.

Tito And The Cominform

So far as Stalinist policies or tactics are concerned, the communique issued by the Cominform after its recent secret meeting in Hungary contains nothing new. It is merely the familiar incantation against Anglo-American imperialist warmongers, reactionary labor leaders, Social Democratic politicians, and the usual exhortation to the workers to confound these sinister forces by defeating the Marshall Plan. The real importance of the communique, therefore, lies in its formal recognition of Titoism as a formidable influence within the Communist Party outside of Russia.

> The agents of the Tito clique [says the Cominform] are today acting as the bitterest splitters in the ranks of the working class and democratic movements and are carrying out the will of the American imperialists. For this reason a decisive struggle is necessary against the intrigues of these agents, wherever they try to work in workers' and democratic organizations . . . The Yugoslav traitors have made it their task to create political bands of reactionary nationalists, clerical and Fascist elements in the countries of peoples' democracy in order, with their support, to bring about a counter-revolutionary coup in these countries, wrench them away from the Soviet Union and the entire Socialist camp and subordinate them to the forces of imperialism.

We must infer from this that the example of Marshal Tito's rebellion against the Kremlin has had a much more powerful influence in the other satellite countries than has hitherto been acknowledged or even suspected. It seems to follow that the present conflict between Moscow and Belgrade is being watched with intense interest by Communists everywhere and that many of them are attempting to decide on which side to align themselves. This danger to the celebrated monolithic unity of the party will continue as long as Tito remains in power. For this reason the Cominform commands all Communists to assist in his overthrow.

> It is the duty of the Communist and workers' parties to give the utmost assistance to the Yugoslav working class and working peasantry who are fighting for Yugoslavia's return to the camp of democracy and socialism.

The communique strongly hints at the existence of some tacit collaboration between the Titoist and the Catholic opposition in some of the satellite countries. This seems to explain the passage relating to the need of bringing Catholic workers into conformity with the party line and the Cominform's emphasis on the point that "religious convictions are not an obstacle to working class unity, particularly when this unity is needed to have peace." But whether this may also be construed as an offer of temporary truce to the Catholic leadership in the countries where persecutions have been in progress is more than doubtful.

Legislative Folly

Another attempt to promote security by the infringement of freedom has been struck down on constitutional grounds. In New York, Justice Harry E. Schirick of the State Supreme Court declared that an act designed to bar "subversives" from employment in the public schools was invalid on the ground that it amounted to a bill of attainder, that it abridged freedom of speech and inflicted punishment without due process of law. It was, therefore, violative of the constitution of New York and the Constitution of the United States alike.

In essential character, this New York statute was comparable to the Ober law recently struck down by a Maryland court and to the New Jersey loyalty oath law invalidated a month ago by an appellate court of that State. This is to say that it sought to punish Communists or persons suspected of being Communists by barring them from certain public positions. The New York law required the Board of Regents to promulgate a list of "subversive" organizations, membership in which would constitute "prima facie evidence of disqualification" for employment in the public schools.

The most casual reader of the Constitution of the United States could scarcely fail to see that such legislation is inimical to its essential spirit. But a great many frightened or hysterical legislators, including some in the United States Congress, seem quite disposed to disregard the spirit of the Constitution. State and Federal courts alike have done invaluable work in safeguarding civil liberties. But there is a limit to the protection courts can provide against legislative folly. The legislatures themselves owe a respect to the Constitution and to American traditions and to the dictates of common sense.

Bewildering Mr. Taft

In the process of beating the bushes of Ohio for votes more than a year before the 1950 election, Senator Taft lately got off his chest some outspoken dicta about the United Nations and the allegedly egregious errors of American foreign policy. The address seems to us notable as an example of how muddled an able and usually clear-headed Senator may become when he wanders outside those fields in which his chief interests lie. It is all too obvious that the Senator is trying to squirm off the isolationist hook, but in doing so he flops into an abyss in which confusion seems to be worse confounded.

His main suggestion in speaking to the Toledo United Nations Association was that the time has come, or is rapidly approaching, for a convention to revise the U. N. Charter. Now the Senator knows that there is no possibility of revising the Charter in a way that would be displeasing to Russia, for the Soviet would always veto such changes. He attempts to leap over this barrier by saying that if Russia blocks "a satisfactory amendment, then perhaps we can revise the Atlantic Pact and the 'Rio Treaty' to set up some organization closer to the ideals of justice and peace." But the effect of such a maneuver would be to destroy the U. N., for a new American-sponsored peace agency could not hope to attract all the non-Communist members from the U. N. We should have two rival peace organizations, with the repudiated U. N. entitled to use of the headquarters now being erected in New York.

To this illogical gesture Senator Taft adds a declaration in favor of a Monroe Doctrine for western Europe. In other words, he would have the United States announce its intention to defend western Europe, with no reciprocal obligation on the part of the countries thus benefited. Such an arrangement would inevitably suggest an American wardship over western Europe—the antithesis of a cooperative society of nations such as the U. N. It would give us the same obligations we now have toward western Europe, but would require us to do all the fighting if Europe should again be invaded. The Senator prefers this flimsy scheme to the North Atlantic Pact, which he opposed in the Senate; yet, if his proposed revision of the U. N. were successful at all, it would probably give us something about like the North Atlantic Pact. In other words, in one breath he doesn't want allies; in another, he does.

Ohio voters may well ask Mr. Taft in what direction he is traveling. In any event, his speech indicates overwhelming confidence in his standing with his constituents. Otherwise we cannot imagine him subjecting them to such befuddlement.

APPLE WOMAN

She placed her polished wares in shining tiers;
Each apple-cheek was rose and spicy-sweet,
But hers were withered with the passing years—
She was the oldest thing upon the street:
She was the oldest thing, and yet she held
The whole of all lost Aprils that we know.
"Apples!" she cried, and all her language smelled
Of orchards drifted white with apple snow.
"Apples!" she cried, and every word was cool
As murky cellars heaped with fragrant piles
Of russet fruit, where children home from school
Painted their lips with apple juice and smiles.
She was the oldest thing . . . Yet only she
On all the street brought back my youth to me.

Fraternity Influence

In regard to Malvina Lindsay's article, "New Crop of Leaders, Campus Prospects," in your issue of November 26, there is more to be said. The "creative minority" which is supposedly compensating for the appalling lack of political leaders emanating from our schools of higher education is rather a "creative exiguity."

What more can we expect from campuses which are dominated by fraternities? What more can we expect from these exclusive circles which laud the virtues of infantile football fanaticism; agility in the art of becoming inebriated; faculty for amassing the most numerous "dates" per week; developing "contacts" which will result in postgraduate positions with high pecuniary value; and, adeptness at balancing academic activities with social flips to the end that the latter predominate.

The National Interfraternity Conference divulged some interesting figures in respect to the correlation of high scholastic achievements and fraternal participation. It is not strange that out of 2027 chapters, only 803 were equal to or above the all-men's average in their respective colleges in the 1947-48 academic year. Nor is it peculiar that, with 1224 below that average the worst are yet to be uncovered.

From this statistical information one might safely surmise that fraternity influence on the campuses is designed—unconsciously though it be—to turn out an indefinite number of standardized individuals of safe mediocrity who can be relied upon not to engage in too much thinking.

Local Gamblers

In your November 27 issue I saw the first of a series of articles telling of big national gambling and other underworld activities. In the next column was a story about one set of local gambling defendants being at least temporarily freed by a "hung" jury. Your article quoted a defense attorney to the effect that he was going to show the defendants were guilty in Maryland, but not in D. C.—or at least that the evidence showed that.

Now, I am a little puzzled; what has the great friend of the people, the fearless, crusading Washington Post, done about this local situation? Is lawbreaking terrible in New York as your big series probably will prove? But is it not so bad here? Well, the defendants are pretty nice guys, good neighbors, help the poor, maybe even go to church, so let's forget a few trifling irregularities such as the 14 million dollars gross take yearly the newspapers assert the one set of defendants handles.

What do you think the old New York World, St. Louis Post Dispatch, the old St. Louis Star might have done under like circumstances? Please cite me one big issue The Washington Post or any other Washington paper has consistently championed for the great majority of your readers against the selfish interests of big advertisers.

Bolling Field Menace

Recently, 55 passengers in a commercial airplane were killed at the National Airport largely because of poorly controlled air traffic. Steps are now being considered to protect against such accidents in the future. At the same time, steps might also be taken to protect the lives of citizens of Washington who live near Bolling Field and the Naval Air Station. Tenants of the apartments near these fields live in constant fear of their lives, due to the low-flying planes about to land.

On November 25, a B-17 skimmed the rooftops of some of these apartments and tore two 4000-volt transmission lines, cutting off the power to a large section of that area. A witness claimed the plane narrowly missed hitting one of the apartments.

Other locations for these air fields such as Andrews Field or the Patuxent Naval Air Station can no doubt be found. Immediate action must be taken to end this hazard to the safety of Washingtonians living near these fields.

"Distorted Art"

The gentleman who wrote about "distorted art" on November 24 is being most ridiculously unjust to the men and women of the painters' profession. Mr. Burr invents his own quarrel—that the old masters are superior to present-day painters.

To prove his point, he asks us to look at a collection of truly inspiring masterpieces, painted 300 years ago, already picked over by generations of art critics of sound taste, weeded out many times, and tried by time. Then he asks us to compare this to a very uneven regional show—some of the paintings of which show promise, in all sincerity, but none which has even started to have the chance to stand up to any rigid test of immortality.

If he wants to make a just comparison, let him dig up a regional show for any one year about 300 years ago from the long forgotten ash heaps of some town in Austria. Or let him compare the masters of yesterday (who have the advantage of the censorship of time) with the masters of today.

This gentleman couldn't possibly question the honesty of emotion and intellect of present-day painters. Since no painter makes a living at his profession these days, why should he paint anything other than that which he truly feels and believes? What seems to bother our "comparing" friend is the change of subject matter since 300 years ago. Could he, perhaps, change the pace of the world so that the artists now would have more placid emotion to convey?

"Ghosts In The Closet"

Referring to your November 26 editorial, relative to the case of one of the four attorneys disbarred by the Patent Office, and the recent opinion of the Supreme Court affirming the disbarment, it is surprising to find that the dissenting opinion treats the offense as "ghost writing." The disbarment of the four attorneys was not caused by an attorney getting some one to write an article and using that as part of his argument.

What actually happened was that one of the four disbarred attorneys wrote an article himself, and after having one union president refuse to sponsor it, induced another union president to sign it and have it published in a trade journal under the title "Introduction of Automatic Glass Working Machinery: How Received by Organized Labor," purposely concealing the fact that he did not write it but that it was written by an attorney trying to obtain a patent. Then another of the four attorneys who had collaborated in the preparation of the article used it to secure the withdrawal of the rejection of a patent application, referring to the alleged author, the union president, as a "reluctant witness."

If notwithstanding labor's strong opposition to the use of automatic machines to take the place of hand labor, a union's president publishes a signed article in a trade journal referring to a certain machine in a laudatory manner, the Patent Office would naturally be influenced by such unbiased opinion. Actually this resulted in the withdrawal of the rejection and the grant of the patent.

As the result of an infringement suit under that patent, one defendant had to pay one million dollars. Later, the union president requested $10,000 from the attorney who induced him to sign and publish that article, and actually received $8000—paid in cash, not by check.

It should be noted that before the Patent Office took any action on disbarment, the Supreme Court itself in an independent suit handed down opinions which were unanimous in characterizing the procedure above outlined "as a fraud on the Patent Office and the Federal courts." It was because of this drastic action of the Supreme Court that the Patent Office issued the order for the four attorneys to "show cause" why they should not be disbarred.

In view of the fact that in the current opinion six of the eight Supreme Court Justices decided that "we are satisfied that the findings (of the Patent Office) were amply supported" and that the charge of unfairness is "wholly without support," it is difficult to see how this can be mere "ghost writing."

Doughton's "Able Age"

(From the Salisbury (N. C.) Post)

We nominate for the boner of the year The Washington Post's suggestion that 86-year-old Robert L. Doughton resign his position of chairman of the powerful House Ways and Means Committee.

Why, in the name of George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Alexander Hamilton, Robert E. Lee, U. S. Grant, Warren Harding, Cucumber Coolidge, Franklin Roosevelt, and The Washington Post should he resign?

Because he is 86 years old?

Phooey on The Washington Post.

Thomas Parr, born in 1483 and buried in Westminster Abbey in 1635, is still commemorated in a brand of potable the editors of The Washington Post can buy today in any of Washington's better bars.

The age of 152 years didn't keep Thomas Parr from immortality, it earned it for him.

Maybe Bob Doughton, teetotaler, agrarian, and bedrock American patriot, is headed for a comparable accumulation of birthdays with some other kind of immortality.

But that is beside the point.

What is to the point is that Doughton, up to this minute, remains the most distinguished, the most able, and the most unmistakably American chief who has ever headed the Ways and Means Committee in the House, and any suggestion from any source that he relinquish that position strikes us as asinine.

World Law Test for U. S.

By Malvina Lindsay

Stand On Genocide

"GENOCIDE" is a new word and it means little or nothing to the average American. Mention of it likely bores him. Yet every day it comes closer into his life.

A hearing on a world treaty to outlaw genocide (mass destruction of a human group) is scheduled for January in America's house of glass, the Senate. The world will watch, listen and judge. Will straightforward action follow, or will ratification of the treaty, adopted by the General Assembly of the United Nations, a year ago, be delayed, sidetracked by legal quibbling? Do we mean what we say about our humanitarian leadership, our commitment to world law and order? Or have we just been talking?

New waves of genocide are reported in eastern Europe and parts of Asia. Latvians, Lithuanians, Estonians are being deported to Siberia because of anti-Soviet views. Baltic states have appealed to the United Nations for protection. A British delegate in the United Nations has accused the Soviet Union of forcing the migration of one and a half million inhabitants of small Soviet republics. Jews are being killed in new pogroms. Genocide did not end with Hitler's extermination of six million Jews and three million Poles.

EVEN IN this country fellow travelers of the genocidists still snarl angry generalizations as "So and So's are all alike"—reminiscent of "The only good Injun is a dead Injun." And the American taxpayer continues to dig into his pocket to pay for the effects of genocide—to rehabilitate survivors of mass killings and deportations, to feed hungry children whose parents were murdered because they were part of some racial, religious, national or ethnic group, and even to pay for war itself, of which genocide is often the prologue.

Yet as the time approaches when this country will have to take a stand on the first international legislative act to come out of the United Nations, there is much ignorance and misinformation about the genocide treaty. Though all major religious and labor groups and many important organizations have indorsed it, a large proportion of citizens do not realize its great significance. Moreover, chauvinists have seized on it to build a "loss of sovereignty" hobgoblin.

The United States led in getting the genocide convention adopted by the United Nations. Several smaller nations have ratified, including Ecuador, which did so in the midst of an earthquake. When 20 nations ratify the treaty it becomes effective.

American opposition has been largely based on the premise that the treaty would become the supreme law of the land automatically when adopted. However, it requires implementation through domestic legislation, which would have to be enacted by nations in accordance with their constitutions.

SUGGESTED reservations for taking care of constitutional questions that might be raised in this country were included in a proposal presented to the House of Delegates of the American Bar Association last September by a committee headed by Charles W. Tillett, chairman of the section of international and comparative law. The House of Delegates adopted a compromise proposal leaving final action open, and it strongly denounced genocide as an "abhorrent crime."

Misunderstanding of the treaty has developed because some Americans have confused genocide with discrimination. However, as Dr. Raphael Lemkin, father and zealous proponent of the genocide convention, says, "the inmates of Dachau and Auschwitz know the difference best."

American indifference is the big hurdle the genocide treaty has to take. For no one here can know its meaning as does Dr. Lemkin, now a professor of international law at Yale University. As a boy in Poland he was so appalled by the mass slaughters he witnessed that he decided to become a lawyer and work for national and international legislation to outlaw such crimes. Eventually he became public prosecutor of Warsaw. As a Polish army officer he was wounded in the siege of Warsaw and saw his family destroyed by Nazis and Communists.

Escaping to this country he served as adviser to the American General Staff, later collected evidence of genocide for the Nuernberg trials. He drafted the genocide convention for the United Nations and coined the word describing it. He is now dedicating his life to the adoption of what he describes as "the most humanitarian of all treaties, one which says tyrannical governments have no right to kill off their citizens as a farmer would his chickens."

Transit Radio Ads

"Double double toil and trouble—there is no toil or trouble in making a loan from either of these two loan companies" . . . so spoke the radio announcer over the loud speaker in the Friendship Heights streetcar the other morning. I nearly rose in my seat to add, "No, my fellow passengers, the toil and trouble comes in when you pay the interest and try to repay the loan!" This kind of advertising is the outstanding reason why I am opposed to radio programs on streetcars and buses.

Churchill's Hold

By Marquis Childs

Empire Or European Union?

LONDON.—In a characteristic passage in his autobiographical work, My Early Life, Winston Churchill describes one of the great adventures of his young days. That was the cavalry charge at the Battle of Omdurman in the Sudan, one of the last occasions in history when horses and riders charged across the desert in mortal combat with the Arab foe.

"In one respect," Churchill wrote, "a cavalry charge is very like ordinary life. So long as you are all right, firmly in your saddle, your horse in hand, and well armed, lots of enemies will give you a wide berth. But as soon as you have lost a stirrup, have a rein cut, have dropped your weapon, are wounded, or your horse is wounded, then is the moment when from all quarters enemies rush upon you."

Embarking on his seventy-sixth year Churchill is still charging at his enemies with the same daring, the same impetuosity and personal courage. The enemy is socialism, the Labor Party, regimentation. Against these foes the fire and passion of old are directed.

Among many of the younger leaders of the Conservative Party, however, there are serious doubts as to whether this fire and passion out of the past are the proper tactic for the present. Churchill is unpredictable, tempestuous, a law unto himself. And with that temperament he leaves a great deal to be desired as the leader of one of Britain's two major parties in these troubled times.

IT GOES without saying that such doubts are never expressed publicly. Churchill is a monument, the living embodiment of history. So long as he wants to he may go on being the leader of the Conservative Party, and there is not the slightest indication that he intends to give over the reins.

He is too shrewd a politician not to sense the misgivings of some of the men around him. He may even enjoy making them squirm a little, as when he referred in a recent speech at a huge party rally to "this little book," the little book being the Conservative handbook called The Right Road for Britain, prepared with long and loving care as the principal campaign document in the coming election. Some of his listeners got the impression that perhaps he had not even read it.

Maintaining a solid and determined hold on the party, Churchill has tended to throw any possible rivals in the shade. Thus, if it were not for Churchill, Anthony Eden, who served so ably as Foreign Minister, would have a better chance of rising to preeminent position.

Winston, as he is affectionately known to almost everyone, is undoubtedly aware of this, too. According to those who know him, it may even give him a certain ironic satisfaction.

"Why, sir," he is fond of saying in his best Churchillian manner, "when it becomes a matter of age, we must not be too much influenced by the trifling standards of the present. There is Gladstone. Gladstone was Her Majesty's first officer at the not-inconsiderable age of 84."

Eden is 52. If Churchill is to rival the record of Gladstone and be Prime Minister at the age of 84, then Eden must wait another decade. It is not a cheerful prospect.

WELL-INFORMED opinion here holds that Winston does indeed want to occupy No. 10 Downing st. again. He took his defeat in 1945 as a deep personal affront; an example of gross ingratitude. He is said to believe that the people of Britain have now had time to repent their error and they will be in a mood to right their wrong judgment.

No one except Churchill himself, who carefully keeps his own counsels on the matter of his future, can say this with any positiveness. He is capable of the grand gesture of renunciation. But it would not be wholly in character.

His primary interest remains, as it always has been, foreign affairs. He has taken the lead in organizing the Council of Europe, which may be one reason why Labor Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin is distinctly cool to the concept of European Union.

As a master through the years of holding the public eye, Churchill fighting for European Union has made drama and headlines. But there are those who wonder whether, if he were to take responsibility again, he might not at least temporarily sidetrack this interest for his original love, which is the Empire and Commonwealth.

Winston Churchill is unique among living men. No one remotely touches him. And it is a strange commentary on the times that the longer he lives, the more remote he seems from contemporary ways.

man of the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Campbell Charge Dismissed

Without objection from the Government, the court promptly dismissed the charge against Miss Helen Campbell, Thomas' former secretary and codefendant with him on charge of conspiracy in the "kickback" scheme. Miss Campbell, 64, went to the Justice Department more than a year ago to inform about the alleged eight-year-old scheme to pad the Congressman's payroll with the names of her niece and her maid.

Judge Holtzoff said the court took notice of the fact that Miss Campbell acted as an employe and did not personally profit from the "kickback" scheme, and that she seems to have made a "full, free and fair" statement to the Justice Department.

In addition to posible prison sentence and a heavy fine, Thomas, who was reelected to Congress last year and still holds his seat, now faces the prospect of losing it, either voluntarily or by House action.

William H. Collins, attorney for Thomas, told reporters that there will be a "decision in a few days" as to what Thomas' will do about his House seat, which carries a $15,000 a year salary.

Thomas was reelected to his seventh term in the House on November 2, 1948, six days before he was indicted.

At Trenton, N. J., Governor Driscoll yesterday asked New Jersey's attorney general for legal advice on a special election in the event the congressional seat becomes vacant.

If Thomas does not resign, the House, which is the sole judge of qualifications of its members, could start proceedings to bar him, but the House is traditionally reluctant to take such a step and proceedings might well drag until his term expires anyway.

Since Thomas had entered a plea to a felony indictment, he would not in any event be eligible for reelection or to hold any further public office.

Collins told reporters the original plea of not guilty was changed to the nolo contendere plea "out of consideration for the health and family of Mr. Thomas."

Worksheet is Introduced

Actually, the break in the case came right on the heels of the introduction of an FBI worksheet for the years 1940 to 1945 showing in detail the exact financial transactions by which Government paychecks issued to Miss Campbell's niece, the former Myra Midkiff and her maid, Arnette Minor, reached Thomas' account in the First National Bank of Allendale, N. J.

The worksheet, compiled and explained on the witness stand by Special Agent Frederic Vechery of Silver Spring, Md., showed Government checks flowing straight from Miss Campbell's account at the East Capitol branch of the City Bank here to Thomas' account.

The bookkeeping record, backed up by bank records and photostats, showed a month-by-month story of the alleged payroll padding and kickback payments. For example, a Government check for $109.40 was issued to Myra Midkiff on May 31, 1944. It was deposited to Miss Campbell's account on June 2, 1944, and on June 5, 1944, Miss Campbell drew her personal check for $109 to J. Parnell Thomas. This was deposited in Thomas' account on June 6, 1944. The checks for $109.40 which went to Miss Midkiff always turned up in the Thomas account as $109. Miss Campbell explained to the Federal Bureau of Investigation she kept the 40 cents each month to pay for postage and taxi fare to her bank.

District Attorney Fay told reporters that actually this carefully documented record was the Government's case.

Thomas' Wife on Payroll At $3400 Since January

Representative J. Parnell Thomas now has his wife as well as a daughter-in-law on his Congressional payroll, the Washington Post learned yesterday.

Mrs. Amelia Stiles Thomas is on his office payroll for $3400 a year. She is not known to work in the office.

She went on the payroll last January at $2400 per anum. Last July when congressmen's allowance for office help was jumped from $9500 to $12,500, the salary of Mrs. Thomas was increased to $3400 and has remained at that figure.

The salary of the daughter-in-law, Mrs. Lillian Thomas, has remained at $500 since the first of the year.

Mrs. Thomas was Amelia Wilson Stiles of Mount Vernon, N. Y., the daughter of a wealthy socialite Westchester County family. She is believed now to be moderately well-to-do in her own right. She and the New Jersey congressman, who now faces a possible prison term, moved in the top echelon of Congressional society here.

Mrs. Grace Wilson, 71-year-old bedridden aunt of Mrs. Thomas, who figured in the trial as also having been on the congressman's payroll at one time, has not been on the payroll this year.

tion to "human affairs" in "articulate" terms.

"We have a spendid story to tell," he declared. "Yet it is a sad fact but true, that despite all our modern means of giving information through newspapers, magazines, books, films, radio, television, or telephone—the mass of our citizens have somehow not received a right understanding of our American economic system, what it is, and how it works and what it means to us."

Workers Need Facts

he worker who lacks facts about the operations of his company, said Steinkraus, is apt to become "resentful and dissatisfied. In other words, he is practically a push-over for anyone who comes along with propaganda against management and capitalism."

He sounded a call for the Washington Board of Trade and all other Chambers of Commerce throughout the country to combat "this propaganda." "If we don't, no one else will," he declared.

Steinkraus struck back at President Truman's "selfish interest" campaign on businessmen, declaring that "fortunately so far the majority of our people know better." A recent poll shows that, he said.

"But if the story is repeated enough and no one in town steps up to speak for business when it is attacked in local meetings all over the country," he added, "great damage can be done to the very force which has made America great."

Backtracking a bit, Steinkraus reminded his enthusiastic listeners that the board was founded in a year when "newspapers were advertising a case of a dozen fifths of rye whiskey for $4 a case . . . and when the national debt was about a billion dollars—and the people were worried about it."

Commissioner John Russell Young, bringing greetings of the District government, rose to tell "the real old timers of this organization":

"Many of the business houses which are now quite large and apparently affluent were relatively small organizations when I first came to Washington."

Since then, Young commented, "the Nation's Capital has grown from a small, rather sleepy Southern city to the Capital of the greatest Nation in the world and, in fact, the Capital of the World."

Each Board of Trade guest was given a souvenir program of drawing by Dick Mansfield, Evening Star cartoonist, which depicted the highspots of 58 60-year-old local firms.

The ranking executives of the honored companies sat at three elevated head tables extending the length of the ballroom.

Throughout the dinner Leon Brusiloff's orchestra played the old favorites. "Sweet Adeline" and "Dixie" got the biggest hands. Then the D. C. Keys Barbershop quartet trotted out more "gay nineties" tunes.

Robert V. Fleming, a past president of the board and chairman of the board of Riggs National Bank, was toastmaster.

The week-long anniversary celebration will close tomorrow with a luncheon meeting of the board's traffic committee at 12:30 p. m. at the Burlington Hotel.

None in Montgomery Primary To Get Official Democratic Nod

J. Bond Smith, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee for Montgomery County, last night said the organization will not indorse any candidates in the September, 1950, county primary.

The statement was made at a Democratic rally in the Silver Spring Armory staged to air suggestions for improvement of the county's Democratic organization.

Earlier, William F. Carlin, who was defeated in the party primary for the Sixth Congressional District, urged formation of "a united Democratic organization for Montgomery County." He suggested an elaborate plan for election of precinct leaders in the 58 county precincts to give voters a greater sense of participation in party work, and said no organization funds should be used to support any primary candidate.

Bond replied that the central committee never supported financially any primary candidate and has decided "there will be no official nod od support for any county candidate in the next primary."

Bond said he favored the election of precinct leaders but found Carlin's plan too complicated. He said Carlin's suggestions would be considered.

Charles Buscher, chairman of the Eleventh Precint, called for efforts to achieve repeal of the Hatch Act. Bond said attempts are being made to seek repeal at least to the extent of permitting election participation by Government employes on the county level.

Einar Christensen, attorney and president of the Silver Spring Board of Trade, suggested that precinct leaders be replaced if they failed to "produce" within two years.

quoted as saying that if the strike were not settled within a "reasonable period," the Taft-Hartley Act would be invoked to halt the strike for 80 days. The President himself, like Lewis, said nothing.

Cyrus S. Ching, chief Federal conciliator, was en route to New York from Detroit last night, scheduled to make an address before an industrial group. Ching has officially turned the coal dispute over to the White House, but it is known that "unofficially," he has been trying to revive deadlocked negotiations between Lewis and the mine operators.

At the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service here, aides discounted rumors that Ching might be pulling a rabbit out of the hat as he did in the steel dispute by bringing Bethlehem Steel and the CIO Steelworkers togther for their peace-making pension formula. UMW sources similarly insisted there was no foundation to other rumors that mysterious John L. Lewis had a trick rabbit up his sleeve.

Industry officials maintained that, so far as they knew, the operators were holding solid in their opposition to Lewis' contract demands, and that there would be no sudden settlement with the UMW.

The railroads, which depend heavily on coal freight, immediately reacted to the strike news. Chesapeake & Ohio planned to lay off 650 employes Friday. Pennsy, which only this week rehired 20,000 furloughed employes, said the jobs of these workers were again in jeopardy as a result of the coal walkout.

The Baltimore & Ohio disclosed that some 8000 workers laid off during the last walkout were still out.

During the September-October coal walkout more than 30,000 railroad workers were furloughed. Several thousand other industrial workers were laid off for the lack of coal.

The end of the truce effects the soft coal miners east of the Mississippi. Some 20,000 soft coal diggers west of the big river and some 80,000 anthracite miners will stay in their pits. Negotiations for a new anthracite agreement, which like the soft coal contract expired June 30, will be resumed in New York December 6.

In Washington, John D. Battle, executive vice president of the National Coal Association, said soft coal stock above ground presently amounts to between 30 and 35 million tons. Through a series of three walkouts, John L. has thus managed to cut the soft coal stockpile in half, from its summer high. The industry generally regards 30 million tons above ground as a normal reserve of coal supplies.

Beet Sugar Association Asks Brannan to Help Raise Price

the 1947 cost of living-price relationship factor—indicates that a price of $8.88 would not be excessive."

"Sugar is the cheapest food on the market," Shields declared. The housewife and the industrial user can buy "more energy-producing units per dollar in sugar than any other food," he added. "At present retail prices, the housewife can buy 1000 calories of food in sugar for 5.3 cents."

Cheaper Than Elsewhere

Shields said sugar is cheaper in the United States than in most other countries.

Government statistics reveal that the per capita consumption of sugar has not yet got back to the amount consumed before the war. In the 1930s consumption ran around 97 to 98 pounds per person a year. In 1941 it reached 113 pounds. Consumption was less than 94 pounds last year.

Before the war beer farmers averaged around $7 a ton for their beets. Last year the price averaged $12.85. However, that was only 94 percent of parity.

Louisiana and Florida sugar cane growers, who got as low as $3.88 a ton 10 years ago, last year received $7.12. This, however, was only 77 percent of parity.

(Parity is the price a farmer receives for a commodity as compared with the prices he has to pay for the goods he buys).

of increasing "cures" attributed to earlier diagnosis.

Still under treatment, but under cancer-death sentence, are five leukemia victims, one child with a brain cancer, another with a malignant tumor of the central nervous system, and two children with cancer of the thyroid gland.

Children's Hospital specialists emphasized that the hospital's record parallels those of other centers treating childhood cancers. The simple truth, they explained, is that cancer in children is far more explosive than in grownups, and most often diagnosed too late.

Better public understanding of this, coupled with the fact that most tumors of childhood can be seen and felt, may eventually help reduce the terrible toll, explained Dr. William Burdick, pediatrician and member of the tumor board.

One of Four Saved

Dr. E. Clarence Rice, pathologist member of the board, said that reports from some other cancer centers show that by early diagnosis about one of four children who suffer Wilms' (kidney) cancer can be saved. Children's Hospital's own record shows that of 30 children treated for Wilms' cancers in the past 10 years only the one child, operated on recently, still lives.

Breakdown of the 10-year cancer record shows 18 suffered cancer of the brain and spinal cord; 30 had Wilms' (kidney) cancers; 10 suffered cancer of the adrenal glands; 9 had bone cancers; 79 leukemias, and the other 18 suffered cancers originating in other, less frequent cancer sites, in the body, or were too generalized to determine the originating site.

Attending yesterday's meeting as board members were Drs. Isadore Lattman, radiologist, and Dr. William M. Crowell, resident pathologist, and Drs. Rice and Burdick.

Judge Says Lord Didn't Intend Man To Be a Cabbie

Municipal Judge Milton S. Kronheim, jr., yesterday advised a District cabbie that "you are not an individual who the Lord intended to drive an auto. You'll have to earn your living some other way."

The jurist's comments came after he had perused a lengthy record of past traffic violations against Benny L. Betha, 35, of 2934 Pomeroy rd. se.

Betha, this time, was charged with failing to give full time and attention to his driving after a collision at 9th and U sts. nw.

It was brought out that Betha, who was charged with seven violations since January 1, had been driving on an appeal status following suspension of his hacker's license some time ago.

Kronheim concluded his lecture by fining the man $25.

Your Business Need a Spur? Look to Phone

By S. Oliver Goodman

Sense in handling telephone calls can roll up into added dollars of business, a demonstration indicated yesterday.

Actual calls to local business firms were sound-magnified so that an audience of more than 200 could judge whether the firm's response was favorable.

The best response, the audience agreed, was that of a local newspaper's classified ad girl in answering a telephone call from a would-be ad-placer. For the sake of about a $3 piece of business, the girl gave bushels of help in the most polite and patient manner possible.

Worst example was the call to a leading local department store. The caller asked for the living-room furniture department and that was the end of it. After waiting a reasonable length of time with no response, the caller hung up. That could have been a $1000 purchase of furniture.

Out of about 10 calls, the response was good in 4 and fair in 2. The fest were poor.

The interesting demonstration was put on before an audience of about 200 persons at a luncheon of the Women's Advertising Club in the Hotel Washington. Staff personnel of Capital Airlines set up and staged the phone calls, with the help of Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. The airline in recent months has conducted an extensive program of training personnel to answer the phone properly.

TRANSIT NET: Capital Transit Co. yesterday reported October net income of $71,082, against $884 in the same 1948 month. Operating expenses showed little change, while revenues increased 5.2 percent. For the first 10 months this year, Capital Transit showed net income of $598,884, as compared with $274,165 in the like period last year.

BID OPENING: The Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission will open bids today at 3 p.m. on seven million dollars in bonds, largest single offering in the commission's 31-year history. Included in the offering are four million dollars in water supply bonds, $2,500,000 n general construction bonds and $500,000 in storm water drainage bonds. Proceeds of the offering will be used to expand water and storm drainage facilities in Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties in Maryland. At least three large banking syndicates, it was learned, have entered bids for the new bond issue, which will mature serially from December 1, 1950, to December 1, 1989.

GAS NET: Washington Gas Light Co. and subsidiaries reported a consolidated net loss of $81,866 for October, against a red-ink figure of $94,798 in the same 1948 month. Consolidated net for the first 10 months totaled $799,793, against $1,148,868 in the corresponding period last year. The decline was attributed to steadily rising costs of operation, coupled with lower demand for heating gas because of unseasonably warm weather. Improved revenues are expected because of a 6 percent rate increase, granted by the Public Utilities Commission and effective mid-November.

CLEARINGS: Washington bank clearings in November totaled $340,062,198, a new high for that month and 5.85 percent ahead of the same 1948 month. For the first 11 months this year, check transactions reached a new record of $3,535,781,927. This was a gain of 6.54 percent over the $3,319,213,591 of the same period last year, according to George Bright, manager of the Washington Clearing House Association.

ODD LOTS: Buick announced $40 price cut on its Dynaflow transmission. Previously Cadillac, Oldsmobile, Pontiac and Nash reduced about $26 from price of Hydra-matic transmissions . . . Follansbee Steel Corp. hiked prices $35 a ton on all grades of silicon electrical sheets . . . New Haven Railroad yesterday cut prices on round-trip tickets simultaneously with the 12½ percent increase in Eastern railroad fares which went into effect at midnight . . . U. S. Calls Its FAO Outlay Too Much

The United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) was told plainly yesterday that the United States thinks it is paying too great a portion of the organization's expenses.

However, Ralph S. Roberts, finance director of the Agriculture Department, said that this country will continue to pay more than one fourth the total expense of the 62-nation organization for a short time.

When more funds are available from other or new members, this country's payments must be cut back to 25 percent of the total FAO budget, he said.

Roberts' speech came as FAO delegates were considering increasing membership assessments to make up for deficits incurred when some members failed to meet obligations.

Last year this country paid 27.1 percent of the total FAO budget. Some members—among them a few who voted against President Truman's personally-delivered invitation to FAO to permanently locate in this country—claimed America wasn't paying enough.

These countries argued that because the United States is paying almost 40 percent of the expenses of the United Nations it should pay an equal share of the expenses of FAO.

Roberts denied this, and added that there should be no such comparison. "The United States has taken the position in the U. N. that we believe that the largest contributor should not pay more than one-third of the U. N. budget. The Assembly has recognized that 33 1-3 percent should be a normal ceiling.

"At the same time there appears no particular reason why it should apply to all other international organizations. It is appropriate for percentage ceilings to differ."

Roberts declared, also, that this country "believes that no member should pay more than 25 percent of the FAO budget. This view has been expressed repeatedly in past Council and Conference meetings."

Figures before FAO indicate that the United States pays double that of its nearest associate. It pays 27.1 percent of FAO expenses. The United Kingdom pays 15.62 percent, but this payment is shared by Ceylon.

Postlude

Opera Star Big Success As Soloist

By Paul Hume

Leonard Warren was guest soloist with the National Symphony last night.

The American singer, leading baritone in Italian repertoire at the Metropolitan, sang Iago's Credo from Verdi's Otello, the Prologue to Pagliacci, and three contemporary Italian songs.

His voice is magnificent and his management of it no less astounding.

His two encores were "O, That It Were So," by Frank Bridge, and Griffes' An Old Song Re-sung.

The orchestra sounded well in accompanying Warren, but there was a disturbing lack of precision between players and soloist. A conductor's stand must be placed so that a singer can see the leader. Pianists and violinists are always able to keep an eye on the beat but the singer who is placed in front of the podium has no such chance.

The art of directing Italian opera is a subtle one. We can praise Mitchell for the way the orchestra played. But there are secrets of leading the arias heard last night which he does not yet have.

Mitchell prefaced Warren with a virtuoso reading of the Corsair overture of Berlioz. Here the orchestra played its best of the season. Haydn's London symphony was given clear, warm style and the finest kind of phrasing throughout. Allegro sections went with proper moderation.

The concert closed with the local premiere of a suite drawn from the Rosenkavalier of Richard Strauss. It sounded to us like the arrangement of Antal Dorati.

The orchestra never sounded better to us than at moments during this radiant music. At the same time, they were again unprecise in the introduction to the trio. Most of this complex score seemed simple under Mitchell's direction. We would disagree with certain vital tempos but the absence of voices can be used to justify some variations.

Next week: Jacques Abram in the Britten concerto, and Schumann's second symphony.

Night Bus Service Will Continue at Bradbury Heights

The Washington, Marlboro and Annapolis Motor Lines, Inc., yesterday withdrew its request to discontinue Bradbury Heights nighttime local service.

The Public Utilities Commission indicated it would cancel a hearing scheduled for Friday on the request.

The company had asked permission to discontinue local service between 7 p. m. and 1:45 a. m. on the grounds that it lost money and there was little demand for it.

One on the Aisle—

Lust's TV Ideas Include Ballet

By Richard L. Coe

SIDNEY LUST, who's done a lot of impossible things in the past, has his mind on television.

The volatile Lust, whose 11 theaters hold 6450 persons and 1500 cars, is thinking of TV in terms of theaters. In a petition now before the FCC, he describes some of the things he'd like to do if allowed to establish theater television service.

He feels that opera, ballet and current theater would be especially suitable in this area, since "auditorium facilities for such are particularly poor" here. During the hours when theaters aren't in regular operation, he envisages lectures, demonstrations and exhibits for child and adult education.

He feels that theater television won't be confronted with the dilemma of satisfying commercial sponsors at the expense of sacrificing locally important programs. He thinks that theaters, with their "sympathetically reacting large audiences," offer a better medium of entertainment and education than does the home, and also that competitive television services would be a healthy thing, a matter invariably urged by the FCC.

How the FCC will deal with his request it probably will take a long while to know, for the mills necessarily grind slowly.

In the matter of competition, this year's experience with theaters televising the World Series is indicative.

Brooklyn, Boston, Chicago, Scranton and Milwaukee experimented with varying results, with Scranton doing the best business for one very clear reason: It was the only place in town you could watch the ball game. Elsewhere, for the price of a couple of beers you had the same thing on smaller screens. Though business was less than the capacity expected, it was still higher than the usual matinees everywhere.

The Theater Owners of America, of which Lust is a member, also has a petition before the FCC asking to establish a theater TV service.

Such a set-up would, it goes without saying, be for theaters only and would do away with free competition from the bars. Lust's local reputation in the field of public service is admirable and, should he get what he's after, it seems safe to assume his programs would strive for the caliber he describes.

Whatever does come of those two FCC petitions, it's clear that the theater oys aren't just scratching their heads over the latest threat to their gold mines. They've got a good idea even though pitchas, shadows and cathode tubes won't ever take the place of live, round people. I hope.

VIOLET HEMING, socially known as Mrs. Bennett Champ Clark, has graciously consented to write her first theatrical review for this page . . . The colorful star of scores of New York plays and onetime leading lady of the Columbia players here, will review the Children's Theater of Washingtons' opening play, "Tom Sawyer" . . . The play will be performed Friday night and Saturday afternoon at Roosevelt High auditorium and will be repeated December 9 and 10 . . . Miss Heming's review will appear in the middle of next week on this page to remind you of the repeat performances . . . Seats now at the Snow Concert Bureau, 1108 G st.

THE REV. RAYMOND BLACK of Christ Church, Rockville, is a true Gilbert and Sullivan fan . . . All G. and S. fans invariably attract their kind and burst into the celebrated songs with unique ardor . . . Last night in the Christ Church Hall, he and Rockville's G. and S. aficionados presented "Patience," which they'll repeat tonight and tomorrow at 8:30.

BESS DAVIS SCHREINER, that affectionately regarded henchwoman of the Theater Guild subscribers, has been ill, but the worst is over and her many friends look for an early return to her offices in the National Theater mezzanine

THE TWO GEORGES—Garrott and Copeland—have written a full-length play in "The Public Bosom," not one brief enough to need a companion piece, as suspected by this reporter from a confused announcement yesterday . . . Onetime newsmen now with the State Department's information division, Garrott and Copeland tell a tale of Washington officialdom requiring some 25 players . . . It opens a two-night engagement Friday, December 9, in the Thomas Jefferson Auditorium of the Agriculture Department.

PREPPING FOR FRIDAY—Cay Knockey, Bob Dietz and Jim Roxburgh have leading roles in "The Real McCoy," the Catholic University drama department's new production opening a two-week run Friday night in the campus theater. The play is a new one by John Finch, which set designer Jo Mielziner plans to present in New York after its tryout here

FBI Chief Charges 'Half-Truths' Printed

By The Associated Press

J. Edgar Hoover yesterday accused Harper's magazine and author Bernard DeVoto of publishing "half-truths, inaccuracies, distortions and misstatements" about the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

DeVoto declared "college-trained flatfeet" were helping divide the country between "the hunters and the hunted."

The FBI chief challenged also an observation in the magazine's "Personal and Otherwise" column inviting readers to line up with DeVoto and refuse "to answer the FBI's questions except in open court, under oath and before witnesses."

In the new issue, Harper's states that its editorial policy does not require it to agree with DeVoto or the column editor. But it also allows DeVoto a rebuttal letter. In it he says:

"(FBI's inquiries suggest that) it invades areas of thought and behavior which are entirely improper for it to inquire into, . . . and that it holds ideas about what constitutes dangerous or subversive activity that are unacceptable in our form of government."

Hoover's letter states:

"I do not care to dignify Mr. DeVoto's compilation of half-truths inaccuracies, distortions, and misstatements with a denial or an explanation.

"The editorial injunction of Harper's in urging Mr. DeVoto's readers to refuse "in the future to answer the FBI's questions except in open court, under oath and before witnesses' is amazing.

"Would the editors of Harper's advocate that a citizen refuse to testify before the secret proceedings of a grand jury?

"If a citizen had knowledge of the whereabouts of a fugitive, would the editors urge him to refuse to advise investigators?

"Would the editors deprive an applicant for a Government position who listed their name as a reference to their indorsement?"

"Does the editorial admonition mean that Harper's advocates protecting a foreign agent against the security of the United States by not advising an investigator of this information.

"If the advocacy of such a course of action is to be taken seriously, that is exactly what Harper's does."

Sailor's Quick Trip Home Interrupted

Alexandria police broadcast a call for a stolen truck yesterday at 11:55 a. m.

Home in New Orleans.

Suspect Charged Here With Stealing Cab

Cletis Hutton, 39, of Marion, Va., who was arrested Tuesday in a stolen District cab after a 15-mile chase out Baltimore blvd., was returned to Washington yesterday and charged with grand larceny.

Police charge Hutton hoodwinked the driver of a Bell Co. cab, at N. Capitol and N sts., and stole the cab. The theft was reported over the cab industry's two-way radio and another Washington hacker followed the cab as it sped through nearby Maryland.

Maryland State Police joined the chase and the stolen cab was stopped near Laurel Sanitarium.

Forty-Niners Strike, Demand Bonus for Playoff

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

CONNIE MACK may recapture none of the Athletics' former pennants next season but on the bench with him he will have at least a pungent reminder of those glory days of 1929-30-31. The old gentleman's action in luring Mickey Cochrane out of retirement to take the job as an A's coach, smacks of high nostalgia.

Povich

Eghty-seven-year-old Connie never had it as good as when Cochrane was catching for him and the cry of "Break up the A's" was being heard long before the same tribute was being paid the Yankees of a later era. Even Mr. Mack's great teams of two decades before with the Barry-Baker-Collins-McInnis $100,000 infields never won three pennants in a row.

Mr. Mack's intimates always knew that Cochrane was his pet on those 1929-30-31 pennant winners. While the louder acclaim might have been for Grove and Foxx and Simmons, the venerable leader of the A's was personally disposed towards Cochrane as the man who made the team win. Perhaps it was a special esteem for his catcher by the man who used to be a catcher himself.

Mack's respect for Cochrane was pretty generally shared, however. Testimony of that fact is the still unending debate as to whether Bill Dickey or Mickey Cochrane was the best catcher of modern times.

MANY AN AMERICAN League hitter had met Cochrane before he bobbed up in 1925 as the enthusiastic young rookie catcher of the A's, but if they couldn't fix the name or the place that was excusable. There were no formal introductions back in the early twenties when the young Boston University student, Cochrane, used to stand shyly on the big porch of the old Brunswick Hotel and ogle the visiting big leaguers who were in town to play the Red Sox.

Mickey was in the school of Business Administration in those days, and the B.U. campus was across the street from the teams' hotel headquarters. Mostly he'd want to talk to outfielders, because he was an outfielder himself in those days. At B.U., though, he was better known as the flashy-running halfback with only one weakness—outrunning his interference.

He played summer baseball around Saranac Lake, N. Y. in 1923 until a teammate left to join the Dover, Del., club of the Eastern Shore League. Mickey went along for the ride and wound up hitch-hiking with his pal. He also wound up catching for Dover under the name of Mickey King to cover up what might have been another year of eligibility at Boston U.

VIRTUALLY UNDER the noses of the A's scouts, what with Dover in their territory, Cochrane hit .327 in the Eastern Shore League, and was grabbed off by Portland, of the Pacific Coast League at the end of the season for $1500. It was a $48,500 lapse by the A's scouts, because $50,000 was what he cost Mack's club one year later after hitting .333 at Portland.

With the A's, Cochrane immediately ousted Jimmy Foxx and Cy Perkins from the No. 1 catching job, and immediately hit .331 for his first full season. He was a bundle of energy behind the plate, a driver with Mack's wild young pitchers that included Lefty Grove. He'd burn the ball back into their gloves with a force that made 'em mad, the desired effect for which he aimed.

One of the conditions which prompted Mack to sell Cochrane when he did, in 1934, to the Tigers, was the Detroit club's promise to make Cochrane manager. No club ever got a bigger bargain. Playing-Manager Cochrane took the Tigers to pennants in his first two seasons.

YANKEE PITCHER Bump Hadley suddenly ended Cochrane's playing career, and as it proved, his managerial career with one pitch in Yankee Stadium. Beaned, his skull fractured in a fashion to make the X-rays look like a road map, Cochrane never went behind the bat again. As a bench manager, he was never a success, with his teams lacking the spark that Cochrane had infused in them as a player. The next season, the Tigers released him.

But Cochrane had left his mark on the game. Baseball men are cleft down the middle on the subject of the greatest catcher: Dickey or Cochrane? One man, Umpire Bill McGowan, never vacillated on that topic. "Give me Cochrane," he always said. "I saw a lot of them both, and Mickey did everything as well as Dickey could do, and one thing better. He had more fire."

For McGowan, one day's demonstration by Cochrane clinched Mickey the umpire's vote. "I saw the A's get beat in 15 innings, when a kid shortstop booted a ball. Cochrane was inconsolable. I told him to forget it. He said 'Nuts! What kind of players are they bringing into the big leagues. Look at that shortstop. He boots a ball game away, and he ain't even mad about it.'"

Caps Lose To Rochester By 86 to 84

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Chick Reiser's desperation shot from the middle of the floor got tangled in the Uline Arena lights last night and the Washington Caps were forced to accept an 86-84 loss to the Rochester Royals.

Before they suffered their sixth setback in 13 games, however, the Cops combined with the Royals in treating 2205 customers to 48 minutes of terrific action.

The lead changed hands 16 times and on 12 other occasions the score was deadlocked. Never more than 5 points separated the National Basketball Asosciation rivals.

One of the best individual performances of the season was wasted with Washington's defeat. Jack Nichols, huskey gunner from the University of Washington, turned in 26 points for game scoring honors and in his spare time limited Arnold Risen, Rochester scoring ace, to a single field goal. The invaders' heavy scoring was turned over to Bob Davies, ex-Seton Hall star, who accounted for 21 points.

In the third period Washington moved into a 5-point margin but at the whistle all they had left of it was a 64-63 advantage. It was still anybody's game when Coach Bob Feerick flipped in a one-hander to cut a Royal lead to 78-77.

But then Rochester counted for four straight foul shots and the Caps were never able to catch up. Their poor foul shooting didn't help, either, with the Caps missing 14 of 40 tries.

Chuck Halbert was granted a pair of free throws with 10 seconds left and might have made it 85-all by sinking both. He missed one. Finally there was Reiser's long and unsuccessful pitch goalward at the final horn.

Against Miami

Terps Hope To Embarrass Orange Bowl

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

MARYLAND leaves for Miami this morning, hopeful of proving to Orange Bowl officials tomorrow night they were wrong when they chose Kentucky over the Terrapins for the January 2 Orange Bowl skirmish.

The vindictive Terrapins, who have a January 2 engagement themselves—against Missouri in the Gator Bowl—will be out to trim Miami U. by a more decisive margin than Kentucky did last Friday night.

Coach Bear Bryant's Kentuckians registered a 21-6 triumph over the Hurricanes and were rewarded with an invitation to meet Santa Clara in the big New Year's skirmish.

"At least the Orange Bowl people could have waited until after our game with Miami," said Captain Fred Davis as the squad concluded its preparations at College Park yesterday. "I hope we can show them they made a mistake in acting so hurriedly. So do the rest of the boys."

DAVIS' attitude was greeted with great enthusiasm by Coach Tatum and his assistants. The Terp staff was fearful of a letdown after the squad had received and accepted the 'Gator Bowl bid.

In Miami, the Terps are facing a "sleeper" team, one capable of upending the Marylanders unless they are on guard.

Andy Gustafson, former Army backfield coach now in his second year with the Hurricanes, has piloted his sophomores to six victories in eight starts. Purdue and Kentucky were the only clubs to beat the Miamians whose victories include successes over Georgia and Florida.

It's the second meeting between the two clubs. The Terps wrapped up last year's struggle, 27-13, before 38,500. A similar crowd is expected for tomorrow night's battle.

THE HURRICANES who feature a light, fast team paced by "flea-weight" backs Jack Hackett, Bob Campbell and Mike Vacchio, have been a tremendous draw this season. In seven home games, they've attracted 284,613 paying customers and are certain to pass the 30,000 mark in their finale against Maryland.

PGA Stands Pat On Locke Ban; Novak Reelected

Southern Pines, N. C., Nov. 30 (AP).—Harmony was the keynote today at the annual meeting of the Professional Golfers Association of America.

President Joe Novak of Los Angeles was returned without opposition to office for a second term. Novak, for three years secretary prior to his election to the presidency last fall, has been professional at the Los Angeles Bel Air Country Club for 30 years.

The possibility that the executive committee would take any action here on the case of Bobby Locke, barred South African star, was remote. Banned from PGA play since reportedly canceling several American bookings following his British Open victory last summer, Locke apparently must make the next move if he is to be reinstated. This could be in the form of a letter seeking a return to good standing.

Veeck Says He'll Return To Majors Soon

Milwaukee, Nov. 30 (AP).—Bill Veeck will be back in major league baseball within six months—and maybe as owner of the Washington Senators, the Milwaukee Journal said today.

Veteran baseball writer Sam Levy, a close personal friend of Veeck, talked with him last night.

"Since I sold the Cleveland club last week, at least six men have approached me to go into business," Levy quoted Veeck as saying.

"You're dodging the question?" Levy inquired.

"'You know ol' Will,'" Veeck countered.

Levy said Veeck denied he was interested in the New York Giants, as has been bandied about baseball circles, and added the chances of his buying the St. Louis Browns and moving the franchise to the Pacific Coast were "very, very remote."

"In the first place," Veeck said, "the Pacific Coast League would want too much—certainly more than I would be willing to pay—for territorial rights. Los Angeles is the best town in that league and the Chicago Cubs, owners of the club, would ask more than I'd want to pay."

Veeck Buy Nats? No, Says Griffith

"That's just a rumor and that's all it is," said Clark Griffith, president of the Nats yesterday when informed that Bill Veeck's name was mentioned as the purchaser of the Washington Nats.

"The Washington baseball club is not for sale, not to Veeck or anyone else," the 80-year-old Nat boss emphasized.

Bing Miller Also Hired

Cochrane Returns to Coach A's; Reports Say He's Next Pilot

By Orlo Robertson

Philadelphia, Nov. 30 (AP).—Mickey Cochrane and Bing Miller were named coaches of the Philadelphia Athletics today in a move that stirred new speculation as to direction of the club after 86-year-old Connie Mack steps down as manager.

Miller's appointment had been expected. But the choice of Cochrane was a complete surprise to baseball circles.

Mickey, out of major league baseball since released as manager of the Detroit Tigers in mid season, 1938, declared no promises had been made regarding any job other than as pitching coach.

Connie Mack, jr., third son of baseball's Grand Old Man, who made the announcements, said so, too.

No Promises Made, But—

"We heard that Mickey might be interested in a coaching job and so we contacted him," said young Connie.

"I took the job as pitching coach and will take orders just the same as anybody else," declared Cochrane. "No promises were made to me regarding the future."

But still the reports persisted that the man who guided the Tigers to two American League pennants and one world championship in five years would move into a higher position if and when Mack retires.

Connie Mack, sr., said nothing other than that he will manage the club in 1950—his fiftieth season at the helm of the A's. He has said a number of times that his son, Earle, will succeed him as manager.

Earle, now assistant manager of the team, was not present at the press luncheon. Roy, Connie's oldest son, was present as business manager of the A's.

Bing, Mickey Reunited

The appointment of Cochrane and Miller reunites three of the stars who carried the Athletics to baseball championships 20 years ago. Jimmy Dykes, third baseman of the team on which Cochrane caught and Miller played outfield, was signed as a coach last season.

Cochrane and Miller replace Al Simmons, another former Athletic's great, and Earle Brucker, who were fired—in another surprise move—at the end of the 1949 season. Miller will act as a general coach—a position held by Simmons. Brucker was pitching coach.

Cochrane came here today from Billings, Mont., where he operates a ranch and an automobile sales agency.

"I just felt the itch to get back into baseball," said Black Mike. "And when I heard the job was open I let it be known I was interested."

"I've always gotten along with Earle and expect to do the same again. And it'll be fine to again work with Jimmy (Dykes) and Bing (Miller).

Miller Says Little

Miller, a resident of Philadelphia, had little to say as Mickey took over the center of the stage after the surprise announcement and his dramatic entrance as ice cream and apple pie were being served.

Cochrane, now 46 but looking like he could don a mask and do a capable job behind the plate, has confined his baseball since 1938 to coaching the Navy and helping his brother, Archie, with the Class C Billings Club of the Pioneer League.

Mickey broke into baseball as a 20-year-old in 1923 with Dover, Del., in the Eastern Shore League. He took over the A's catching job in 1925 and held it until 1933—gaining a reputation as one of the greatest backstops in baseball history.

He was named manager of the Detroit Tigers in 1934, piloting the club to a pennant in his first year. The Tigers, however, lost in the World Series to the St. Louis Cardinals. A year later the Tigers again won the American League flag and whipped the Chicago Cubs in the World Series.

Water Boy Winds Up As 1950 Captain Of Penn Eleven

Philadelphia, Nov. 30 (AP).—Francis (Reds) Bagnell, who used to carry water buckets for the University of Pennsylvania football team, will captain the Penn eleven next year.

Coach George Munger announced last night that Bagnell, former star at Philadelphia's West Catholic High School, had been elected 1950 Penn captain. The fiery back was Penn's leading passer last season and an adequate runner-

Galiffa to Play In Shrine Game

Chicago, Nov. 30 (AP).—Arnold Galiffa, Army's great quarterback, has accepted an invitation to play in the East-West Shrine hospital football game December 31 at San Francisco.

Galiffa's acceptance was announced today by Andy Kerr, head coach of the East squad.

The Army player, rated by many coaches the greatest T-formation quarterback, will be the first West Point participant in a Shrine game since 1928.

Drill Today Or Turn in Your Suits, Owners Say

San Francisco, Nov. 30 (AP).—The Forty Niners, one of the top-flight clubs of the All America Football Conference, "struck" today, demanding bonus pay for their scheduled playoff game next Sunday against the New York Yankees.

In addition, one of the owners announced that the players had been given an ultimatum.

"We've given them until 9 a. m. tomorrow to show up for practice in uniform at Menlo Park and, if they do not do it, they are to turn in their suits, the season is over, we will forfeit our game to the Yankees and that is the end of it," Vic Morabito said.

He added, "This is not a bluff. We're not kidding."

Morabito said he believed every player in the club was in on the bonus demand for $500 per man.

The players went to the practice field today but, after hearing the management's "No," did not suit up.

Team Capt. Norm Standlee and Len Eshmont represented the players in presenting the demand, saying they thought they ought to be paid "for the extra game."

Only Claimants

"The odd thing about this bonus demand," Morabito added, "is that our players are the only ones, of four teams in a similar position in the league, making such a demand."

The Forty Niners play the Yankees to determine which shall meet the winner of the Cleveland Brown-Buffalo Bill game (also being played Sunday) for the league championship.

"They don't seem to understand that their pay comes from the championship and, even if they should lose Sunday, they would split third place money," Morabito said.

The Forty Niners, coached by Buck Shaw, defeated the Yankees here last Sunday, 35-14 in a regular scheduled game.

It was a bruising game, characterized by some of the roughest play seen in a professional encounter this season and this may have had something to do with the players demanding a bonus.

Morabito said they figured they were entitled to "a game's salary." He explained this would amount to one twelfth of the season's pay called for in each player's contract.

Kessing Backs Club

In New York, O. O. Kessing commissioner of the conference said "contracts call for a full season including playoff games and all of the players were notified to that effect June first of this year.

"The players will get their money out of the championship game which will be played a week from this Sunday," Kessing added.

"The players share in that championship game. After expenses are taken out, 70 percent of the money will go into the players' pool. From that amount, 80 percent will be divided among the two top teams. The winners will get 60 percent and the losers 40. Of the other 20 percent, the third and fourth teams each will divide equally, 10 percent apiece.

Kessing added that he would back fully any ultimatum issued by Morabito.

Forty Niner Coach Buck Shaw said he had tried to intercede yesterday without success. "I feel terrible about this," Shaw said. "A lot of people are going to get hurt."

NBA Suspends Ike Williams

Philadelphia, Nov. 30 (AP).—Ike Williams was suspended by the National Boxing Association today but the lightweight champion said he's too busy preparing for his title bout with Chicago's Freddy Dawson Monday night to worry about it.

He was suspended at the request of the California State Athletic Commission. The State commission said it would not reinstate the champion until he honors a contract for a fight with Bernard Docusen or reimburses the Los Angeles Olympic Club for $2000 spent on the proposed contest.

While the suspension means that Williams will not be able to box under NBA auspices it won't have any effect on the title fight next week. The NBA covers every State except New York.

Abe J. Greene, NBA commissioner, explained that any matches contracted for prior to a suspension order are not affected by the suspension.

Greene added that Frank (Blinky) Palermo, Williams manager had been contacted many times about the Docusen bout but "apparently just ignored the letters."

Lakers Stop N. Y., 102-92

Minneapolis, Nov. 30 (AP).—Scoring 13 straight points in the first three minutes of the third period, the Minneapolis Lakers rallied to defeat the New York Knickerbockers, 102-92, in the National Basketball Association tonight.

Behind at the half, 50-41, the Lakers followed George Mikan to a 33-point third period in ending New York's victory streak at seven straight. With 16 points in that frame, Mikan totaled 28 for the night. But for the first time in years he was held without a single free throw.

Gordon 'Ordered' To Tribe Training By Greenberg

Cleveland, Nov. 30 (AP).—Hank Greenberg, new Cleveland Indians general manager, told Joe Gordon by long-distance telephone today to report for training at Tucson, Ariz., March 1.

Greenberg said he and Gordon parted on a friendly note and that Joe promised to "think it over."

Now at his home in Eugene, Oreg., Gordon said Monday he would prefer to play next season in the Pacific Coast League.

Gordon insisted former president Bill Veeck promised him a release at the end of the 1949 season. Veeck has denied making such a commitment.

Irish Put 3 on AP All-America; Walker, Justice Back Again

By Ted Smits
Associated Press Sports Editor

New York, Nov. 30 (AP).—Notre Dame's all-conquering football legions placed three men on the Associated Press 1949 All-America, a domination surpassed in recent years only by Army's contribution of five in 1945.

A fourth Notre Dame star, Quarterback Bobby Williams, was a close contender for the first team places won by his teammates, Emil Sitko, fullback; Leon Hart, end, and Jim Martin, tackle.

Doak Walker, triple-threat spark of Southern Methodist, made the All-America for the third year in a row, and Charlie Justice of North Carolina placed in the backfield for the second time.

Arnold Galiffa, Army's smooth quarterback, edged out Williams for the first team. Rod Franz of California is back at guard for the second year. The first team is rounded out with Clayton Tonnemaker, the Minnesota giant at center; Wade Walker of Oklahoma at tackle; James (Froggy) Williams of Rice at end; and John Schweder of Pennsylvania at guard.

Ray Krouse Makes AP Second Team

Tackle Ray Krouse of the University of Maryland yesterday received one of the highest honors ever accorded a Washington, D. C., native by being named to the Associated Press' All America second team.

Krouse, 6 feet 3 inches tall and 235 pounds, is a junior. He played at Western High and Devitt Prep.

Schroeder Makes Honorable Mention

Gene Schroeder, University of Virginia end, a District of Columbia product, made the honorable mention list. Schroeder starred at Anacostia High.

Others players from Virginia and Maryland and colleges to gain honorable mention are: End Vito Ragazzo of William and Mary, Tackle Paul Tetreault of Navy, Guard Bob Ward of Maryland, and Backs Buddy Lex of V. and M., and Whitey Michels and Steve Osisek of Virginia.

Meringue Beats Arcave by Neck in Bowie Breeders' Stakes

Bill Bennings . . .

AT BOWIE.

DEAR FOLKS:

Trainer Hirsch Jacobs, who usually has his share of luck, is still shaking his head about last Monday's program. He started three horses, two were claimed, and the other, Fleet Vixen, won and was disqualified. Fred Burton was a visitor en route to Charlestown, where he is racing secretary. Remember Balan, the horse who was left at the post and finished second at Pimlico? Well, he's good enough to be pointed for the McLennan and Widener Handicaps at Hialeah, according to Trainer Horatio Luro. With Joe Culmone Florida bound, Dick Lawless probably will win apprentice jockey honors here. There have been more fouls here than at Griffith Stadium—foul claims, that is.—BILL.

Caps to Carry One Extra Player

Coach Bob Feerick yesterday solved the problem of cutting his Washington Caps squad to reach the 11-player limit of the National Basketball Association—by not cutting at all.

The Caps will continue to carry 12 men, but only 11 of them will be dressed for each game. The twelfth man will be insurance against injuries.

2-Year-Old Pays $18 In Second Win

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Bowie, Md., Nov. 30.—Meringue, a 2-year-old who gets his name from his dam, White Sweets, was "something good to eat," as they say on the backstretch. Longshot in a field of five, the juvenile gelding carried the colors of Mrs. R. H. Heighe to a neck victory in the $7500-added Bowie Breeders' Stake here today.

S. W. Labrot, Jr.'s, Arcave was second, three lengths in advance of Bobanet Stable's Mystagogue with W. L. Brann's Widdeford and Allen Clark's King Mowlee bringing up the rear in the test exclusively for Maryland foals.

Foul Claim, as Usual

The race—it's getting to be stock equipment here — was marked by a foul claim. Jockey Bobbie Strange, who rode Arcave, claimed interference by Meringue in the stretch. However, from where the stewards and the scribes sat it looked as if Arcave did the bumping.

At any rate, the stewarts listened, interviewed the patrol judges and then allowed the victory to stand, much to the delight of Meringue backers who collected an $18 win mutuel.

This was the second win for Meringue in a dozen tries this year and he was clocked in 1.51 2/5 for the mile and a sixteenth over a track left heavy from recent rains.

Widdeford set most of the early pace with Mystagogue close up along with Arcave and Meringue. Arcave just didn't seem able to keep out of trouble. He appeared to bump horses and in turn was shut off along the backstretch.

2 Unhurt in Spill

In the meanwhile, Jockey Richard Stark sneaked Meringue along the rail and shot into command. Arcave, when clear in the stretch, was sent between horses and seemed to run up on Meringue at the sixteenth pole. After that, Meringue held on gamely to the end.

The less-than-two-minutes work for the winning son of Zayin was worth $5535 and brought his earnings for the first season of his career to $10,045.

A spectacular spill in which both riders and horses escaped serious injury came at the clubhouse turn in the fifth race. Apprentice Dick Lawless' mount Bob's Pa, appeared to run up on the heels of Adamant and went down. Jockey Jimmy Lynch and Windy crashed into Bob's Pal and also fell. Lynch continued to ride but Lawless, who was shaken up, canceled his remaining mounts.

Roy Sievers, Newcombe Named Rookies of Year

Brown, Bum Players Win By Landslide

New York, Nov. 30 (AP).—Pitcher Don Newcombe of the Brooklyn Dodgers and Outfielder Roy Sievers of the St. Louis Browns today were named the outstanding rookies of the 1949 baseball season by the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Two 24-man committees took part in the voting. Each committeeman was allowed to name only one man. The National League writers picked Newcombe almost unanimously, giving him 21 of the 24 votes. Del Crandall, 19-year-old catcher of the Boston Braves drew the other three votes.

Sievers received the support of 10 of the American League writers to double the total of Philadelphia Athletics' Alex Kellner, his nearest pursuer.

Naming the No. 1 rookies of each league represented a change in the annual balloting. Previously only one rookie was chosen for both circuits. Alvin Dark, Boston Braves' shortstop, won it last year, and Jackie Robinson, Brooklyn's second base star, was chosen in 1947.

Although he wasn't brought up from their Montreal farm club until May 25, the 23-year-old Newcombe won 17 and lost 8 for the Dodgers to rank as their best pitcher. He had seven shutouts numbered among his 19 complete games.

At one stretch he ran up a string of 33 consecutive scoreless innings. He made two starts in the World Series against the Yankees, losing both but one of them was a heartbreaking 1-0 setback in the opening game.

The heavy-hitting Sievers earned the award by clubbing out a batting average of .306 in 140 games. His extra base hits included 28 doubles, 1 triple and 16 home runs.

'In Line of Duty'

Quit Acting, NBA Chief Tells Refs; Heft Explains Capers

Stick to Calling Plays—Podoloff

New York, Nov. 30, (AP).—President Maurice Podoloff of the National Basketball League blew a shrill whistle at his officials today for ham actions on the floor which he said "belong more properly on the burlesque stage."

In a bulletin sent to all NBA referees, the boss of the pro circuit said "officials must recognize that the public comes to see the players perform, not the officials who should discharge their duties consistently without attempting to overshadow the players."

"There has been a terrific amount of criticism of the officials and the officiating," Podoloff said in his bulletin, and "something must be done immediately to improve both."

Podoloff listed six things the referee should do in calling a foul and it all aded up to: Call the foul, let the player shoot and get the game on with quickly.

Then the NBA prexy warned his officials: "Please note that motions of the body, which have been used increasingly and which in some cases belong more properly on the burlesque stage, are to be abandoned immediately."

Podoloff could look in his own office for the cause of the whole thing. Pat Kennedy, the NBA's chief-of-officials, probably set the pace for other referees with his antics on the floor.

Official Disclaims Kennedy Influence

Why all the melodrama in basketball officiating?

"It comes naturally," Arnold Heft explained yesterday, "as a result of an official's duties."

The popular local referee, as colorful as any of the whistle-tooters called down by President Maurice Podoloff, said his flamboyant style of officiating was automatic for him.

"What often looks like a lot of silly dramatics," Heft said, "is simply one man's method of doing what every official is supposed to do. On a foul he's supposed to raise his clenched fist in the air, so the timer will stop the clock. Then he must signify the number of the player who commits the foul and finally he must indicate the type of foul committed."

"I realize I'm very loud and emphatic on the floor, but I think it's better to be that way than too quiet. I've calmed down considerably, you may have noticed, since I first started officiating five years ago."

"People have accused me of aping Pat Kennedy," Heft concluded, "but the fact is I never saw Kennedy work until I worked with him in pro basketball. My style just came naturally . . ."

Chest Canvass Unit Reports Progress

Wipe Those Tears From Your Eyes

MELISSA BERTHOLF, Swedish-born, 18-month-old daughter of Comdr. Charles Bertholf, United States naval attache in Sweden, is obviously displeased with being photographed. She arrived yesterday in New York City aboard the liner Gripsholm. She'll soon be in Washington, where daddy is to be stationed

With a 6.9 percent increase, the small-business unit of the Greater Washington Community Chest drive yesterday had raised $175,199.23—72.46 percent of its goal of $241,781.

The report of Business Unit II was made at a Washington Hotel luncheon with Hugh K. Duffield, vice chairman, presiding.

All units except residential will report at 12:20 p. m. luncheons today. The Government Unit will meet in the Washington Room of the hotel. In the Mural Room will be Business I and II and the outlying areas units—covering Alexandria and the counties of Arlington, Fairfax, Montgomery and Prince Georges.

A little over 80 percent of the total Chest goal of $3,991,719 has been achieved to date.

William T. Blumenauer, Orral A. Brown, jr., Mrs. Julian Cohen, Hubert M. Evans, Walter R. Farrow, E. A. Fowler, Morris Fradin, Maurice Friedman, George E. George, Hyman M. Goldstein, Gilbert Hahn, jr., Paul M. Hawkins, Burdette Hockaday, Frederick E. Nessen, Sanford H. Bolz.

Also Mrs. William C. Koplovitz, David F. Linowes, Mrs. Richard K. Lyon, Stephen A. Meehan, Richard Meyer, H. B. Plankinton, John Patterson, Mrs. Stanley Robinson, Thomas N. Sauer, Cleveland M. Seibert, jr., Grahame T. Smallwood, E. P. Van Hise, David R. Wallace, Jack Zima and the Service Guild, represented by its president, Mrs. James Simon.

Fairfax School Plan to Mean Tax Increase

Fairfax County taxpayers last night were told that the proposed school construction program would cost them a 10 to 25 percent increase over their present property tax rate.

They were also told by F. W. Robinson, chairman of the school board, that the only alternatives are "double shifts, night and day schools sessions, doubling up of students, and sessions all year 'round."

Robinson, School Superintendent W. T. Wodson and Assistant Superintendant J. H. Rice explained the county's position to several hundred taxpayers at Fairfax High School.

The meeting opened a campaign to have the school bond issue approved by county voters. The three men plan other meetings before county groups to convince taxpayers of the need for the program.

Robinson said the plans would cost about $11,900,000—the most exact estimate given by bond issue proponents so far.

It would provide, among other things, for two new high schools and 15 elementary schools.

But the property tax, now at $3.19 per hundred on an estimated 62-million-dollar tax base, would go up at the rate of 30 cents for a three-million-dollar issue to 80 cents for a 10-million-dollar issue.

Robinson explained that the required $11,900,000 would not be floated at one time. The increase in the rate—10 to 25 percent—would depend on the size of the issues.

To get the question before the voters, its proponents need the signatures of 1000 qualified voters.

Woodson proposed taking county voters on tours by school bus to see the conditions of county schools.

66 Families Sue on Faulty Home Charge

Sixty-six families asked District Court yesterday to award them $268,000 damages on charges that they were deceived in purchasing homes in the Carole Highlands development, Prince Georges County, Md.

Named defendants in the suit were the sellers and constructors of the houses. They are Allied Investments, Inc.; Delano District Corp., Aldon Construction Co., Inc., and Doland Brown and Alvin I. Brown, all of 1129 Vermont ave. nw.

The suit alleges that the homes were not built with proper materials or in a skilled manner nor were promised street improvements made. The purchasers had to pay out money themselves to complete the development as promised, they charge.

The suit was filed through Attorneys Lyon L. Tyler, jr., and Robert L. Heald.

Reporters were told by an official of the defendants that the homes had been amply inspected and that no complaints had been made prior to filing of the suit.

Army Changes Belvoir Plans After Protest

The Woodlawn Public Foundation and Fairfax County planning officials yesterday won their struggle with Fort Belvoir to stave off construction of a military housing project in front of the historic Virginia mansion.

Maj. Gen. Douglas L. Weart, Fort Belvoir commanding officer, last night announced that the proposed 350-unit development for past personnel would be located on a tract behind the Woodlawn estate on Route 1.

Representatives of the Woodlawn Foundation, the Mount Vernon Association, National Park and Planning Commission and the Fairfax County Commissioners proposed this location at an earlier meeting yesterday with Weart, the post public relations office said last night.

The original site selected for lease to a private building firm, was located in the lowland in front of Woodlawn. It is bounded by Woodlawn, the old Mount Vernon grist mill, Mount Vernon Highway and the Potomac River.

Bids for lease of this tract were to be opened at 5 p. m. yesterday, but following the meeting, a two-week postponement was granted. They are now slated to be opened December 14.

Two Killed, One Injured In Traffic Collisions

Dead in Alexandria, Warrenton Crashes Both Women; D. C. Lawyer in Hospital

Two women were killed and a Washington lawyer seriously injured in two separate auto-truck collisions yesterday, one in Alexandria and the other near Warrenton, Va.

The dead were Mrs. Elsie Duffey, 60, of 303 E. Custis ave., Alexandria, and Mrs. Jennie Henderson, about 60, of Orange, Va.

Mrs. Henderson was a passenger in an automobile driven by Isaiah Lisemby, the lawyer, 67, of 3649 Warder st. nw.

The car collided headon about 4:30 p. m. with an automobile van driven by Granville Mitchell of Wilmington, Del., on Route 29-211, near Warrenton.

Mitchell was uninjured. Lisemby suffered fractures of the knee, leg and ribs, and was admitted to Physicians Hospital, Warrenton.

Mrs. Henderson, a client of Lisemby's, died of a fractured skull in the hospital at 4:50 p. m.

Mrs. Duffey, a resident of Alexandria for 50 years, was a passenger in a car driven by F. L. Knight, 521 S. Fairfax ave., Alexandria.

Mrs. Duffey

Police said the Knight car and a truck driven by N. J. Frame, 27, of 104 Mason ave., Alexandria, collided at Mount Vernon and Bellefonte aves.

Mrs. Duffey, thrown from the car, died in Alexandria Hospital of a fractured skull about 1:30 a. m., an hour after the accident.

Frame escaped injury, but Knight was treated at the hospital for face cuts. No charges were immediately lodged by police.

Mrs. Duffey leaves her husband, Charles A. Duffey; a daughter, Mrs. Courtney W. Klein, of the Custis ave. address; a brother, E. Burnett Ale, 1714 Duke st., Alexandria, and a sister, Mrs. Henry Sobotka, Washington.

An expectant mother was hurled from the car in which she was riding yesterday when the vehicle was rammed by a pickup truck, which in turn had been struck by a tractor-trailer at Baltimore blvd. and Beltsville rd.

Mrs. Judith Herfort, 25, a passenger in the car driven by her husband, Dr. Robert Herfort, of New York City, was admitted to Leland Memorial Hospital in Riverdale, with fractured ribs and possible internal injuries.

The Herfort car, heading for Washington, was hit by a Baltimore-bound pickup truck operated by Alfred Bright of College Park, Md.

Police said the pickup was waiting to turn into Beltsville rd. when it was smacked from behind by a tractor-trailor operated by Harvey Shipley, of Baltimore.

State Trooper Joseph Martinuk charged Shipley with reckless driving. A hearing was set for January 23 in Hyattsville Police Court.

Housewife Critically Burned in Gas Blast

3 Front Windows Ripped Out, Roof Lifted an Inch by Kitchen Explosion

A gas explosion in a Washington home yesterday sent a 54-year-old Christian Science practitioner to Casualty Hospital in critical condition with second and third degree burns.

She is Mrs. Maude D. Coupe, who suffered burns on her face, chest, back and arms and legs.

The blast occurred at about 3 p. m. Force of the explosion ripped out three windows on the front of the house and hurled them 25 feet. Firemen who responded to the explosion call said the roof of the house had been lifted about an inch and bowed by the explosion.

Plaster Torn Off

In the kitchen, plaster was torn from the walls and kitchen curtains blackened and shredded. A Washington Gas Co. official who examined the gas range in the kitchen said that all four burners on the stove were open, and that the pilot was off.

He said that the pilot light on a water heater in the basement also was off, but doubted whether that had added force to the explosion. He said a safety device would automatically have turned off the heater if the pilot light went out.

Firemen and other officials who examined the wreckage in the house were amazed that a china closet, full of dishes, was not damaged. The closet stood in a corner of the dining room of the house, almost in the path of the explosion.

Stumbles Toward Door

Immediately after the explosion, which attracted more than a score of persons, a neighbor, Mrs. Arthur Schoenthal of 323 Quackenbos st., hurried to the Coupe house in time to see Mrs. Coupe stumbling toward the door. She helped Mrs. Coupe out of the house and waited with her for the arrival of Fire Department apparatus.

Officials were uncertain where Mrs. Coupe had been when the blast occurred. E. Arthur Coupe, her husband, who is a photographic engraver for the Government Printing Office, was at work.

He later told officials Mrs. Coupe had been ill, and had been in bed during the day. The bedroom of the house was not damaged by the blast. Officials believe Mrs. Coupe must have been in the kitchen when the explosion occurred.

Mrs. Coupe for the past several years has shared office space with two other Christian Science practitioners at 1341 G st. nw. Her normal reading days at the office were Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Fire Department companies 22, 14 and 11 Truck responded to the accident call.

ATT Earnings Examined at Phone Hearing

Treasurer Questioned As C. and P. Seeks 13-Pct. Rate Boost

PUC hearings on proposed Washington phone-rate increases turned yesterday to detailed re-examination of American Telephone and Telegraph financing problems.

Donald R. Belcher, treasurer of the ATT which owns the local Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. seeking the 13-percent average rate boost, was sole witness in a day-long cross examination on his estimate of the earnings C. and P. should produce.

John J. Kirby, attorney for the United States General Services Administration, sought to show that ATT today should be able to attract needed investment capital with a lower rate of earnings than it had in the '20s.

Belcher, while admitting the firm now can borrow money for about half what it cost in the '20s, insisted that the rate of earnings should approach the level of the '20s to attract investment capital.

The C. & P. Co.'s proposed rate increase would add about 3.2 million dollars to annual gross revenues and increase net earnings after taxes by about 1.8 million dollars, to a total of about 4.4 million on its local business. Belcher estimated the earnings needed by A. T. & T. from C. & P. local business at about 4.8 million. It would represent the C. & P. share needed to give A. T. & T. a return equivalent to about 7 percent on its investment.

In opening cross-examination of Belcher, Lloyd B. Harrison, counsel for the Public Utilities Commission sought to suggest that a lower rate of earnings would be needed by the local company if more of its capital were obtained by borrowing and less by sales of stock.

Belcher defended his calculations of estimated revenue needed from the C. and P. firm in which a credit was given to the local firm for its pro rata share of the ATT's tax savings on the interest it pays on its bonds. Such interest is deductible from income taxes, while dividends paid on stock are not.

Harrison suggested that the stability of the local company is probably greater than that of any other company in the ATT setup, but Belcher said the year to year variation in C. and P. earnings has probably been as great as any other company. He pointed out the investor gives close attention to the rate of earnings.

The hearing will continue at 10 a. m. today.

School Cadets Commissioned By McAuliffe

High school cadet officers yesterday received their commissions from Maj. Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe, hero of Bastogne and a former District high school cadet.

Commissions were presented before the local corps of 700 school officials and Army officers in a ceremony at National Guard Armory.

First of the 95 officers to receive a commission and a handshake from General McAuliffe was Cadet Col. Thomas A. Farley of Roosevelt High School. Farley, son of Belmont Farley of 5308 Kansas ave. nw., commands the brigade.

General McAuliffe told the cadets he was "pleased and thrilled" at the smartness of their appearance in marching into the hall and coming to parade rest.

Recalling his days as a cadet, General McAuliffe said the demands of citizenship are greater now than when he graduated in 1916 from Eastern High School.

"Within a few months," he said, "all of you will be thinking of your careers. Whether you wear the uniform, a business suit or overalls, I am sure that you will agree the training and experience received in the Washington high school cadets will help make you the kind of citizen that steps forward to accept responsibilities."

Schools Superintendent Hobart M. Corning spoke of the "rich tradition" of the cadet corps and said it is the wish of school officials that the corps prosper and grow.

After the ceremony the cadets marched to Eastern for supper.

Arnold Witness Tells Of Business Decline At Rate Hearing

"Complete and comprehensive" shopping centers in Arlington and Fairfax are responsible for a decrease in profitable midday bus traffic in and out of the District, an Arnold Bus Lines witness testified yesterday.

Jesse F. Stokely, traffic manager of the company, blamed the shopping centers for "lighter" nonrush hour traffic between Washington and northern Virginia, in "the last few years" He testified at an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing on a five-cent increase on all cash fares, requested by the company.

More women are shopping locally, Stokely said, because "they have everything convenient near them." The centers include grocery, drug and specialty stores, as well as movies and service stores, he pointed out.

The decline in midday use of the Washington, Maryland and Virginia buses (known as the Arnold Lines) was one of the reasons cited yesterday by the company for its financial difficulties.

Stokely also testified that rush-hour traffic, which provides the bus line with 83 percent of its operating revenue, "is our most expensive operation" and is not profitable "in and of itself."

Eight passengers travel into the District for every one going to Virginia during the morning rush, Stokely said, forcing many buses to "deadhead" back to their Arlington terminal empty. The situation is true in reverse at night, he said.

New housing developments being built along the present bus routes will increase rush-hour traffic, "aggravating our situation," he said.

Evidence to show the bus line is operating certain routes "in the public interest" despite below-average operating revenue per mile was also introduced.

receives an average revenue of 13.16 cents per mile on the Falls Church-Oakton shuttle route, compared to an average revenue rate per mile of 44.25 cents on all routes.

Richard C. Bennett, company controller, said earlier that the wage increase granted company employes in September by an arbitration board will cost the company an estimated $212,027.55 for the 15-month period from May 18, 1949, to August 18, 1950.

It was also announced at the hearing yesterday by Arnold Lines Attorney S. Harrison Kahn that the State Corporation Commission has agreed to become a formal co-respondent with the bus company in the fare increase request. Lester Conley, attorney for the Arlington County Board, had previously insisted the State, as present operators of the strike-threatened line, must participate.

The hearing resumes at 9:30 a. m. today.

LaFontaine Wills Nearly All to Wife

James A. (Jimmy) LaFontaine, the almost legendary Washington gambling figure, left an estate of more than $1,000,000, it was disclosed yesterday.

LaFontaine, who died November 21 in a Baltimore hospital at the age of 81, left almost all of his estate in a trust fund for "my beloved wife, Annie." Mrs. LaFontaine lives at 470 Maryland ave. sw.

LaFontaine's will was filed for probate yesterday in District Court and the estimate of the estate's size was termed "conservative" by a source close to the family.

These bequests include $10,000 to Mrs. Nancy Leitch, a great-niece, of Marshall, Ill., and 11 bequests of $1000 each to the following:

James Raymond Kelly, described as "my chauffeur for many years"; Charles O. Tayman, 3821 34th st., Mount Rainier, Md.; Francis A. McGuigan, of Baltimore; Mrs. Anna Johnson, of 201 S. Lawrence dr., Silver Spring, Md.; Gladys Springman, of 4403 13th pl. ne.; Roy J. Saunders, of 320 Quackenbos st. nw.; Mrs. Nina Handy Merryman, of 3907 48th st., Bladensburg, Md.; John Sayer, of 5456 Nebraska ave. nw.; Nicholas Di Gennara, of 2222 Bunker Hill rd. ne.; Nancy Moran, of 468 Maryland ave. sw., and Patricia Ann Ryan, of 3803 Nicholson st., Hyattsville, Md.

LaFontaine was Patricia Ryan's godfather and Nancy Moran was described by a family spokesman as "a little girl who lived down the street from Mr. LaFontaine."

The will directed that upon the death of Mrs. LaFontaine the remainder of the estate should be split into 10 equal shares and distributed to nieces and nephews.

A full share each goes to Mrs. Helen B. Simmons, of 725 S. 24th st., Arlington; Mrs. Virginia Sayer of 5456 Nebraska ave., nw.; Mrs. Annie R. Larkin, of 111 Raymond ave., Alexandria; Mrs. Mary R. Bright, of 2784 Military rd. nw; Mrs. Louise Neuland, of 1337 Ives pl. se; Mrs. Rosina Hodges, of Avenue Post Office, Md.; Mrs. Mary F. Regan, of 112 Raymond ave., Alexandria; James A. LaFontaine, and Millard E. LaFontaine, both of 3153 Bladensburg rd. ne.

One share will be split between two grandnephews, William Robert Cecil, of 2321 Lincoln rd. ne, and Patrick Joseph LaFontaine, of Burke st. ne.

The will, dated last September 11, and a codicil, dated two days later, named the Lincoln National Bank and three close friends as executors. The friends are Attorney Charles E. Ford, Bernard A. Downey, of 1719 Lang pl. ne., and Emil C. Stamm, of 1312 61st pl., Hillside, Md. Ford was also named attorney for the estate.

$500 Reward Is Offered in Slug-Slaying

A $500 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Raymond B. Dodson was posted yesterday as Alexandria police admitted they had no clews in the slaying.

The reward was offered by the Mutual Ice Co. on N. Payne st. extended, Alexandria. Dodson's employer. He was found unconscious at 7:30 a. m. Tuesday beside his car, parked at the ice plant. His skull had been fractured by a blunt instrument, police said.

Police said robbery was the motive. Dodson had received his weekly pay—about $75 in cash—on Tuesday. Only 13 cents was found on him, according to police.

Four persons have been brought in to headquarters by police thus far for questioning, but they were later released. Dodson's friends and associates at the ice company also are being interrogated. In addition, transients near Alexandria or picked up near the ice company are under scrutiny.

Dodson, a recent widower, had no children. He had been living at a tourist cabin on U. S. Route 1.

Falls Church To Get New Postoffice

A new and larger postoffice for Falls Church, Va., is included on a list of 312 Federal building projects selected by the Postoffice Department and the General Services Administration yesterday for early construction.

The Falls Church postoffice project, originally authorized in 1938, has been shelved until now because of national defense building priority. The present office is i rented quarters on the southwest side of Broad st. between Lee hwy. and Fairfax st. The lease runs out June 30, 1952.

A site for a new postoffice was acquired at the northeast corner of Lee hwy. and Columbia st. by condemnation at a cost of $11,000. Since then Falls Church growth has made this tract inadequate in terms of size and location, department offidials said.

The General Services Administration therefore plans to advertise in the next few days for a larger site "more in line with the future growth of Falls Church" in exchange for the tract now held.

If an even swap cannot be arranged, condemnation may be necessary, a GSA official said. After the site is acquired, plans and specifications for a one-story colonial type postoffice will be prepared and Congress asked to appropriate funds, GSA said. A ceiling of $330,000 has already been earmarked for the site and structure.

5000 Properties To Be Advertised For Tax Sale

More than 5000 pieces of District property will be advertised December 6 to be sold for unpaid taxes January 17.

Yesterday was the deadline by which persons who owed fiscal 1949 real estate taxes could still pay and keep their names out of the paper.

The list will be published a second time December 16. The assessor's office said it would try to delete from the second list names of persons who pay up before December 9.

Payment before January 17 will forestall the sale.

Sailor Here To Fight Discharge

Patrick James Ryan, 24, erstwhile American sailor and member of the French Foreign Legion, was through town yesterday clutching a Navy Bad Conduct Discharge — and determined to carry his appeal from it to the President if necessary.

Ryan

Ryan came from Norfolk, Va., where he served the confinement part of his sentence. Good behavior cut the four months to two months and 20 days. A Navy general court martial trial in September here also demoted him to seaman recruit and gave him the B. C. D.

The court found the charge of desertion not proved but sentenced him for "unauthorized absence" from his destroyer.

Ryan admitted he missed ship in San Remo, Italy, July, 1947 —but claimed he was shanghaied into the Foreign Legion.

Walter H. Moorman, Ryan's attorney, said yesterday he had appealed to the Navy's clemency review board to set the bad conduct discharge aside. The board, he said, recommended that it stick. Moorman said he has been informed the Secretary of the Navy has approved this recommendation.

His next step, the attorney said, will be to appeal to the Navy's discharge review board—and if necessary, to "carry it through to the President."

Negro Pupils To Enter New School Dec. 12

The new Kelly Miller Junior High School, 49th st. and Washington pl. ne., was approved for occupancy yesterday by the building and grounds committee of the Board of Education.

Officials toured the 25-classroom school in a two-hour inspection trip.

It is expected students will be moved into the building December 12. Negro junior high pupils will be transferred from the Blow, Webb, Merritt and Thomas elementary schools where they have been attending classes pending completion of the building. More students will be moved from Browne Junior High School, 24th st. and Benning rd. ne., which has been operating above capacity.

Capacity of 1440 Students

School officials said 1294 students will be transferred to the new building which has a capacity of 1440.

Blow and Webb schools will be abandoned for junior high school purposes, Superintendent Hobart M. Corning said. A year ago a parent-inspired strike kept 200 students out of class more than a month in protest against the use of Blow and Webb as junior high schools.

The brick building trimmed with red architectural concrete was constructed at a cost of $1,626,400.

Besides the classrooms it contains 11 special rooms, including electrical, metal, woodworking, paint and home economics shops and art and science rooms.

Two Gymnasiums

Other facilities are a cafeteria with a dining room for teachers, two gymnasiums separated by a folding door, two recreation rooms with show facilities, an auditorium seating 800 and a library with a special research room.

The school has large windows. The interior is painted in five shades. Glass block is utilized in walls to project an equal amount of light throughout the gym. One classroom in the tower of the building has a three side exposure to light.

Dr. Corning said a new type furniture will be used. Desks will have light metal frames and the top writing space will be polished oak. Light and dark contrast will relieve eye strain.

Authority Makes Annexation Tour In Fairfax County

The firm is under consideration by the council to make a formal study. A $2000 appropriation for the survey has passed the council on first reading but must face a second and final reading before approval.

Discreet Firemen Lose No Time on Ladies-Only Floor

Firemen didn't have time to consult their etiquette books yesterday when they responded to a blaze in an elevator shaft at 1221 Connecticut ave. nw.

When they reached the third floor, immediately below the floor occupied by the Emile Health Institute, they were confronted by a sign which read: "Next floor ladies only. Gents take elevator to the fifth floor."

"Well, this elevator isn't working," said one fire laddie. "Close your eyes, men, and let's go."

The firemen went up the stairs so rapidly they did not see the four scantily-clad women busy with reducing and relaxing exercises in Emile's. Right up to the top floor they went and put out the fire.

Salesman Pleads Guilty to Charge Of $70 Forgery

A 56-year-old Baltimore salesman yesterday pleaded guilty in Montgomery County Circuit Court to forging and uttering a $70 check in Silver Spring last April 22.

John C. Erwin admitted writing the check and signing the names, "J. C. Martin—N. A. Peak." He insisted emphatically that Mrs. Nellie A. Peak of 908 Dartmouth ave., Silver Spring, had "nothing to do with the check."

Mrs. Peak, a trim-figured, modishly dressed housewife, denied on the witness stand the signature was hers, and there had ever been a joint account under those names.

Judge Stedman Prescott deferred sentencing and informed Erwin, who was not represented by counsel, that he might testify in his own behalf at the sentencing if he wished. Erwin declined to do so yesterday.

About New Recipes For 'Ancient Hens'

We have a collection of ancient hens, some of them in the freezer, others still on the hoof. Can you suggest ways of cooking them? We've had fricassee, stewed chicken with pilaf, and I've floured and browned cut up chicken and then simmered it. Any further suggestions? Do you or any of your readers know the recipe for chicken cataloni? I remember having it as a child in Spanish restaurants in Tampa. It has pimientoes in it and was served with rice. M. S. D.

Old chickens which have been dealt with gently by long, slow stewing provide a basis for innumerable delicious dishes. Chicken and dumplings is especially enhanced by the flavor from an old hen. Then, too, chicken which has been stewed until tender and then allowed to cool in the broth for added flavor and juiciness can be converted into delicious salads, loaves, mousses, souffles, a la king chicken, chow mein, curried chicken, chicken pie, creamed chicken, and croquettes.

Arroz Con Pollo is a delicious way to cook stewing chickens because the acid in the tomatoes helps to make the meat deliciously tender.

ARROZ CON POLLO
(Rice With Chicken)

1 chicken (3½ to 4 pounds)
½ cup olive oil
1 medium sized onion, chopped
1¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 clove garlic
1 tip bay leaf
3 cups canned tomatoes
1 cup raw rice
¾ teaspoon salt
6 pimiento-stuffed olives
1 green pepper

Disjoint chicken and wipe pieces. Cook gently in hot olive oil until browned, turning to brown evenly. Remove the chicken, cook onion in oil until transparent. Replace the chicken and add the salt, pepper, tomatoes, garlic, and bay leaf. Cook slowly for one or two hours, adding water if necessary. Then wash rice until no more starch is removed and add to mixture. Sprinkle ¾ teaspoon of salt over surface. Cook gently over low heat or in a 350-degree F. oven until rice is tender and fluffy and liquid is absorbed — about one more hour. Lift and stir the rice once after it has been in the pan for 15 or 20 minutes. When done, remove garlic and bay leaf. Turn onto a warm platter and garnish with slices of olives and green pepper rings. Serves 6.

Does anyone have a recipe for Chicken Cataloni?

About several weeks ago I discovered roaches in my apartment. I have had this apartment about two and a half years and this is the first time I have ever had any experience like this. I don't keep any exposed food about and am at a complete loss as to what brought them in. I am a good housekeeper and so the situation has me frantic. I noticed that some seemed to nest in, of all places, my husband's bureau. Actually, these roaches fly, and so they are spreading all over the house.

Please tell me what I may do to get rid of them. R. C.

You may have brought the parents of your present horde home from the grocery store in a bag of potatoes. Getting rid of them is, unfortunately, not as easy as getting them, but it can be done, and quickly, too, if you will open your offensive on a wide scale.

Start by removing everything from cupboards or drawers where they have been seen. Inspect your husband's bureau for eatables. A candy bar will attract them and men have been known to remove one from their pockets and absent mindedly drop it into the drawer. Wash shelves, and inside of drawers, and spray them thoroughly with 5 percent DDT. Give special attention to every crack or crevice, for that is where the critters spend the daylight hours. Take time to do the job thoroughly and don't miss a possible opening in the entire house where they might hide. Cracks around the sink, base boards, in the bathrooms, everywhere you have seen them.

It takes from three hours to four days to kill with DDT, but since the dried crystals left by the spray can be lethal to insects for several weeks, the effect is continuing. If you do not see a noticeable lessening of roaches in a week, it would be wise to repeat the entire spray operation.

It is safe to return food to the cupboard as soon as the spray is completely dry on the shelves. Do not allow the spray to fall on dishes, food, or cooking utensils.

If you wish, in addition to the spray you could force 10 percent DDT powder into cracks at baseboards, back of sinks, and around pipes where there is no chance the powder could contaminate food or be touched by small children or pets.

I have been a constant reader of your column and I feel you can help me. During my school days when our class was studying about Holland my teacher sent a letter to a girl whose name is Katrina. She asked her to send a product—a round ball of cheese covered with red waxed cheese cloth which, in, my opinion, was very good. Can you tell me a place in which I can purchase this cheese or an address in Holland where this cheese is made, also the price per pound. M. E. F.

The cheese to which you refer is Edam cheese, a very famous product from Holland. It is a hard, rennet cheese made from skimmed milk. The outside of the cheese is generally colored a brilliant red, but for some markets it is colored yellow. You will find both imported and domestic made Edam cheese sold extensively in grocery stores, and especially delicatessens which specialize in unusual cheeses. It sells for about 60 cents per cheese which weighs 12 ounces.

Plenty of Food, Drink At Ambassador's Party For FAO Delegation

By Marie McNair

DELEGATES to the Food and Agriculture Organization meeting in Washington have made record accomplishments.

They've agreed upon Rome as permanent headquarters and they've elected a new chairman—the first Latin American ever to be named in that capacity to an international organization.

Yesterday, the new chairman, Oscar Gans, Cuban Ambassador, and Senora de Gans entertained all the delegates and the secretariat at a late afternoon cocktail party and for once, the male sex predominated at a Washington fete.

There seemed to be no end to the line marching up the red-carpeted marble stairway at the Cuban Embassy yesterday. Some arrived early. Larger groups came in around 7. All had a gracious welcome from the Ambassador and Senora de Gans, who received in the petit salon, Senora de Gans wearing an extremely smart black frock low on the shoulders, with a cluster of pink roses on the skirt, which was draped to the hip.

Plenty of Trays Made Rounds

There was no end, either, to the trays of champagne, Scotch and Cuban rum drinks making the circuit through the drawing rooms. And in the dining room, turkeys and hams were carved, lobster patties were finding favor along with rich pastries and cakes.

The Burmese, Thai and Indonesian delegates seemed to stick together, Thailand's group headed by Nai Insee Chandrastitya, director general of the Department of Agriculture. With H. G. Wattimena from Indonesia was his pretty wife in a long and slim red silk skirt topped by a gay blue tunic blouse.

Saris Add Color Touch

The Ceylonese Ambassador, George Corea, who is also his country's FAO member, was accompanied by Mme. Corea in a red and gold brocade sari, and Mme. Sen, wife of the Indian Minister, chief delegate to FAO, had draped a scarlet sari about her tiny figure.

Joseph Davies There Early

Former Ambassador and Mrs. Joseph Davies were early at the embassy, Mrs. Davies dominating the room with her beautifully coiffed hair and her costume—cocoa brown paradise feathers on her hat, worn with a brown satin frock with a skirt which swished as she walked. Mr. Davies had a birthday on Tuesday and proudly admits to it being his seventy-third.

The Netherlands Ambassador, Eelco van Kleffens, who represents Holland at the conference, came in for a brief stay. The Swiss Minister and Mme. Bruggmann were there with their country's delegate, Werner Fuchss, counselor of the delegation. I saw Paul Daniels, our Ambassador to the Organization of American States, but not peppy Mrs. Daniels; and chatted briefly with Mrs. Morris Cafritz in a magnificent Dior black velvet hat with slashed halo brim, worn with a slim black satin frock all but covered with a blue mink stole.

The Austrian Minister, Dr. Ludwig Kleinwaechter, and Mme. Kleinwaechter came in, so did Justice Stanley Reed who found a congenial conversation companion in former Assistant Secretary of State, Breckinridge Long.

Embassy Has Corner on Looks

The Ecuador Ambassador, Augusto Dillon, quietly made his way through the throng; so did the Right Rev. L. G. Ligutti of Des Moines, who is an FAO permanent observer from the Holy See.

The ladies of the Cuban Embassy staff seem to have a corner on good looks. There was Senora de Meyer, wife of the Minister-Counselor, in black velvet with white feather spray on her hat, and dark-haired Senora de Rivero, wife of the First Secretary, in plain black with a flared brim black hat. Senora de Baron, American-born wife of the alternate delegate from Cuba to OAS, was perfectly at home at the embassy where for so many years her husband served as counselor.

"I live on Cuban rum," said George Bean in mock seriousness as he sipped a Casablanca. "You mean Cuba lives on you," said quick-witted Lieut. Carlos Alonso, Assistant Naval Attache of the Cuban Embassy, referring to Mr. and Mrs. Bean's annual winter sojourn in Havana.

Others from unofficial Washington present were Mrs. Septimus Austin and her daughter, Miss Madeleine Austin; Mrs. Lee Murphy, Mrs. Benjamin Hill and the Thomas Burkes.

Mary Haworth's Mail

After Discarding Unfaithful Husband, Woman Grows Sensitive to Her Divorced Status and Feels Panicky About It in Social Situations

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My attention was captured by the headlines on a front page news story about the forthcoming marriage of a young society woman to a British peer.

As I read a little farther I came across these words, "The slender, dark-haired American divorcee——," and again I experienced a feeling of rebellion, as I have so often before. Even in the announcement of wedding plans, there is no escape from the word "divorce."

I am almost 30 and have been divorced for seven years. I had a conservative upbringing and I did my best to make a good marriage, but when my husband could not be faithful to me, I felt obliged to terminate our relationship.

I HAVE BEEN reared in the church and I choose to associate with people who go to church, but even in church circles I experience a feeling of panic when I am introduced to a stranger, because I know that sooner or later it will come out that I have been divorced.

I have made a reasonable adjustment to the situation in the work I am doing, but I face a future with no home or children, which is all I ever wanted. And almost as bad is the constant reminder that I am a divorcee. No one ever lets you forget it. How can one get rid of this feeling? E. L.

Her Self-Esteem Has Taken Beating

DEAR E. L.: It may seem to you that being a divorcee is the main source of your wretchedness in relation to society. But if we could see your life history in clear perspective, I think we might find that your broken marriage was just another blow in a series of hard knocks that had been battering your self-esteem from the time you were knee high to a duck.

The foregoing assumption—namely (1) that it is an old story with you to feel "outside the pale" and (2) that the indignity of divorce seems the last straw—is based on the melancholy intensity of your rebellious feeling that "there is no escape from the word divorce."

The general tenor of your complaint amounts to saying that, from your viewpoint, to be a divorcee is to be shamefully stigmatized, per se, as a moral failure, a social failure, a failure in love, etc. Although you earnestly believe you are simply reporting what others think about divorced persons (or how they treat them), actually you are wrestling to a considerable extent with a vast accumulation of unconscious guilt feelings, which make you acutely allergic to mention of "divorce."

IN PSYCHIATRIC parlance you are "projecting" the latest quirk in your lifelong habit of self-reproach, in imagining nowadays that anyone who gets to know you must, sooner or later, share your innermost conviction that you are "no good" and that your being a divorcee is absolute proof of it. In short, you are always defensive against being "discovered" at your wretched estimate of yourself,—a very low estimate not formed in your mind, but branded upon your emotions by discouraging experiences and disheartening criticism in early years.

Your essential problem is an anxiety neurosis; and to say, as you do, that nobody lets you forget your divorce status, that you are being constantly reminded of it, that there is no escape from the word disparagingly used, etc., is simply to touch on one concentrated symptom of obsessional self-concern. You live in the shadow of some nebulous threat to your well being, you feel; and you vaguely indicate that others' condemnation of your record is the destructive something you most fear.

The bogeyman isn't outside yourself, in unkind views that others may hold. Nor is it in the misfortune of being divorced. Such as it is, it has its existence in your unconscious, in a complex of self-damning fears implanted before you reached the age of reason. And to rid yourself of that affliction, you may have to enlist firsthand psychological help. M. H.

Marshall to Get Own Portrait

In the Hall of Americas of the Pan American Union today, Gen. George C. Marshall will be presented with a portrait of himself, painted by Colombian artist Marco Salas during the general's stay in Bogota in the spring of 1948. The presentation of the portrait will be made by Colombian Ambassador Eduardo Zuleta-Angel.

At the same time, 50 paintings by Colombian artists from the private collection of Mrs. B. Forest Uhl, who lives in Colombia, will be on view. The exhibition, sponsored by the Colombian Ambassador, will be open to the public through December 14. Alberto Lleras, secretary general of the Organization of American States, will make a brief address tomorrow, and the event will be attended by officials, diplomats and art devotees.

Miracle Man

Winnie Was a Sight—or So the Smith Gals Said; Biddle Bid by Hollywood

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

BRITISH Tourist Impresario Extraordinary Peter Lubbock has been in town briefly, checking on next season's trade.

Lubbock, who has coaxed untold numbers of Americans to spend their dollars in Britain, devoted most of his summer weekends meeting clients as they arrived in London from the "Queens"—Mary and Elizabeth. It was an unspectacular job but towards mid-August Lubbock achieved an unexpected success which earned him the most terrific reputation in, of all places, college girl circles.

Standing on the platform waiting for a large group of Smith College students, Lubbock suddenly spotted, only a few feet distant, Winston Churchill, cigar and all. Agasp with delight, the Smith collegites spotted the former P. M. too—and immediately credited Lubbock with having brought him along as welcoming committee.

"I don't care whether I only get water and crusts of bread as long as I'm here—now that I've seen Winston Churchill—My trip is heaven!" gurgled one young miss. Anyway, word has gotten around that Lubbock is a miracle man and feminine students from all over are signing up for his tours. (N. B. Mr. Churchill was meeting his old pal, Bernard Baruch.)

Gascoignes Will Be Missed

THIS MORNING the British Ambassador, Sir Oliver Franks, is decorating Gen. Julian Gascoigne with the C. B., or Companion of the Bath. On December 10, after seeing "Kiss Me Kate," the Gascoignes will sail for England, where the general will take up his new job as commander of the London district.

In between, the Gascoignes will be subjected to the usual hectic round of farewells, including one unusual festivity—an exhibition of Joyce Gascoigne's paintings arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Burke Wilkinson next Monday afternoon at the United Nations Club.

Mrs. Gascoigne who, perhaps, inherits some of her artistic talent from a Greek grandmother, has made quite a reputation as an artist, but comparatively few of her friends have been privileged to see her paintings.

The general, who here in Washington has been deputy to Gen. Sir William Morgan, will take over in London from Gen. John Marriott who is married to "Momo" Kahn, elder daughter of the late Otto Kahn.

Being commander of the London district is a very plush job, indeed, involving such elegant pomp and circumstance as being in charge of the Guards regiments, and leading official parades. For these stylish occasions the General will ride a white horse, sport a plumed hat and—since he's tall and wears a monocle—the effect should be more than satisfactory.

The Gascoignes, an utterly beguiling combination who will be very much missed in Washington, will leave behind as hostage their teen-age daughter, Merida. She's named, incidentally, after the Spanish city where the Gascoignes honeymooned.

Biddle Gets Hollywood Bid

IT ISN'T OFTEN that a high Government official gets a chance to go genuinely Hollywood. But former Attorney General Francis Biddle has been offered a movie-stint as technical advisor to MGM's forthcoming production of "The Magnificent Yankee." The play, which starred Louis Calhern and ran on Broadway for several seasons, was based on Biddle's book on Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Recently, the play was bought by MGM, which plans to enlarge it to moving picture scope—and to keep the production suitably dignified. Mr. B. who's on the verge of polishing off another book and has just bought a house at Wellfleet on Cape Cod, is reluctant to leave the East. So, at the moment, the Hollywood trek is still under consideration.

It's All in the Package

Perfume Wrappings Fit Holiday Mood

By Peggy Preston

PERFUMES come in such fancy trappings this season that you'll have difficulty in making gift selections. You are bound to be torn between the type of fragrance and its wrappings, so suited to the holiday mood.

Elizabeth Arden, for instance, has ornamented all her little treasures with enchanting fantasy. Her Snowman, fitted out with top hat and silver broom, jauntily smiles his greetings and offers you a bottle of Blue Grass Flower Mist. Then, there is her plumed bottle of "My Love," nestled in a frivolous pink sleigh —the whole drawn by four dancing little ponies made of soap; a Christmas stocking, fur tipped at top and toe, filled with such feminine delights as dusting powder, sachet, cologne, etc.

Frances Denney has dreamed up a little figurine to represent "Mrs. Santa Claus,' who turns up in all the gift packages from this firm. Mrs. Santa, in velvet and fur attire, adorns the top of a box containing a "Whiffer"—a perfume container for the purse. Her figure also appears on such items as wrapping paper, ribbon, etc., and on tiny gift cards which may be attached to the box. The boxes may hold any accorded group of gifts you wish, including cologne, bath oil, dusting powder and perfume.

THE quaint little shop of Mary Chess is filled with attractive gifts, ready to be wrapped in holiday colors. There are tiny Christmas socks, in red and green, filled to overflowing with dainty sachet squares. For your friends who like to collect unusual bottles there are some authentic antiques. Charming also, are the copies of chessmen including the King, Queen and Pawn, made into miniature perfume bottles.

Other gift suggestions you might like to consider from this shop include a perfume lamp, designed to send a stream of scented vapors through a house; tubes of perfumed lacquer, which, when daubed on the inside of a bureau drawer, keep lingerie fragrant for months; boxes filled with five vials of bath oil, all in different scents, or a similar box containing perfumes.

Marie Earle offers her famous Ballerina fragrance in pretty packages, ready for Christmas giving. This year she presents, for the first time, a set of toilet water and perfume, labeled "Mother and Daughter" in the Rallet No. 1 fragrance.

SCORES of daintily decorated perfume gifts are on the market this month. Among them is this delicate, white plaster bell with a little bottle of Golden Chance forming the clapper. Sequin-studded, lacy paper is tied with a sprig of green and gold holly.

To Autograph 'Mr. Jones'

Mrs. Peter Marshall, widow of the former Senate Chaplain, will autograph copies of "Mr. Jones, Meet the Master," a collection of her husband's prayers and sermons Friday, 5:30-7:30 p. m., at the YWCA Book Shop.

PRECIOUS gift to find under the tree on Christmas morning is a beautifully packaged box of toiletries. It may contain a big bottle of your favorite perfume, or, as in this case, a group of such fragrant items as eau de toilette, sachet, soap or skin lotion.

B'nai B'rith Women Hear Youth Report

By Genevieve Reynolds and Nicha Souré

THE B'NAI B'RITH WOMEN, Argo, lunched together yesterday and heard about Hillel Foundations, a Nation-wide organization of Jewish college students, from three different quarters.

Guest of honor at the meeting was Mrs. Arthur Lelyveld, director of the Hillel Foundation in Hunter College, who flew in from New York to speak at the meeting.

The other two portions of the Hillel program were local; Mrs. Theodore Shapiro, president, BBWA, presented a $4000 check to Mrs. Nat H. Levy, president, board of directors, Hillel Foundation at George Washington University; and Miss Ruth Lemelman and Manny Herzner, of the GWU Hillel Foundation Choir, were featured singers on the afternoon program.

Mrs. Lelyveld, introduced by the program chairman, Mrs. Herman Hertzberg, told the B'nai B'rith women that Hillel serves as "a home away from home for the Jewish students."

More Applications on File

THIS YEAR, the Hillel Foundation's silver jubilee year, finds almost 200 councils and foundations on the campuses of American colleges and universities, Mrs. Lelyveld said. But, she added, the national office has 100 more applications from colleges and universities to establish Hillel clubs.

Mrs. Lelyveld, who is the wife of Rabbi Lelyveld, the national director of Hillel Foundations, told of a Hebrew university professor visiting in the United States who was exploring the possibilities of expanding the Hebrew university student program by establishing an organization of students similar to Hillel.

Mrs. Lindsay P. Rawley, chairman of the Women's Section, D. C. Savings Bonds Division, presented a certificate to Mrs. Shapiro for the work of B'nai B'rith Women, Argo, in the savings bond campaign.

Taking Over New Duties

MISS MARGARET MEALEY of Oakland, Calif., will take over her duties as executive secretary of the National Council of Catholic Women today.

MISS MEALEY

Miss Mealey succeeds Mrs. George Rock of Washington, the former Miss Ruth Craven, who resigned in August following her marriage to Dr. Rock, dean of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences of Catholic University.

As executive secretary, Miss Mealey will coordinate Nation-wide programs of the N.C.C.W., a federation of more than 5900 Catholic women's groups with a membership of six million throughout the United States.

The organization serves as a medium through which Catholic women in the country can act as a unit on matters of public interest. Through adult education it trains women lay leaders in such fields as religious education, social action, family and parent relationships, legislation and international relations.

Nabuco Anniversary to Be Celebrated

WHEN El Ateneo Americano de Washington celebrates the 100th anniversary of Joaquin Nabuco, illustrious Brazilian statesman, two of that great man's children will be present at the event. The famous children of the famous father are none other than the Brazilian Ambassador Mauricio Nabuco and his author-sister, Miss Caroline Nabuco. Scene of the centenary commemoration will be the Peruvian Embassy tomorrow at 6 p.m. with the Peruvian Ambassador, Don Fernando Berckemeyer as host.

Included on the brief program will be greetings from the president of El Ateneo Americano, the Honduran Ambassador, Rafael Heliodoro Valle; and from Peruvian Ambassador to the Organization of American States, Juan Bautista de Lavalle. An address, "Nabuco, a Man of America," will be given by Mexican Ambassador to OAS Luis Quintinilla. Miss Nabuco, daughter of the elder Nabuco, will give a talk, as will Ambassador Berckemeyer.

Both Ambassadors Valle and Berckemeyer are well-known writers, as are other members of Washington's El Ateneo.

Joaquin Nabuco laid the cornerstone of the Pan American Union itself. And the noted Brazilian was instrumental in founding the "good neighbor policy" which the late President Roosevelt put into effect throughout the Americas. Just as the elder Nabuco laid the cornerstone at the Pan American Union, his son, Mauricio, made the principal speech at the cornerstone laying of the Union's new administration building.

Drug Clerk Accused Of Train-Wreck Try

Baltimore, Nov. 30 (AP).—The FBI contends a 26-year-old drug store clerk tried to wreck a speeding New York to Washington passenger train by placing a heavy crosstie on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks.

The clerk, Thomas Ross Moore, of Joppa, Md., was arrested yesterday by FBI agents, arraigned before United States Commissioner Ernest Volkart, and held in $10,000 bail for Federal Grand Jury action.

He was charged specifically with violating the Federal train wreck statute, which carries a maximum penalty of 20 years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

The FBI said Moore admitted placing a crosstie on the mainline tracks near Joppa. The agents gave no indication of a motive.

The passenger train, No. 511, was rolling along at an 80-mile-an-hour clip early November 7, when it hit the heavy piece of wood. The engine jumped and the engineer quickly applied the emergency brake and the train ground to a stop.

Half the crosstie was found jammed beneath the undercarriage. The other piece was found in a nearby field. Railroad men said that it was little short of a miracle that the train was not wrecked.

Study in Jail Produces New Trial for Man

Two years after his conviction, Jay Paul Shelton, 31, yesterday won a new trial on an auto theft charge for which he is serving one to five years in prison.

The chance at freedom was largely the result of Shelton's study of law while serving time. Once called a "man of great capabilities" by a judge and the "poet laureate of Atlanta Penitentiary" by his jail associates, Shelton has seen most of the charges filed against him dismissed through his efforts.

Shelton, an Arlington used car salesman and bill collector, was arrested first in 1945 in connection with a Virginia bank robbery and kidnaping. He won his acquittal on this count but then was charged with car theft, perjury and forgery.

While awaiting trial on these charges, he escaped custody of a United States Marshal and was sent to jail for three years on this charge.

Then came a conviction of perjury, which was reversed by the United States Court of Appeals here, and of the car-theft charge. The forgery charge was dismissed.

During his imprisonment on the escape and auto theft charges, he wrote and edited prison publications and studied the law pertaining to his case.

His efforts are documented by more than 11 pages of court dockets.

Finally, he filed for a new trial for the car theft conviction on grounds of newly discovered evidence. Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut granted it yesterday.

Shelton was convicted on the testimony of an accomplice and on the evidence that he escaped just after he was served, according to the Government, with a warrant in October, 1945, charging the theft.

Shelton vainly contended that he escaped only because he was tired of being "juggled between jails" and that the warrant actually was served on him in September, 1945, a month before his escape.

The original copy of the warrant indicated that this may have been so, Judge Schweinhaut found.

Nonpartisan Election Law Backed Anew

The Arlington County P-TA Council last night reaffirmed its two-year stand in favor of a nonpartisan school board election law.

The council, meeting at the Thomas Jefferson Junior High School for its annual workshop program, also adopted a $500 budget for the coming year.

The following resolution favoring the nonpartisan election law was offered by Mrs. Barbara S. Marx, chairman of the legislative committee, who urged that other groups interested in the law be offered the council's aid.

In early 1948 the council adopted a similar resolution. About 140 persons were present last night.

Included in the council's budget is a $150 item listed as expenses of a council delegate to the 1950 National P-TA Convention.

The council workshop program dealing with classroom instruction as related to radios, movies and comic books, was headed by Major T. C. Jones.

He introduced Mrs. Mildred Coan, of the Falls Church P-TA, who told the group of the activities in Falls Church to eliminate "undesirable comic books."

"We are not on a witch hunt in Falls Church," Mrs. Coan said, but she indicated that the citizens are seeking to "teach discrimination in reading."

She said that the current issues of comics which she termed "romance comics," demonstrate a lack of good taste." This is harmful to adolescents, she said.

Other workshops included budget and finance, membership, health and guidance, parent education, public relations, recreation and playgrounds, safety and legislation.

The council is composed of P-TAs representing 33 Arlington schools.

Princeton Triangle Club to Play 'Come Across' at Lisner Dec. 21

WASHINGTON'S debutantes, Princeton University alumni and their friends will fete the Princeton Triangle Club on December 21, when the undergraduate musical comedy group brings its fifty-eighth production to Lisner Auditorium.

The Triangle show is always an occasion for holiday season theater parties. This year the play is "Come Across," a gay satire on traveling Senators and United States foreign affairs. The student-written musical stars a Senator's daughter, quartet leader and a passport photographer in a light hearted romance; interpretive dancing by the husky "girls" of a peasant chorus, and a plot that involves an attempt to underwrite the prune industry of the Republic of Ripoli.

A Washington resident is president of the Triangle Club this year. He is Robert G. Abernethy, son of Mrs. Lois J. Abernethy and grandson of the Rev. and Mrs. William S. Abernethy. Mr. Abernethy starred in the Triangle show last year, "All In Favor." This season, however, he will concentrate on the production of the play.

Edward H. Tuck of Perrywood, Upper Marlboro, Md., who has furnished scripts and lyrics for two previous Triangle production, again is a principal author for the club. Mr. Tuck is the son of William H. Tuck, former president of the International Refugee Organization. Also active in this year's show is Peter F. C. Armstrong, of Washington, son of Mrs. W. C. Armstrong. He is a chorus member.

The Triangle Club, which counts Booth Tarkington among its founders and James Stewart and Jose Ferrer among the noted actors it has produced, is sponsored here by the Princeton Club of Washington. The show will benefit the Princeton Club's scholarship fund.

Appointed to receive the 75 undergraduates when they stop here on their Christmas-time tour is a committee of eight Princeton alumni, headed by Clarence Dodge, jr. Assisting Mr. Dodge are Thad H. Brown, jr., Alfred M. Osgood, James Wyper, jr., Richard P. Stifel, John A. Nevius, Huntington T. Block and John M. Kauffmann.

Jury to Rule On Assault of Wife, In-Law

A District Court jury today will receive the case of William Francis Tydings sr., 52, charged with trying to beat to death his wife and mother-in-law.

Police charge that Tydings, an engineer supervising electrical work at the Capitol, used his fists with intent to kill the two women during an argument September 14 over an impending separation.

Tydings claims he had been drinking heavily during the day of the beating, and could not remember having touched either woman.

The wife, Mrs. Ruth Aull Tydings, and her mother, Mrs. Elnore R. Aull, 72, both spent more than a week in the hospital.

Assistant United States Attorney C. Frank Reifsnyder is prosecuting. The defense attorney for Tydings, who resides in Bowie, Md., is Hilary W. Costello.

Montgomery Asks Aid in Publicizing Job Openings

The Montgomery County Personnel Board has asked the aid of county civic associations in publicizing job openings under the county's merit system.

In addition vacancies are being reported to placement officials, colleges and universities and other usual sources of applicants in specialized fields, Ben Hall, county personnel director, said.

Applications for 15 openings, provided by the county's new governmental structure, are now being sought, Hall said.

These include an animal shelter supervisor, dog catcher, highway inspectors, engineering draftsmen, various engineering field positions, sanitation division chief and sanitarian.

Doctorate Mill Prexy Described As Relief Client

New York, Nov. 30 (U.P.).—A mail-order college, which bestowed diplomas ranging from Doctor of Law to Doctor of Philosophy for sums of $1 to $75, had as its president a man who has been on city relief since 1941, Attorney General Nathaniel Goldstein said today.

Goldstein obtained a court order enjoining William De Jesus, 36, to show cause why he should not be prevented from conducting the correspondence school and awarding degrees from his "Christian Theological College."

The action against De Jesus was begun when relief investigators found one of their clients listed as a "college president." They said he and his family had received $10,711 n public assistance since 1941.

De Jesus has an assortment of mail order degrees, Goldstein said, including one of Doctor of Divinity from a National Bible College at Grand Forks, D., which once sent out a brochure suggesting diplomas for Christmas presents at $5 each.

The Attorney General said De Jesus had made enough on his school to buy an apartment house.

Farmers' Plea Boosts Olney Assessments

A protest by two Olney (Md.) farmers that their farms were assessed too high in proportion to neighboring properties has resulted only in an order to raise the valuations of the lesser assessed properties.

Wilton T. Allen, Montgomery County Supervisor of Assessments, yesterday received an order from the State Tax Commission to reassess the more favored properties to equalize assessments for the year 1950-51.

Earlier, after a hearing of the embattled farmers' complaints by the State tax body on October 6, Allen had been directed to make a survey of the situation for report to the commission. The report was made Tuesday.

The protesting farmers, Lemuel Showell and W. H. Groomes, appealed to the State Commission after gaining a reduction from the with other farms located just County Tax Appeal Court which they deemed insufficient.

They contended their assessments, $13,900 for Showell's 97.8-acre farm and $8500 for Croomes' 60 acres, were out of proportion across Brookeville rd.

These farms, now to have their assessments raised, are owned by Frederick D. Oland and George T. Craver. Oland's assessment now is $9580 for 137.5 acres, and Craver's 50 acres are valued at $6210.

The wide difference in valuation was explained by Allen as follows: The Oland and Craver properties were assessed in 1948 as part of the resurvey of the Laytonsville District and the other farms were reassessed last year along with others in the Olney District. Brookeville rd. is the dividing line. By an oversight, Allen said, the adjoining edges of the two distriets were not "blended" in accordance with usual procedure.

150 Sunny Hours Charted In November

November distinguished itself by passing through Washington with only negligible traces of snow, very little rain and 150 hours and 16 minutes of sunshine.

If the sun had shone every single daylight minute, Washington could have had 302 hours of its bright light, but the Weather Bureau thinks we made out pretty well, anyway.

November did shatter a record—the 78 degrees recorded for November 11 was the highest on record for that date, but not the hottest November day; that was sweltered through back on November 2, 1929, when the temperature hit 83.

The Weather Bureau reported 18, 25 and 27, none enough to be three snow flurries, on November traced. There were only .94 inches of rain during the month, of which .32 inches fell November 1. Normal rainfall in November is 2.37 inches.

Temperatures during the month ranged a little higher than the normal November, too. The average high was 57.1 degrees, as compared with a normal of 54.1.

Washington got through the turkey month without a single thunderstorm, had 11 days of clear weather, seven of partly cloudy weather and 12 of cloudy weather.

This Was November . . .

School Razed for Playground

The District Commissioners yesterday ordered the Dennison School torn down to provide playground space as soon as the Board of Education vacates the building.

School officials said they plan to move out of the building, on S st., nw. between 13th and 14th sts., by next June. It is now used for Negro school offices.

Also ordered razed was a row of District-owned slum dwellings beside the school. Acquired just before the war the dwellings were called "extremely dilapidated and unsanitary" by the Health Department.

All District-owned land in the block except two lots used as a parking area, will be turned over to the Recreation Department to help meet "an acute need of recreation area in the neighborhood." It was stipulated, however, that the land will revert to school use when the Board of Education can show a need for it.

Paul A. Chalupsky, District property survey officer, said occupants of the dwellings are being served notices to vacate in 30 days.

Legion Plans Awards for 'Good Citizens'

The average Washington citizen who takes an active hand in civic affairs is generally a forgotten person—and the American Legion, District Department, plans to do something about him.

Charles T. Bell, Legion civic relations committee chairman, last night announced a program of "Good Citizen of the Month" awards.

The monthly awards, said Bell, are "an effort to stimulate interest in civic affairs and to recognize outstanding civic achievement by Washington residents."

The first award will be made in January based on a selection for December.

You don't have to be a Congressman or a District government official. In fact, that will disqualify you from receiving the Legion's Good Citizen Medal and certificate. A person must be either a District resident or conduct a business here.

The Legion invites citizen groups to submit nominations to Legion Headquarters, 2437 15th st. nw.

Trademark Charge Filed by Laundry

The ABC Laundry, 200 5th st. se., filed suit yesterday in District Court to prevent the ABC Cleaners & Tailors, 2429 Minnesota ave. se., from continuing to use the "ABC" designation. Charging trademark infringement, the laundry asked injunctions and damages.

"It's a real wife-saver"

"I'm talking about our new extension telephone. It certainly saves Mary a lot of steps and time and trouble. She can answer the telephone now without having to run downstairs each time it rings. And, of course, she can make calls from either floor.

"I like the convenience of our second telephone, too. When we're entertaining guests, it's like having a 'private' telephone—both for them and for us. In convenience, comfort and privacy, our extension telephone pays for itself—many times over."

You can have an extension telephone for only a few cents per day

THE MAN WHO—

—got the cold shoulder

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Love Comes First

The importance of love in bringing up children can hardly be overstressed. To be sure, one can find situations in which children are smothered with the wrong kind of love. They may be figuratively tied hand and foot by a "sticky" kind of affection that doesn't permit them to learn to stand on their own feet emotionally.

But such situations are rare exception. Study of the reaction of even very young infants show that they thrive physically and otherwise when they are loved particularly when that love is shown through caresses and fondling. Indeed one writer, Margaret Ribble, sees this as so important that she has titled the book in which she writes of the child's need for a warm parental affection, "The Rights of Infants."

For a time, child psychologists and children's doctors "got off the track." They took a dim view of maternal love and felt that the child could, to advantage, be spared the caresses of his parents. More emphasis was put on building self-reliance and independence very early. But more careful study and observation of young children shows that love comes first. No mother or father should feel guilty about expressing affection toward the child. It's an important ingredient for wholesome growing.

Six Flee Road Camp, Cross Virginia Line

Jackson, N. C., Nov. 30 (AP).—Using a prison camp foreman as a shield, six prisoners escaped from a road gang today after firing at a guard.

The six, working on a road gang within sight of the Virginia border, fled over the State line in a prison truck.

Northampton County Prison Superintendent D. M. Sellers said he has "no idea" how the prisoners, who he said were armed with two pistols and a shotgun, got their arms.

Search Party Reaches Scene of Plane Crash

McChord Air Base, Wash., Nov. 30 (AP).—McChord Air Base reported at 3 p. m. (PST) today that a search party had reached the scene of a crashed airplane on Mount Saint Helens in southwest Washington.

It was believed to be the C-54 which vanished with six aboard A McChord officer said the mountain party had reported:

"Got to scene of airplane crash. No survivors. Plane under snow."

THE DISTRICT LINE

by Bill Gold

Maybe the Dollar Was His Interest

Stella Striner of 7800 Orchid st. nw. tries to catch us napping with an oldie.

It's the one about the fellow who deposited $50 in the bank, and then made four withdrawals—apparently picking up a dollar en route. Like this:

He drew	$20	Balance	$30
He drew	$15	Balance	$15
He drew	$ 9	Balance	$ 6
He drew	$ 6	Balance	0
Total	$50	Total	$51

You're asked to account for the odd dollar, and if you can't do it then you'll have to read all the way to the end of the column to get the answer.

GOLF STORY

Mrs. R. H. Adams of 101 Fairhaven ave., Alexandria, Va., gets a chuckle out of the story of the golf professional who was approached by two women.

"Good morning," said the pro. "Do you wish to learn to play golf, madam?"

"Oh, no," said the woman he had addressed. "It's my friend here who wants to learn. I learned yesterday."

MISCELLANY

That courteous policeman at Wisconsin and M sts. is in again. Mrs. J. Dilmon Moreland of 4816 9th st. nw. tells me that she, too, was deeply impressed with the officer's polite conduct when she was guilty of a minor traffic violation at that intersection. The trouble is that I don't have dates or times, so I can't find out whether this is the same courteous cop or whether all the men who work the Wisconsin and M corner are such fine gentlemen. . . . Miriam T. Kuskin of 1533 Spring pl. nw. says I must be sure to mention the Raymond P-TA luncheon to be held at noon today in the school auditorium, Spring rd. and 10th st. nw. All the food has been donated by the parents, and proceeds will be used to buy phonographs for the classes. . . . Speaking of food, Mrs. R. L. Gilbert of 6119 7th pl. nw. says if you're fretting about coffee prices, be glad you're not living in Germany, where coffee is now $3.50 per pound. Incidentally, if you're thinking of sending food or clothing overseas as part of your Christmas observance but don't quite know how to go about it, Mrs. Gilbert will be glad to talk to you on Tuckerman 3211. . . . Lieut. Comdr. Charles Brendler invites you to attend the series of Friday evening concerts which the United States Navy Band begins tomorrow night at 8:30 at the Departmental Auditorium. (Note: The concerts will be given each Friday night until next April, with the exception of the Fridays before and after Christmas—December 23 and 30.) Commander Brendler not only enjoys a considerable fame as leader of the renowned Navy Band, but also as a demon at filling inside straights against columnists who think three aces constitute a pretty fair poker hand.

BOOK REVIEW

If it's true that a picture is worth 10,000 words, a new volume scheduled for release this Sunday should provide the equivalent of 5 million words.

It's "Washington, Past and Present," a picture story that should hold a great deal of interest for District Liners—especially those who have lived here for any great length of time.

The book is published by the Public Affairs Press ($4.50) and was compiled by Post Reporter Chalmers M. Roberts.

It includes photographs depicting just about every phase of Washington life, including one fine shot of the back of my head—ears flapping in the breeze—as Mr. Truman holds forth at a press conference.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Three assorted 8-week-old kittens, very pretty." (North 0491.)

"Two 3-month-old pups; all black, sleep in box outside. Prefer families with children." (Wisconsin 6361.)

THOUGHT FOR TODAY

The Community Chest's difficulty in reaching its goal is a commentary on the prosperous times in which we live.

Perhaps we'd be a bit more sympathetic to the needs of our neighbors if we weren't so well-off ourselves.

BRIEF PAUSE FOR SPONSOR IDENTIFICATION

In answer to many inquiries: Yes, my radio program ended last Friday. A half-hour every day plus a column is too much work. They're trying to whip up a 10-minute spot, three days a week, and if they can work it out, maybe I'll be back.

PERSONAL NOTES

J. Wallace Collins, jr., 522 46th st. se.: I think you're right. The lines under the picture should have referred to the concave shape of the interior of the Capitol dome. Webster says "convex" refers to the outer line, "concave" to the inner.

OH, WHAT HE SAID!

Bill Plampin of 4108 Tunlaw ter. nw. voices stern disapproval of Capital Transit's talk of raising fares and reducing service. He snaps:

"If that's their idea of how to make money, why don't they raise fares to a dollar and eliminate service entirely?"

ANSWER TO PUZZLE

There's no reason why the total of the balances should be the same as the original deposit. If the man had withdrawn his money $1 at a time, his first balance would have been $49, after the second withdrawal $48, after the third $47, and so on. The total of the various balances—a meaningless figure—would have been $1225.

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—Adrian Scott, one of the indicted Hollywood Ten, who went to Paris to do a movie, had to return here before he could start working on the screen play. The American Embassy, on instructions from the Department of Justice, refused to extend his passport . . . The Shah of Persia, who started to read the wrong speech at the United Nations, explains the error this way: He was driven to Lake Success in an open car with a police escort clearing the way. The open car traveled so rapidly that the wind burned his eyes, and he couldn't see the speech.

Robert Merrill, the Metropolitan Opera's leading baritone, is rehearsing for the Met's "Samson and Delilah." When his friends ask if he's playing the Samson role, Merrill tells them: "No, I play the high priest," and then he adds the explanation: "It's the part that George Sanders plays in the movie." Kitty Carlisle, whose Christmas present to her husband, Moss Hart, once was a gold tobacco case specially fitted to his back pocket, this year is giving him a trenchcoat lined with mink.

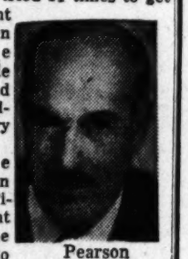
Merry-Go-Round

Chapman Comes Into His Own

By Drew Pearson

(The brass ring, good for one free ride on the Washington Merry-Go-Round, today goes to Oscar Chapman as he becomes Secretary of the Interior.)

A young Navy veteran stood outside the juvenile delinquency court in Denver, Colo., back in 1922. He had tried 11 times to get an appointment with Judge Ben Lindsay, the famed juvenile expert, and each time Lindsay's secretary had said no.



Pearson

But the young veteran persevered. Finally he caught Lindsay as he went out to lunch, and shortly thereafter became his assistant probation officer.

The young veteran was Oscar Chapman. And if he had not persevered both in Denver and in Washington, he would not be taking the oath as Secretary of the Interior today.

Chapman has been a member of the "Little Cabinet" longer than anyone else in Washington. He became Assistant Secretary of the Interior in the first months of Franklin Roosevelt's bright and shiny New Deal back in 1933, and he has patiently stuck it out for 16 years since.

And just as he finally saw Judge Lindsay after having been rebuffed 11 times, Oscar has now come into the reward long overdue. When he takes office today, thanks to long training under Harold Ickes, he will probably be the best qualified and experienced new Secretary of the Interior in history.

It may show a trend of the times that the three men Oscar Chapman worked for most of his life have all been Teddy Roosevelt Bull-Moosers. And of recent years these Progressive Republicans have been among the pillars of the Democratic Party.

The three men are Judge Lindsay, Senator Ed Costigan of Colorado and Harold Ickes. The latter two were delegates at the Republican convention that nominated Taft in 1912. They walked out in protest and later drafted Teddy Roosevelt.

It was through Senator Ed Costigan that Chapman happened to meet F. D. R. and enter the New Deal. Chapman had managed Costigan's campaign for the Senate in Colorado in 1930, and despite the fact that Costigan was a Bull-Mooser, Chapman elected him on the Democratic ticket. Later Costigan visited Franklin Roosevelt, then Governor of New York, and took Chapman along. They talked about conservation.

"We must keep young men like this in Government," Roosevelt said, referring to Costigan's assistant and also having in mind the probability that he, Roosevelt, would be the next President of the United States.

After his election, FDR did not forget. He notified Costigan that "a man named Ickes from Chicago" would be the new Secretary of the Interior; and that marked the beginning of the hookup between Ickes and Chapman—a hookup that has continued to this day.

Old-time observers say there are two kinds of politicians in Washington—those who watch to see which way the wind is blowing and those who stand up and buck the wind no matter how hard it's blowing.

Chapman is in the latter class. And his battles—wind or no wind—have always been on the liberal side. However, he has worked so quietly and kept himself so much in the background that few have given him credit for the many things he has accomplished. Chapman, for instance, has been pushing the production of synthetic oil and gasoline, working behind the scenes with Senator Joe O'Mahoney of Wyoming.

It was Chapman who months before the oil crisis in the winter of 1947-48 warned the industry that they faced a shortage. Later, the big oil companies were actually running advertisements urging consumers to use less oil.

Early in the New Deal it was also Chapman who led the fight against child labor in the beet-sugar fields. As a boy, he had worked in the tobacco fields of Virginia, and knew child labor first hand.

Chapman was also sent to the Far West as trouble-shooter when the grazing act was first passed in 1934. Ickes and Roosevelt had persuaded Congress to regulate the public domain in the Rocky Mountain States, where big sheep and cattle men had fenced in large areas of Government land.

Irate groups of cattlemen greeted Chapman wherever he went; but after listening to his persuasion for half an hour, one cattleman got up and said:

"We're all used to having the Government in Washington crucify us; so this is nothing new. But it is new to have someone come out and consult us about the way we want to be crucified. This man Chapman is at least good enough to come and listen to our side. So I'm for him."
